desired for later plants and replaced by new pipe again in the fall. The chief objection to lilies of the valley in the garden is their fast spreading habit.

They are so easily grown as house plants that they have become one of the most popular of indoor plants in the winter. The prepared pipe bought at the florists are best for this purpose. Plant half a dozen in a five-inch pot, the tips of the growing points just below the surface of the soil. Set them outdoors, keep moist and allow them to freeze. Then bring them in as desired and they sprout into immediate growth and in a few days they are in bloom. They can then be set outdoors again to be put into the ground in spring if desired.

The lily of the valley of the seed house is an improved form of the old-fashioned native. It has been developed by selection to larger size and much longer spikes and stems of better length for cutting. There are several strains all of which are good.

Begin putting up lilies of the valley now for a continual supply in the house this winter and plant a patch in some convenient corner for a supply to cut next spring. They are beautiful with pink early tulips in bowls in the house, where their fragrance is greatly appreciated. The botanical name of the lily of the valley is convallaria majalis. They should be ordered by the hundreds for the season's supply. They are procurable nearly all winter, as the pipes are kept in cold storage until wanted for growth.

Food Values
The Department of Agriculture says that there are 741 calories per pound in eggs. Beef contains about 1,000 calories per pound, depending upon the age and quality of fat. Since eggs are measured 10 to 12 per pound, it would appear that it would take between 15 and 20 eggs to equal a pound of beef in caloric food value.

Invention of Nighthawk
Refueling in flight is something the nighthawk invented a long time ago.

THE GARDEN
BETTER LILIES OF THE VALLEY
Lilies of the valley are an annual delight in the garden and they will take possession of a shady corner and flourish for years, spreading into big patches and producing each year a wealth of their white bells so delightfully fragrant. However, the modern lily of the valley sold by seed houses is far superior to the old-fashioned types so familiar for many years. They produce longer spikes, bigger bells and more bells to the spike. Each sprout also will produce bloom, while many of the plants in the open will have only leaves. They are specially prepared for the trade and are much more satisfactory for garden purposes. They are so inexpensive that they may be dug up when through blooming and thrown away if the space is Hirds and men are not alike. When the birds build a home they stay there and use it.

Small boy on arrival at country cottage: "Mummy, where is the bathroom?" "Mother: "There isn't any bathroom, dear."

Small boy: "Good! This is going to be a real holiday."

A man could save himself a lot of trouble by marrying his second wife first.

Here's a harder question than you'll find in any popular quiz book: "What became of last month's salary?"

Then there was the Scotchman who didn't send his son to college, because he was afraid he would get a liberal education.

All it takes to start a love nest is a little down.

If you think necessity isn't the mother of industry, note how long it takes a man to get his shave on Sunday.

Jones heard a riddle at the office that he thought was pretty good, so decided to try it on the wife.

"Why," he said the minute he opened the door, "why am I like a mule?" "I don't know," said Mrs. Jones. "I know you are, but I don't know why."
