

Cove Camp Fire Girls Initiate 5 New Members

By Mrs. A. G. Conklin (Observer Correspondent)
COVE, Ore. (Special)—The Nipmuck Camp Fire girls with their leader, Mrs. Kenneth La Violette, held a council fire at the home of Mrs. G. E. Barker. Five new girls were admitted to the group. Jean Miller, Jean Koger, Frances Comstock, Eva Jane Allen and Maxine Towle. This organization is rapidly gaining in number and strength. One girl, Thelma Anderson, was given Woodgarden's rank. Five were awarded honor beads. The latter were Dorothy Barker, Bertha Barker, Lois and Glen Conley and Thelma Anderson. Guests present were Mrs. H. L. Barker, Mrs. G. E. Barker, Mrs. Archie Conley and Mrs. H. A. Hercher. A lunch of cocoa and toasted marshmallows was served.

Mrs. Cora Ahlers, of Hollaburn, Kan., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Milman has been quite seriously ill since her arrival here and her daughter in Kansas has been sent for.

Health Talks

THE "COLD" SEASON
By Henry Albert, M. D.
Des Moines, Iowa.

This is the season of the year when colds make their appearance. The first extensive wave of "colds" of the fall season usually appears in October.

Colds cost money. Tens of thousands of days' work are lost each year, and efficiency for countless other days is reduced, because workers have colds. Besides the money loss, much joy is taken out of life by the misery of having a cold. Yet statistics show that people in general have an average of nearly two colds per person a year. At this proportionate rate the people of the United States should have about 220,000,000 colds during the "cold" season, not to mention the number of "summer colds," which are accounted for in part by hay fever and other protein sensitization. The "common cold" is so common that it has been called "the universal disease."

Some people think that they take cold when they get chilled. Chilling may reduce body resistance, but of itself does not cause a cold. Chilling seems to have the worst result when a person goes from a hot room into the cold outside. To avoid this sudden change it is recommended that inside temperatures should be kept relatively low in homes and offices. Experiments show that school children do the best work at a temperature of 65 degrees. Allowing two degrees margin, the proper temperature for living rooms and offices is 70 degrees. Higher temperatures reduce efficiency and resistance.

The act of sneezing and coughing, or even vigorous talking, may throw a spray from the mouth and nose for several feet. Coughs of air may carry the particles which often contain germs of disease, even as far as twelve feet. Persons who get in range of the spray of a person with a cold are liable to "catch" cold.

Like other communicable diseases, colds are often spread through contact with the hand. It has been stated that perhaps 90 per cent of cases of communicable diseases may be hand-borne.

Some rules to prevent colds:

1. Keep the temperature of the house and office at not above 70 degrees.
2. Wear clothes appropriate to the temperature.
3. Stay at home when you have a cold.
4. Cover nose and mouth when sneezing or coughing.
5. Keep away from houses where anyone is ill with a cold, influenza, pneumonia or other disease.
6. Avoid over-fatigue or sudden change in temperature.
7. Wash your hands before eating or before handling food for other people.
8. Do not spit. Spitting spreads disease.
9. Avoid needless by including in the daily diet a sufficient amount of milk, vegetables, some fresh fruit and plenty of pure water.

"No Operation For Me," Says Mrs. Bender

Here is an astounding letter from Mrs. Marnie Bender of Pasadena, N. J., and those who suffer from stubborn indigestion or stomach agony, distress or misery should read every word of it.

Here it is: "Dear Sir: Just a word of good will to you in return for your 'Duke's Menthin' Peppin'. I have been using your medicine for a couple of years, in fact, I read your advertisement just in the nick of time."

"I had been advised to undergo an operation for indigestion and ulcers of the stomach and was all ready to go to the hospital but asked for a two weeks stay. I went to the doctor and bought a bottle of Duke's Menthin' Peppin' and thanks be to God on high, I am still without that much anticipated operation."

"You can print this if you wish and anyone wanting my advice I will gladly give it to them as I cannot praise your medicine high enough. Yours truly, Mrs. Marnie Bender, 11, E. 15th St., Pasadena, N. J."

Duke's Menthin' Peppin' is a potent stomachic agent with a pleasant taste and is real potent, nature's own remedy for indigestion and many other stomach ills.

It is sold by the Red Cross Drug Store and live drug stores everywhere in America with the distinct understanding that it will help you more than anything you ever used in money loss.

President Hoover says the best of good neighbors is to borrow but a dime a year. If they ask for them they will give them.
