Too much water makes a heavy, tough dough in spite of correct proportions of shortening and flour.

The skilled baker can work her shortening into the flour with her fingers, for her touch is so light that it does not melt the fat. The beginner will find that a pastry blender of two knives will help her.

The most important points to remember in pie baking are the following: Use pastry flour. Use a good quality of shortening. Have all ingredients and utensils cold. Work as quickly as possible. Use only enough ice-cold water to hold shortening and flour together. Handle and roll dough as lightly as possible.

The flour and shortening are sufficiently blended when the mixture looks coarse like corn meal.

If the dough is chilled before rolling it, it handles more easily and a flakier crust is the result. Some cooks think that the thorough chilling of the dough prevents the crust from becoming soggy.

The following rule is for plain pastry and is enough for one double crust pie:

Plain Pastry
One and one-half cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 7 tablespoons shortening, about 4 tablespoons ice water.

Mix and sift flour and salt. Work in shortening. Add water gradually, working it in to small portions of the flour with a knife. Use only enough water to make the dough cling together. Divide in two parts making one part larger than the other. The larger crust requires more dough than the upper one. Roll dough for lower crust on a lightly floured board and fit into pan. Do not stretch the sheet of dough, rather push it down into the pan to make it fit. Add filling and crimp edge of dough. Roll upper crust and cut several slashes in the dough to allow the steam to escape while baking. Fold half of the dough back over the other half and fit over top of pie. Run the rolling pin around the edge of the pan to press the upper and under crusts firmly together. Trim off extra dough around the edge of the pan and press with a pastry jagger or roll between the thumb and forefinger of one hand over the forefinger of the other. Bake in a hot oven ten minutes to quickly bake the crust. Then reduce the heat and bake in a moderate oven until both filling and crust are thoroughly cooked.

COMMERCE IS BEATEN, 3 TO 0, BY COLONIALS
PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 12 (AP)—Before the largest crowd witnessing a football game here this season, estimated at 24,000, Washington High won what may mean the Portland interscholastic league championship for 1929 from Commerce High here, yesterday by a scant 3 to 0 score. A last minute threat by Commerce, however, nearly upset this. O'Connell, half-back, took a long punt from Acheson on the Washington 48-yard line and returned it to the two-yard line. The crowd, believing victory in sight for Commerce, whose heavy line work had repeatedly made yardage through the Washington line, was on its feet, but the Washington team held like a stone wall and the ball was lost on a fumble on the fourth try with the ball on the one foot line.

Washington's score came in the first quarter when Acheson, quarterback, kicked a perfect goal from the 11-yard line.

MENUS

By Sister Mary

Pie is perhaps the most typically American of all desserts, but in too many homes the baking of it is rapidly becoming a lost art.

Good pastry is not just luck, nor mere guess. Careful methods and accurate measuring are as essential for pie crust as for angel cake. Our mothers and grandmothers who baked dozens of pies a week had a very definite method and measured with great accuracy "by eye."

There are several kinds of pastry—plain, rich and puff or French. The average pie, however, is made with plain pastry, and the woman who masters this branch of the culinary art can be well satisfied.

If a light, flaky crust is wanted, air must be worked into the dough. In baking, heat expands the air chambers and the result is a tender, puffy crust. Light, quick handling prevents any escape of air.

A rich tender crust either crumbly or flaky is made only when the shortening is in the right proportion to the flour and when the water is reduced to a minimum.

FOUR COUNTY STUDENTS AID IN HOMECOMING
UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 12 (Special)—Preparations for homecoming at the University of Oregon, November 15-17, reveal four Union county young people prominent in managing the details of the big event.

Etta Belle Kitchin, La Grande, who is affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega, is assisting in handling the sign contest, an annual feature of the homecoming program. Competition is keen every year among the various living organizations to have the most unique sign displayed for the weekend, playing up the slogan, which this year is "Home to Honor Oregon."

Ed Dobbin, of Union, who is affiliated with Theta Chi, is assisting in arranging an elaborate display of rockets and flares to be set off on the battle above Eugene at the time of the noise parade Friday evening.

To assist in the field exercises at the Saturday game with Oregon State college, Dorothy Eberhard, of La Grande, has been named. She is affiliated with Pi Beta Phi.

The committee with which she is working has planned a number of new ideas which it expects to present at Hayward field, preceding and between halves of the game.

Kendrick W. Siegrist, also of La Grande, and who is a member of Phi Delta Theta, Greek letter group, was appointed chairman of the transportation committee for the features in the homecoming program.

Willamette Swamps Linfield, 52 to 0
SALEM, Ore., Nov. 12 (AP)—Willamette university overwhelmed Linfield college in their Northwest conference Armistice day football game here by a 52 to 0 score. The field was white as experts Coach Koene's men from start to finish, Koene's halfback, ran wild, turning in four touchdowns and 244 yards of Willamette's total of 391 from scrimmage. French, Englebreton and Lang also starred. Willamette's passing attack worked successfully, the Bears completing 11 out of 18 tries for a total of 173 yards.

Linfield made only one first down and that by a penalty.

grossman idea, but said it was a matter that should be taken up with Mr. Hoover and that he would talk with Hoover about it. They all seem to want to get Hoover's idea about it first. Curtis said he thought of getting a better grade of Negroes to lead in the south but I told him that would be the complete remedy.

"Our line of approach is much more acceptable to politicians and to Negroes of equalizing by blackening the democratic party. (than by whitening the republican party; the Negro will go in revolt over the plan of kicking them out of the party or leadership; they will have to take themselves out of the way for the present.)"

"Our talk is down the race problem line, they all see that the race problem must be solved first before anything further can be done, we have the best solution yet."

"Think you should get Dr. Lewis here on the 10th and start some thing, we will never get anywhere talking around in circles; if necessary to see Hoover before it starts off, then go see him and get his decision."

SPORT SLANTS
by ALAN J. GOULD

You may not hear a great deal about him, for he prefers to work in the background and enjoy the results yet whenever professional sport needs to have its pulse examined, "Doctor" Joe Carr, the genial, silver-haired organizer, is likely to be called in for consultation.

When Joe is not running the affairs of the Columbus baseball club in the American Association, he is busy with the management of the National Professional Baseball League or the American Professional Basketball League. The silver-haired czar of Columbus attends to his sports in season.

"Did you know that most of the most successful college football coaches, perhaps over 75 per cent of them, came out of professional ranks?" inquired Joe, who stayed with pro football when everyone else gave it up for dead.

No, we didn't know it. So Joe went on:

"Take Itokne, since you mentioned him. After leaving Notre Dame he played a number of years on an old professional team. His team-mate, Gus Dorais, now the successful coach of the University of Detroit, was with him. When they were looking for an assistant to Joe Harlow at South Bend, Itokne was selected. That's how he got his start and the experience he had in 'pro' ranks was a big help to him.

stronger and in better shape every way than I have been in years. I am 62 years old, but now I feel a whole lot more like I was 40!"

"I tried nearly every medicine I ever heard of without any real benefit, and then I turned to Sargol. Ten bottles of this medicine overcame every sign of stomach trouble, my kidneys don't bother me any more, I sleep fine, get up alert and energetic and feel like a different man. Sargol pills regulated me without nausea or upsetting of any kind and it is a pleasure to recommend this wonderful Sargol treatment." William Hafer, retired capitalist, 640 Gibson street, Portland.

Of peace he warned that it was not "a static thing;" that "to maintain peace is as dynamic in its requirements as the conduct of war."

His own address completed, the chief executive heard O. L. Hodenhamer, national commander of the American Legion, make an impassioned plea for enactment of a universal service law, and declare that the American Legion "desires to serve in peace as it did in war."

TIGERS MAKE 272 YARDS
In total yardage La Grande had a big edge, with 272 yards from scrimmage and forward passes, compared with Pendleton's 155. However, 57 yards were made by fans in the concluding play of the contest. The Tigers made 11 first downs to the visitors' six. Fans punting was better than Temple's, with the La Grande player getting off one kick of over 50 yards, which rolled for 25 more, giving the Tigers a net gain of 15 yards on the exchange of kicks.

After Evans was injured Stoddard went into the backfield. Sullivan started the game for D. Patton, who went into the battle late in the first period, playing a strong game during the remaining periods. The line deserved special mention, especially Guhlman and Berry.

During half time the two rooting sections turned out in old-fashioned serpentine, winding up with mass yells. Through the two groups marched the La Grande Legion drum and bugle corps, adding additional color to the scene. The La Grande high school band played during the game, led by W. W. Nushbaum, music director.

PEACE PLAN IS ADVANCED BY HOOVER

Mr. Hoover said the United States would reduce its naval strength in proportion to any other nation and added amid a burst of applause that the others could not go "too low for us."

In making this appeal for peace, Mr. Hoover made it clear that he was not unpindful of the difficulties along that route. He said this road requires preparedness for defense as well as preparedness for peace.

On the side of defense he said amid enthusiastic applause that he was "for adequate preparedness as a guaranty that no foreign soldier shall ever step upon the soil of our country."
