TWO CONFERENCE GAMES IN NORTH

Stanford Playing Washington While Cougars Meet Idaho Vandals.

By Frank E. Gorrie
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 9 (AP)—Rain or shine the University of Washington grid team was conceded little chance for victory over Stanford here today in the last football game at home for the Huskies this year.

The weather prediction for today was "occasional rains" causing much concern among the master minds of the Cardinal and Husky teams, both of which planned an open style of attack.

Stanford came to Seattle prepared to thoroughly trounce the Huskies in its drive for the Pacific coast conference championship made possible by California's win over Southern California last Saturday. The Cardinals were given a big edge over Washington but as the purple and gold eleven had nothing to lose a great battle was contemplated. Washington has yet to win a conference game this season, having lost to Southern California, Washington State college and Oregon and tied with Montana.

Last Seattle Game for Bagshaw

The Huskies meet California at Berkeley next Saturday and Chicago at Chicago the following weekend to wind up their 1929 schedule.

Coach Enoch Bagshaw of Washington was making his last effort in the Washington stadium today. He recently resigned but offered to remain on the job until the end of the year.

Approximately 25,000 persons were to witness the contest which was Washington's homecoming game.

COUGARS PLAYING VANDALS

PULLMAN, Wash., Nov. 9 (AP)—Two of the warmest rivals in Western football — Washington State college and the University of Idaho—today faced each other here for their 32nd contest.

Washington State was conceded an advantage by paper players who were not familiar with the traditions of the two schools, but those who had followed the story of the games since 1894 and who knew the long list of disastrous upsets during that time, were quiet as to the outcome.

The Staters, seeking the northwest division championship, had only Idaho to defeat before they could lay claim to the title, and a victory over Montana, the remaining foe on the schedule, before the banner was cinched.

The weather man promised clear skies for the contest, which was to be watched by upwards of 12,000 fans.

MONTANA AT BERKELEY

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 9 (AP)—A team of California reserves, getting its first chance to pit its strength against a conference opponent, was primed here today to attempt to hand a defeat to an eleven from the University of Montana.

The Montana Grizzlies came down from their late boasting of a powerful aerial attack, and with the highlight of their season's record a 6-6 ties with the University of Washington eleven. With everything to gain and nothing to lose, the Montanans were ready to fight to the last ditch.

Meanwhile Coach Nibs Price was confident of the ability of his second string crew, which defeated the Olympic club team 21 to 19 two weeks ago, and announced that he will not use his regulars except in case of emergency.

Eugene Wrestler Wins Junior Title

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 9 (AP)—George (Wildcat) Pete, Eugene, is the world's champion junior middleweight wrestler again.

In a torrid encounter last night he won the title back from Texas Teddy Waters with an airplane spin after losing the first fall by a rabbit punch and a reverse arm bar. Waters was unable to come back after the spin.

Allen-Ingersol Fight Attracts Much Attention

Probably no series of fights in the Inland Empire in recent years has carried more interest than the Allen-Ingersol bouts which have been staged in La Grande and Astoria during the last several months. The series started with a fight here some time ago with George Ingersol outpointing Delmer Allen. In subsequent meetings the score was evened up and recently Allen won a decision over the Astorian in a second fight in La Grande.

In many ways, the match scheduled here for the evening of Armistice day, is expected to climax the series. With both boys having a decision to his credit, the 10-round main event is expected to resolve into a real scrap from start to finish, with each fighter anxious to score a second decision. Allen, in fact, is out for a knockout and intends to carry the battle to his opponent from the opening gong.

Headline Event

This fight will conclude the 7:30 o'clock boxing card in the Rex hall Monday, and preceding it will be a six-round semi-final with Harold Westover, experienced Vernonia 141-pounder, trading punches with Kid Alabama, 142 pounds, of La Grande, who has a long string of recent victories—some via the knockout route—to his credit.

Two clashing four-round preliminaries will open the program, Hector Warden, of La Grande, meeting Kid Dolan, of Walla Walla, and Glen Ford and Kid Walker, of La Grande, providing the opening bout.

O. D. Scott will referee and J. H. Peare will serve as timekeeper.

College of Idaho Playing Pacific

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 9 (AP)—In the only Northwest conference game scheduled for today, College of Idaho will play Pacific at Forest Grove. It was homecoming day on the campus at Forest Grove.

On Monday, Armistice day, Whitman plays College of Puget Sound at Tacoma while Linfield and Willamette meet at Salem.

GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

YREKA, Cal., Nov. 9 (AP)—Gorham Owl Steve, a Klamath river Indian, yesterday was sentenced to life in Folsom prison following his plea of guilty to a charge of murdering Harrison Cash, an Indian boy, the son of his divorced wife.

Young Cash was killed September 23 of this year, when Steve went with a gun to his former wife's home and called for her brother, George Cash. The boy opened the door and was shot and killed.

National Boxing Body's List of Champs Is Given

By Edward J. Neil
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Boxing association, striving to set up crowns for the boys to shoot at in the kingless divisions, has cut to three the number of fistic classes now lacking leaders.

If the energy of Edward K. Foster, chairman of the championship committee of the N. B. A., can bring it about, there will soon be champions on the middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight thrones. His most recent announcement was the naming of Panama Al Brown, tall, clever negro who has whipped every challenger in his division, champion of the bantamweights.

Foster, wealthy Providence, R. I., business man whose hobby is boxing, recently removed Mickey Walker as titleholder in the middleweight division and declared throne vacant because of Mickey's refusal to defend the crown.

As yet no outstanding contender has appeared to lay undisputed claim to the light heavyweight crown recently relinquished by Tommy Loughran. Several more bouts are necessary, too, before a champion can be named to succeed Gene Tunney at the head of the heavies.

Foster has listed the N. B. A. champions and leading contenders in this fashion:

Heavyweight—Champion, open: 2, Jack Sharkey; 3, Tommy Loughran; 4, Max Schmeling; 5, Ernie Schaff; 6, Otto von Porat; 7, George Godfrey; 8, Paulino Uzcudun; 9, Phil Scott; 10, Victorio Campolo; 11, Young Stribling; 12, Taffy Griffiths.

Light Heavyweight—Champion, open: 2, Jimmy Braddock; 3, Leo Lomski.

Middleweight—Champion, open: 2, Ace Hudkins; 3, Rene De Vos.

Welterweight—Champion, Jacky Fields; 2, Jimmy McLarnin; 3, Jack Thompson.

Junior Welterweight — Champion, Mushy Callahan; 2, Baby Joe Gans; 3, Stan Loayza.

Lightweight—Champion, Sammy Mandell; 2, Tony Canzoneri; 3, Billy Wallace.

Junior Lightweight—Champion, Tod Morgan; 2, Al Singer; 3, Jake Zeramby.

Featherweight—Champion, Bat Battalino; 2, Kid Chocolate; 3, Eddie Shea.

Bantamweight—Champion, Panama Al Brown; 2, Teddy Baldock; 3, Vidal Gregorio.

Flyweight—Champion, Frankie Genaro; 2, Izzy Schwartz; 3, Midget Wolgast.

Chickenpox In Mt. Glen District Near Rope's End

By Mrs. E. D. Whiting
(Observer Correspondent)

MT. GLEN (Special) — The chicken pox epidemic is almost over in the district as every child but two at the school have either resumed after having the disease or are at home now staying their required two weeks with it.

The Mt. Glen school celebrated Halloween by a much enjoyed house party at the home of A. J. Feik. The evening was spent in playing games and telling fortunes. Refreshments consisting of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and cider were served at a late hour. The party was under the supervision of L. F. Bearman, who is the teacher here. He organized the children into committees to carry out the various details of the evening for merriment. This gave the children a lesson in responsibility as well as aiding in the fun of the party.

The Mt. Glen L. D. S. Relief society began its winter work Tuesday. The opening meeting was in the form of a social given at the home of Mrs. E. D. Whiting. The program was as follows: piano solo, Mrs. Leo Hibbert; vocal selections, Mrs. George A. Bean; reading, Mrs. E. F. Zaugg, and piano solo, Anna Mae Whiting. The lesson topic was on the early inhabitants of America. It was led by the class leader, Mrs. E. F. Zaugg. Visitors from La Grande were Mrs. W. D. Hanks, Mrs. George Bean and Mrs. Mary Bean.

Miss Ruby Floyd and J. N. Feik have returned home after spending two months at Yakima, Wash., where they worked in the fruit harvest. Before returning they visited various interesting cities on the coast including Seattle, Tacoma and Portland.

Chris Hildebrand, of La Grande, is completing a storage reservoir at the E. D. Whiting farm home. A spring is being cemented here which will furnish a water supply for the house as well as serving to water the stock.

N. M. Feik is also piping a spring to his house and farm before cold weather sets in and the ground becomes frozen so that the pipes cannot be laid.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Zaugg and family have moved to the community from the N. K. West farm in the Pleasant Grove neighborhood. They are expecting to spend the winter here.

The apple harvest at the Sherwood Williams orchard, where many local people have been working, was completed Tuesday. Over 17,000 boxes of salable apples were picked during the season which lasted three weeks.

A boy scout troop has been organized here in connection with the M. I. A. of the L. D. S. church. L. F. Bearman is scout master.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Zaugg were called to Boise, Idaho, early in the week due to the death of Mrs. Zaugg's father, Abraham Chadwick. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Zaugg, of Union, on their trip.

Miss Eva Perryman and her mother visited in the neighborhood Thursday.

E. P. Feik has purchased a new tractor.

R. S. Allen and A. J. Feik went to various Idaho and Washington points recently on business.

COLLEGIANS ROBBED

EUGENE, Ore., Nov. 9 (AP)—Watches, clothing and money, valued at $260, have been stolen from the rooms of the University of Oregon students at Sherry Ross hall, men's dormitory, during the past week, authorities were informed today.

Sport Slants

by Alan J. Gould

Football coaches like to scoff at the "one-man team" idea on the theory that it is headline stuff, ignoring the fundamental facts of team work.

"Eleven men have a job to do on every play," says Bill Roper. "The flashiest ball-carrier cannot get away often if he does not have blocking and interference."

Nevertheless the evidence is at hand, plenty of it, to illustrate the remarkable influence of one youth upon a whole team—for instance, 144-pound Albie Booth of Yale, who has stepped into the key spot of the Eli lineup as a sophomore just as though it had been made for him. Perhaps it was, for Albie grew up and learned his football within the shadow of the Yale Bowl.

Not even Red Grange, who made the All-America team as a sophomore, stepped off to any fancier start than Booth, who has proved himself the slipperiest carrier of his weight and inches in the East, if not in the whole country. Yale looks like a different team the moment bare-legged Albie trots out on the field. Booth has the same electric effect upon the Blue charge that Grange had upon Illinois, Wilson or Cagle upon the Army, Clark on Colorado College, Marsters on Dartmouth and the late George Gipp upon Notre Dame. For want of a better word it can be labeled "football It."

October has shaken up the gridiron dope. Harvard looked to be headed for another good year after smearing Yale as a climax last Fall, but the Elis have no cause to be pessimistic as they look forward to the renewal of the ancient classic at Cambridge. On the same day that Booth was leading the victorious Blue charge against Army, the Crimson was being overwhelmed by the Green horde from Dartmouth.

Washington and Michigan were at the peak just a few years ago, yet each finished the October boute with three successive defeats. In two seasons the Wolverines have lost more games than they usually drop in a half dozen years.

Princeton failed to win a single major game in October. To show how swiftly the mighty tumble, Georgia Tech has been beaten twice and eliminated from the Southern conference race after holding the championship two years in a row.

Where consistency is a rare virtue, Tennessee and Detroit possess two of the most noteworthy winning streaks now existing in college ranks. Major Bob Neyland's Volunteers haven't been beaten since they dropped a decision to Vanderbilt late in the 1926 campaign. For 25 successive games, they show 23 victories and a brace of ties, one with Vanderbilt and the other with Kentucky. And nothing has bobbed up so far this season to check Tennessee's big parade.

Detroit, coached by Gus Dorais, old Notre Dame star and famous as a team-mate of Knute Rockne, has run through 19 straight games unbeaten, untied. Detroit lost two battles in a row, to Army and Notre Dame, early in 1927 but hasn't been stopped since, showing one of the few clean slates in the whole country last year.

Uncertain Whether Sherwood Will Play

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Nov. 9 (Special)—Cecil Sherwood, the junior flash from La Grande, is yet to be pronounced mended before he will see any more action with the Orange team this year. "The bullet" will be needed against Oregon a week from Saturday but whether "Doc" Brower will pass favorable verdict on his condition in time for the game is doubtful. When Sherwood scintillated against the New York university Violets back east last year everyone was surprised that a sophomore could show so much dynamite. He started out again this year to outdo last year's performance, romping over the Willamette Bearcats for three touchdowns. An injury in the second play of the California Aggie game kept him out of the Southern California and Columbia university games. Just as he was again getting back his power and dash he was hurt in the Stanford tilt and has been out of the lineup ever since.

Oregon Normal Defeats Albany College, 46 to 0

OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, Monmouth, Nov. 9 (Special)—Monmouth Normal defeated Albany college, 46 to 0, in a football game here yesterday. The local Teachers utilized a sensational aerial attack that completely dazzled the young collegians.

Long forward passes from Emerson, quarter, to both Phillips and Gordon, ends, worked havoc with the Albany defense and allowed the machine to roll up and down the field. The Normal team scored two touchdowns in the opening quarter, coasted through the second and went to work for another touchdown in the third. And in the final quarter, with the second team on the field, the Normal ran rampant for 27 points. Lineup:
