MENUS

By Sister Mary

When we realize that day after day we eat vegetables in some form or other, we must acknowledge their unusual value. No other vegetable could appear daily on our tables without becoming monotonous and unwholesome. They stand pre-eminent among the vegetables.

Composed chiefly of starch and water, they are lacking in protein and should be used in combination with protein-rich foods such as meat or eggs.

The lack of individual flavor in potatoes makes them an excellent fat carrier. This quality, together with the large amount of starch which the potato itself supplies, makes it one of the most valuable of the energy foods.

Heat is necessary to make potatoes digestible, and because of their high water content the dry heat of baking, which is more intense than the heat of boiling, acts on the starch to better advantage.

Cut Out Green Portion

When potatoes have grown near the surface of the ground or have been stored in the sunlight, they turn green. This green portion is bitter and should be cut away before cooking.

Some food scientists advocate always cooking potatoes with their skins on. Most of the protein and mineral salts do lie close under the skin and a thick paring is taken a large amount of the food value of the potato is gone.

Baking is perhaps the ideal way to cook potatoes and is the accepted method for children and invalids. Some of the mineral salts are lost in the water, as happens when potatoes are boiled, and the question of paring is decided. Smooth, uniform and medium sized potatoes should be chosen for baking and the oven should be hot when the tubers are put in. Rub the skin with fat before putting potatoes in the oven and they will be tender and appealing.

This secret of perfect mashed potatoes lies in thorough cooking, draining and drying before mashing. Unless all the moisture is driven off before mashing and seasoning, the potatoes will be soggy instead of dry and mealy. Of course, adequate mashing to remove all lumps is imperative. Milk should not be added until potatoes are perfectly smooth. Keep hot by the side of the fire while mashing and seasoning and beat over the fire while adding milk. Heating the milk aids in producing a "fluffy" dish. Never cover potatoes after mashing to keep hot. The steam will settle down onto them and make them soggy. If they must be kept hot, place the kettle containing them into a larger kettle of hot water.

JOSEPH ANSWERS MANNIX CHARGE

endowment fund was in the supreme court.

In answering these charges Joseph reviews the E. Henry Wempe endowment cases in both the state and the federal courts. He reiterates his allegation that the Henry Wempe company, in whose behalf Mannix brought suit to recover the Wempe fund, was owned by E. W. Wickley, and that while the case was in the supreme court and while Rand sat as a member of the court to hear the case, Mannix and Wempe held an option to purchase mind property from Rand in Eastern Oregon.

Joseph goes into the case of Elyin V. Condit, for whom Joseph recently filed suit against Mannix and A. Neppach to recover damages resulting from the defendant's alleged fraudulent taking of his property. Citing the alleged circumstances back of this suit, Joseph mentions that Condit had filed suit for divorce from his wife, which was decided against him in the circuit court. Following this decree Joseph says Condit informed him he was approached by Neppach, who told him he could take him to an attorney who would appeal his case to the supreme court and get reversal.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS CONCERT

national council for the prevention of war.

The Rev. V. E. Hall, the Rev. R. L. Putnam, the Rev. M. G. Tenneyson and the Rev. Leif H. Aves were appointed to arrange for the praise and prayer service Thanksgiving day.

During the meeting this morning Mr. Hall gave a paper on "Church Union" and the association will discuss this next Monday. Capt. W. J. Jackson, of the Salvation Army, was taken into the association to fill the place left vacant by E. J. Back's departure.

VOTERS WILL GO TO POLLS IN 12 STATES

elaborate arrangements for getting out the vote, in some cases, notably the old dominion, had been of such a character as to require little urging that the voter seek the nearest polling places.

With the democratic political machine in Virginia facing the severest test it probably has yet met, an unusually heavy vote is expected in that state, which alone elects a governor.

Until a combination of Anti-Smith democrats and republicans threw the state into the republican column just a year ago, political contests there were decided in the democratic primary. Consequently this is the first real general election fight for state officers within several generations.

Under the leadership of Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, the anti-Smith democrats have joined with the republicans in supporting William Mosely Brown for the governorship against John Garland Pollard, candidate of the regular democratic organization at the head of which stands Governor Harry Flood Byrd.

Outside of Virginia, Kentucky has the only other statewide election of popular interest. In the Bluegrass state the republicans seek to make their control of the government complete by gaining a majority in the legislature.

Negro Seats Seat

The congressional election, to be held in the twenty-first New York district to fill a vacancy caused by death, brings forth a negro seeking a place in the national house of representatives. He is Hubert T. Delany, running on the republican ticket in a normally democratic district.

Contests in New York City, Boston and Detroit furnish the high lights in the majority races.

Grand Officers of Eastern Star At Saturday Meeting

At a very impressive district meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star, Saturday evening in the Masonic hall, five grand officers were present, including the two local persons who hold state offices, Mrs. Elizabeth Tipton, worthy grand matron of the grand chapter of Oregon, the Order of the Eastern Star; Mrs. Carrie Jackson of Baker, associate grand matron; Mrs. Carolyn Johnston of Heppner, grand sentinel; George T. Cochran, worthy grand patron, and Mrs. Hazel Graham, grand A.D., both of La Grande, were present at the session and responded, when requested, with a short talk. The worthy patrons and worthy matrons of each chapter also spoke.

Chapters from Elgin, Cove, Union and La Grande were present and each portrayed part of the ritualistic work of the organization. Refreshments were served in the dining room following the meeting, and Mrs. Tipton and Mr. Cochran were each presented with a gift as a token of esteem.

The meeting was well attended.

W. R. C. Luncheon Is Well Attended

About 50 were in attendance at the luncheon of the Woman's Relief Corps Saturday afternoon in the E. H. hall, when two G. A. R. veterans and two Spanish War veterans were also present.

The program was begun by the community singing of "The Red, White and Blue." H. E. Coolidge, who was the speaker of the luncheon, invited the G. A. R. members to become honorary members of the United Spanish War Veterans.

Miss Mona Ward gave two interesting readings. An unusual number, a saw solo, was played by Leslie Hale, accompanied by Mrs. Hale at the piano.

Daughters of the Union veterans of the Civil war planned red carnations on each comrade of the G. A. R., two soldiers' widows and Mrs. Fred Braden, mother of the Joanna Melton (sent No. 14).

At the close of the program "America" was sung by the gathering.

The regular ritualistic work featured a meeting following the luncheon. Mrs. Martha Ackley was initiated into the organization.

FIND "FRIEND IN NEED"

Mother and Daughter Praise Vegetable Compound

Johnson City, N. Y.—"My daughter was only 20 years old, but for two years she worked in misery. She was all run-down, nervous, had aches and pains and no appetite. I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results so she decided to try it. Before she had taken two bottles her appetite was better, she was more cheerful and was able to work. I cannot praise your medicine too highly. It is wonderful for mothers and for daughters. It's surely a friend in need!"—Mrs. L. E. HALL, 233 Floral Avenue, Johnson City, N. Y.

A Well-Painted Roof Seldom Leaks

By HELEN B. AMES

IT is easy enough to keep the house in repair in places which come within our line of vision, but when the roof needs fixing, there is apt to be no warning until a damp and unsightly spot appears on the ceiling. Then there is a bill for re-decoration as well as for repair—two large items of expense that should have been rolled into a small one and applied to prevention instead of to cure. For money spent at regular intervals for a coat of good paint will keep the roof in perfect condition so it will not spring a leak.

More than any other part of the house, the roof is exposed to the ravages of the elements. Rain often stays in the gutter for days and snow sometimes covers the whole area for weeks. This lowers the resistance of both metal and wood, causing rust and decay unless there is proper protection. Paint spreads a moisture-proof film over the surface, sealing the pores of the wood and fortifying the metal against corrosion. Tin roofs should be repainted every two years; shingled roofs may safely wait four or five years, but no longer.

The wearing capacity of shingles will depend largely, of course, on whether the painter makes a good job of applying the paint or stain. For a new roof, the best method is to dip one coat before the shingles are laid and then brush on the second coat when the roof is completed. Pre-dipping gives the shingles protection on both sides and insures an even distribution of color.

Modern roof colors are much brighter than the dull reds and tinned browns of past years and many home owners look upon this change as an opportunity for inexpensive remodeling. With a roof of emerald green, or one of bright terra cotta—which ever suits its complexion—an old house can be brought up-to-date without a single change in outline.
