PRISON RIOT AT END; 12 KNOWN DEAD

gally and you will have to cover us, or we will kill you," Jennings went along.

Guards Captured Three other guards, not knowing the warden was a hostage, were captured when they approached the group in the punishment gallery. They were forced to open all the punishment cells, releasing the most desperate inmates. The officers were handcuffed to each other.

Henry Sullivan and Steve Pawlak, leaders in the July riot, then took charge. Sullivan said to Jennings: "warden, we are going to ask you to instruct the men out front (troopers, guards, police) to get us out with you and these other officers. You will have to give the order, or we will kill you. We are determined to get out or die, but if you fail, we will all die together."

During the several fights that marked the day's disorder several guards were wounded and gassed. George E. Atkins was shot in the face and back and probably fatally wounded. James E. Van Housen was shot in the eye; Albert C. Holschauer was shot in the mouth. In addition to the warden those who suffered from gas were Claude H. Dempsey, Walter Falley, Lucile Huginlin and Milton J. Riker.

Durnford was shot at the inception of the riot when he resisted an attempt by three convicts to seize and hold him as a hostage. With the aid of an unidentified convict he dragged himself out of reach, but died shortly after reaching the prison hospital.

Ultimatum Disregarded The convicts then took Warden Jennings into custody and using him as a decoy, surprised and captured the other guards. Sullivan, acting as spokesman for the rioters, sent out an ultimatum declaring the eight officials would be killed if the armed forces were not withdrawn from the vicinity of the prison.

Their demand was endorsed by Warden Jennings who sent out by a trusty, a note reading, "for God's sake give them what they want."

The ultimatum was referred to Dr. Raymond F. C. Kiehl, state commissioner of correction at Albany, who orders "no compromise." In this he was supported by acting Governor Herbert M. Luman.

Lieut. Perry of the state police who delivered the reply to the ultimatum, added that "if the state troopers come in, they'll come shooting." A few minutes later the troopers made their gas attack, rescued the warden and the guards and in a short while ended the revolt.

Major Phillip G. Roosa, prison investigator for the state department of correction, today was conducting an investigation of yesterday's riot.

One of his first discoveries was that ten guns from the prison arsenal were missing. A morning count of the prisoners showed that one of the dead convicts, previously identified as Luke J. Bunnell, was in reality Julius Stefanek, from New York City.

Additional Tax Cut Held Not Feasible

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP)—Undersecretary Mills said today insufficient funds would prevent the treasury from approving the suggestion by Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, for a reduction from 12 1/2 to 10 per cent in the capital gain tax although he, Mills, thought such a reduction would be the "right thing to do." "If we had the money it would be the right thing to do," Mills said. "I am in sympathy with the proposal but there is not enough income in sight to warrant it now."

MENUS

By Sister Mary

When eggs are high in price, many of us hesitate to use them extravagantly in our every day desserts. The part the dessert must play in the meal determines whether an eggless pudding can take the place of one rich with eggs.

The pudding that is wanted to furnish bulk and sugar to a menu rich in concentrated protein is quite as satisfactory from a dietetic viewpoint if made without eggs. However, if the meat course is light, with meat used chiefly to "flavor" a pudding made with eggs is necessary to build up the meal and make up the lacking protein.

There are various types of puddings that are exceedingly palatable even if they are made without eggs. Hot, cold, steamed and baked, the cooks' choice is wide.

Eggless sweet puddings are especially good in cold weather. Their spicy aroma is appetizing and welcoming, while the sweet itself has the virtue of being an easily digested fat as well as a cheap one.

Tapoca pudding made with raisins, citron, nuts and currant jelly is delightfully spiced to make it pleasantly piquant. This pudding is chilled before serving and is suitable to serve with pork.
