TRUE CAUSE FOR JOY—Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope: Because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption.—Acts 2:26, 27.

MOTHERS' HOPES

What Chance Have They if Real Music Must Be Sacrificed to Machine-made Sound?

MOTHERS strive valiantly to give their children happiness—a chance to enjoy the richest, fullest lives. Contrary forces forever oppose Mother's hopes. Today, change—speed—urgent work to thwart her longing for contentment. The ruthless spirit of the Machine Age threatens to crowd out all humanizing culture. Men and women with headlessly through life in the clatter of the eternal machine. Now, the machine has entered the realm of the musical art. In this, the Song of Progress? No! Machine-made music can never provide a substitute for the meliorating, cultural influence of Real Music. Those concerned for the future of the race will resent the strangling of the art of music by a mechanical substitute in the theatre. Yet the art will be strangled if this false economy is not halted by public demand. Here is opportunity for Mother and all who share her hopes to cast a vote for preservation of Living Music. JOIN THE CAUSE. Then mail it.

EGGS, BUTTER STEADY; FRUIT WEAKER TODAY

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 24 (AP)—Egg and butter prices of last week held over with the opening of today's markets. Both were barely steady. With the approach of spring there was a slight weakening in fruit and vegetable quotations, notably in onions and potatoes. The latter especially are being partially replaced by the new crop from Florida at a wholesale price of 25c a pound. Texas and California are also beginning to ship their new crops. Green peas and spinach are among those. The green peas wholesale at 15c a pound and the spinach at 33 to 33.25 a crate of 40 pounds. The market also abounds in rhubarb, brussels sprouts, green onions and such bunch vegetables as carrots, beets and turnips, all at reasonable prices. Lemons are considerably cheaper at 30 to 38.25 a box and cranberries are selling at unusually low prices. The Sperry Flour company announced reductions of 3c all along the line in mill feeds.

Political Issue (in the American manner): "My opponent has occupied this office for three terms, in which time he has become an experienced and very useful public servant. Therefore, he should get out and give someone else a chance."

John Dellinger, publisher of the Morning Astorian who died yesterday at his ranch near Astoria, was a newspaper man of the old school and therefore one of the most interesting characters in Oregon journalism. He founded or helped develop probably a dozen newspapers in half as many states, making a business success of some, an editorial success of all, and winning a following of no small size wherever he labored. Always pleasant and friendly, John will be missed by his fellow publishers in Oregon.

After reading the list of questions that farmers will be required to answer for the 1930 census, we wonder if the price of wheat is the only thing agriculturists have to worry about. The census questionnaire sounds almost as bad as the income tax blank, with one consolation. Minor mistakes in the answers won't cost you money. And the compilation of all answers will, without doubt, provide a wealth of information that can be used by the farmer for his own benefit. Improvement of any industry can come only from studious consideration of basic facts. The census will collect basic facts on agriculture that can be had in no other way.

Bend has tried the city manager form of government for a full year and finds it a big improvement over the old system. Total expenditures have been $400 under the budget estimate and the outstanding warrant debt has been reduced from $117,937 to $94,662 in the year. Total expenses are $16,000 less than in 1928—which is an important saving. Much similar to La Grande's experience in years gone by, the record showing that a balanced budget came consistently after the city manager plan was adopted. Centralized responsibility, centralized control of expenditures, the city's business made a full time job. Although there are ups and downs in its operation, Bend will surely find, as La Grande has done, that the manager plan will continue to be more efficient, more economical than the council form of municipal government.

EVERY DAY BRAINS
Dr. Karl G. Miller, University of Pennsylvania psychologist, recently gave public utterance to a thought that is not new but surprisingly novel in expression. Many have thought it without daring to express it. As expressed by Doctor Miller, it is:

"The American college must recognize more fully its responsibilities to the student whose interests are not primarily intellectual as well as to the prospective scholar. From my contact with the parents of boys seeking admission to the university I feel that the proud father wants his son to go through a ripening process, to make many contacts, to become interested in many things, to have a good deal of fun and to do reasonably well in his studies.

"Unless I am mistaken, the inculcation of true scholarship, the love of learning, the inspiration for research—these do not appear in the definition of college education as it exists in the minds of prospective students and their parents."

Had the professor's candor gone a little bit farther he might have said that it is just as well, for how many institutions of higher learning could meet the scholarly needs of the inspired student and how many profound scholars could the world absorb without starving them?

The modern conception of a college and university is not a place where erudite professors are made, but a factory for the development of everyday brains and culture. While scholarship is important, it is not all important. Human contacts that teach one to get along well with ones fellows are just as necessary to success as book knowledge. The well-balanced college provides both.
