LONDON WOMEN'S CLUBS AID AMITY

Good Spirit Between Two Nations is Fostered by Organizations.

LONDON (AP)—There is a quiet little corner in London's West End where things American and things English blend with the happiest results.

And women are responsible for the welding.

It is the American Women's club, housed in a charming gray stone house on Grosvenor street...

Every Monday all the members of the club who can find the time gather in the spacious ballroom of the clubhouse...

The club also sponsors an occasional sale conducted by the Russian Red Cross and bridge tournaments for the children's and maternity wards of the Royal Free hospital...

Twice a month the art circle and the public speaking group meet under the direction of competent lecturers...

The whole purpose of the club's program is to give a sense of national unity to those Americans living away from home and yet to coordinate it with the life, thought and feeling of life as a British subject leads it in London.
