death. No others were hurt and the seven other cars of the train remained upright.

As the train crashed to a halt, two masked men waving revolvers appeared out of the confusion and dark in a sleeping car four lengths from the end of the train.

They encountered Conductor Otto L. French. One of them said: "There is a relief train due from Saugus any moment and I'll trouble you for a little money you have, if you don't mind."

The conductor felt a gun against his side and raised his hands. When turning to the frightened men and women passengers, one shouted curtly, "Move backward and shell out."

Only Cash Taken

The passengers of the last four cars were herded to the end of the train. Lining up immediately a score of them, the men made a search of their clothing while the other stood on a stool, sweeping them with his gun. They took only cash, refusing jewelry.

As they completed their loot they ran to the forward end of the car and disappeared in the night. The rough country provided them with numerous hiding places.

Poses of deputy sheriffs and armed citizens were organized hurriedly and a search spread out over the countryside. All highways were commanded and reports of ranchers that they had seen a small green coupe near the scene not long before the accident directed authorities to a close check of automobiles.

A quick investigation disclosed a missing crow bar and wrench from the Scopus tool house. The tracks showed that spikes had been pried from the ties and the bolts loosened in the rails.

Near the tracks detectives found two bottles partially filled with liquor and remains of a lunch. Eighteen feet away they came upon the missing crowbar and wrench.

100 Passengers

The wreck occurred about 7:25 p. m. The train with about one hundred passengers aboard, left here at 5:16 p. m. The point of collision was near the spot where

Armistice Day—After Eleven Years Of Peace

It made it seem an easy thing to die. It was a group of words that took the American people into the war and took them in with high hearts. But of late we have laughed at it. Mention "the war to end war" nowadays and you will simply draw a laugh.

Yet the old slogan isn't entirely dead. It could still have all of its magic power. We—the people of America—could revive it.

Armistice Day might not be a bad time to think about it. Things have been happening in the last few months; things that can be made to rank with the tremendously important events of all history. There has been the Kellogg peace treaty. There has been the exchange of viewpoints between Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald. There has been the call to a new five-power naval disarmament conference.

These things, to be sure, may turn out to be nothing better than gestures. It is up to us—to us, more than to any people on earth.

If we don't care particularly about them, you may depend upon it that they will become gestures and nothing more. But if we insist—if we vow that these things shall become great, immovable bulwarks, to hold war back from a world that has found out how frightful war really is—then, in the fullness of time, they will become just that.

And, when and if they do, our wartime slogan will be justified.

Would there be a better way of keeping faith with the men from whom the war took life? Those men, remember, died believing that slogan. We can make it come true for them if we try hard enough. Isn't it worth tackling? Could we observe Armistice Day in any more fitting manner than by dedicating ourselves to that task?

track walker last Friday found a loosened rail. One train had passed over it safely. Detectives believed the work was that of the same men who committed the robbery.

A partial list of the passengers victimized included Mrs. L. H. Yett, Nogales, Ark., $20; I. A. Bennett, Willows, Cal., $80; Gertrude D. Lawrence, Willows, Cal., $10; Mrs. Laura J. Ernst, San Diemas, $20; Dana Hoffman, Hollywood, $25; T. B. Quinn, Los Angeles, $3; P. J. Anderson, porter, $5; H. E. Pierson, railroad official, $3; L. H. McMillan, Long Beach, $30; Mrs. Anna E. Henry, Malibu Brockett and Roy Gray, all of Los Angeles, each small amounts.

Wrecking crews were despatched to the scene and a train left here last night to return the passengers to Los Angeles.

Covering of Snow Blankets Valley

King Winter gave the Grande Ronde valley an emphatic reminder of his approaching strides yesterday and during last night by depositing a thin layer of snow over the city and valley. Accompanying the mantle of white was a minimum temperature of 27 above, which resulted in a thin ice over the streets and sidewalks this morning. The snow melted under the early morning sunshine.

This was the first snow of the season, coming nearly a month later this year than last. A partly clear sky this morning gave promise of a possible sunny afternoon, unless additional clouds gather.

WOMAN ADMITS SLAYING FOUR-YEAR-OLD GIRL

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Suspicion of police that four other children may have met the same fate as 4-year-old Dorothy Rogers and her brother, Timothy, 2, for whose deaths Gladys May Parson, 25, is held in the Camden county jail on the charge of murder, resulted today to intensify the investigation of the case.

Detective Sergeant Louis Shaw said that the woman had confessed that she had used the Rogers children in a blackmailing scheme. He said the authorities had found seven men who accused her of having demanded money of them after showing them the children and asserting that they were theirs. These men gave descriptions of four small children used which Shaw declared were entirely different from the descriptions of the Rogers children.

Miss Parks ended a widespread search for her by walking into police headquarters at Newark, N. J., yesterday and surrendering. With her was Anthony Baka, who is held as a material witness. Police said the woman admitted having killed Dorothy Rogers by a blow struck in punishment for a childish indiscretion, but maintained that Timothy was killed in a fall down the stairs at her home. She also confessed that she had buried Dorothy's body in a shallow grave near National Park, N. J., after covering it with ice, and her disclosure led to the discovery of Timothy's body at a lonely spot near Absecon, N. J.

MURDER SUSPECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11 (AP)—A theory of violence was being investigated by police following the discovery of the body of Gunnar Thurston, machine shop employe, at the bottom of an apartment house eight feet.

In the belief that Thurston had been pushed from a window, police were searching for a man and woman with whom he is said to have quarreled Saturday night.

Quiet Wedding At Catholic Church Saturday Evening

A quiet and lovely wedding was an event of Saturday evening in the church of Our Lady of the Valley, when the Rev. Father O. Nooy performed the marriage ceremony of Miss Madeline Barbeau, daughter of Mrs. William Siegrist, and Albert M. Moore, son of L. O. Moore of Vancouver. The altar was attractively arranged with pink pompons.

In a charming dress of brown, and wearing a corsage of roses and lilies of the valley the lovely bride was attended by Mrs. C. S. Moore; Dr. Webster K. Ross attended the bridegroom. Only the immediate members of the family were present.

Following the services those at the ceremony were guests at the home of Mrs. William Siegrist who served a dainty buffet luncheon. At twelve the newlyweds left for Portland and Seattle for a brief honeymoon. Mrs. Moore was dressed in an ensemble of brown.

They will make their home in La Grande, where Dr. Moore has his office.

Miss Edith Bragg And Mr. Carson Wed

The following is an account of the marriage of Miss Edith Bragg, former resident of La Grande, which will be of interest to many of her friends here, several of whom attended the ceremony in Salem.

One of the loveliest weddings to be solemnized in Salem was that which united in marriage Miss Edith Bragg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bragg, and Wallace Carson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Carson, Saturday at 8 o'clock in St. Paul's Episcopal church. Rev. George Swift read the simple, single ring ceremony, in the presence of over 200 guests.

The altar was all in white flowers with banks of greenery about the chancel; over this simplicity the tall ivory white service tapers threw a soft shadowy light.

The bride was beautiful in the gown of white satin made in fitted princess style, with long sleeves and a long train. She wore the veil of Mrs. John Carson, Sr., and her cap was a lovely piece of point lace. The only ornament worn with her brides ensemble was a string of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. The bride's bouquet was orchids, lilies of the valley, and butterfly roses.

Mrs. E. E. Bragg was gowned in a georgette gown of rose with cut steel beads and she wore roses and violets. Mrs. John Carson, Sr., low grave near National Park, N. J., after covering it with ice, and her disclosure led to the discovery of Timothy's body at a lonely spot near Absecon, N. J.

The home was attractively decorated with chrysanthemums in a color scheme of orchid and white. An arch of chrysanthemums and green formed a setting for the impressive ring ceremony performed
