HOOVER ASKS TARIFF ACTION— (Continued from Page 1) fundamental progress had given rise "to over-optimism as to profits which translated itself into a wave of uncontrolled speculation in securities, resulting in the diversion of capital from business to the stock market and the inevitable crash."

"Fortunately," he continued, "the federal reserve system had taken measures to strengthen the position against the day when speculation would break, which, together with the strong position of the banks, has carried the whole credit system through the crisis without impairment. The capital which has been hitherto absorbed in stock market loans for speculative purposes is now returning to the normal channels of business, activity in industry and employment."

past storms of similar character had resulted in retrenchment of construction, reduction of wages, and laying off of workers.

"The natural result was the tendency of business agencies throughout the country to pause in their plans and proposals for continuation and extension of their businesses, and this hesitation unchecked could in itself intensify into a depression with widespread unemployment and suffering."

"I have, therefore, instituted systematic voluntary measures of co-operation with the business institutions and with state and municipal authorities to make certain that fundamental businesses of the country shall continue as usual, that wages and therefore consuming power shall not be reduced, and that a special effort shall be made to expand construction work in order to assist in equalizing other deficits in employment. Due to the enlarged sense of co-operation and responsibility which has grown in the business world during the past few years the response has been remarkable and satisfactory."

Discusses Tariff— Discussing the tariff, the president repeated the portion of his message submitted to the special session of congress in which he asked for an "effective tariff on agricultural products," and "some limited changes" in industrial schedule. He reiterated that he desired "the board principle" of the flexible provision of the pending bill to be retained. Mr. Hoover's views in this connection were disregarded by the senate.

Referring to the forthcoming London naval limitations conference, the president said "we hold high hopes that success may attend this effort." Upon this conference, he added, will depend such moderation as this country may make in naval expenditure.

What this country needs is a non-leaking suitcase for congressmen.

DEATH TAKES MRS. HONAN
livery and feed stable in old La Grande and had large land interests in the county, and was the owner of a considerable amount of stock, mostly horses.

Husband Slain by Indians
On July 12, 1878, Mr. Cogan was killed by the Indians near the foot of Cabbage hill, not far from Pendleton. A few years later, Mrs. Cogan and Dr. M. E. Honan, a practicing physician in La Grande, were married. From then until her death she was a resident of this city. Dr. Honan passed away several years ago during an operation. She has been ill for some time and has been under the care of an attendant.

She is believed to have some relatives in England near London, and possibly may have some relation in Texas, it is said. Dr. and Mrs. Honan travelled considerably, making trips to Europe and Japan, but in late years due to her health she has stayed at home.

The estate she leaves is estimated to be about $10,000. Mrs. Honan was a girl very striking in appearance, and was fond of horseback riding, her friends recall.

The lots on which the Honan hall is built were donated by Mrs. Honan as well as sums for the buildings.

About ten years ago she presented Bishop Robert L. Paddock with $20,000 to be used for an Episcopal church after her death. On the bishop's resignation, she changed her order and allowed them to use the money for the building of the new church. She has always been a good contributor to the church, both for the maintenance and for making improvements, having a big part in the development of this community.
