The governor's address was of an informal nature. He gave an effective word picture of the city of Washington, describing its national buildings and other significant sites. He concluded his talk by giving some personal incidents about Lincoln. A particularly interesting incident was the fact that Oregon was practically a deciding factor in the nomination of Lincoln as candidate for the presidency. Preceding Lincoln's election, Oregon sent Mr. Applegate, her official representative to the republican national convention. Normal School Discusses Negro In Literature

A worthwhile and entertaining program was given in the weekly normal school assembly this morning. Miss Foley's 11 o'clock class in English presenting a novel type of literary entertainment. "The Negro in American Literature" was the subject that was artistically presented to the students. Miss Vivian Hanson was general chairman of the program. She stated that Negro art has an economic origin, which dates far back into the days of Negro slavery which lasted 240 years and it is no wonder that the negroes are retarded in artistic productions. The appearance of Negro literature marks the beginning of a new period in the development of modern American literature. It was said, "It is typically American in form and dialect."

A brief survey of the foremost writers was made. These authors are representative of the eastern, northern, southern, and mid-western sections of the country. Paul Lawrence Dunbar was the first man to express in literature the sympathies and yearnings of the Negroes. He is the Robert Burns of America. His dialect, subtle humor, and pathos are very effective in his poems and other writings. W. H. Du Bois is best known as an essayist. In 1903 he published his best fourteen essays, which have been collected into one volume entitled "The Souls of Black Folks." Du Bois is a leading sociologist in this country as well as an author. Claude McKay is characterized by his sympathy and forcefulness of expression. He states his convictions fearlessly and frankly. "Flame Heart" is the most noteworthy contribution he has made to literature. James Johnson is an accredited poet, who is known for his excellent dialect. The authors have not been women only, for Lucy Williams is a noteworthy contributor. Her poems are characterized by seriousness and humor.

A group of poems representative of the different authors was read. "Anelina," by Dunbar; "Flame Heart," by McKay; "Creation," by Johnson; and "North Bound," by Lucy Williams were read very effectively. These readings were followed by a vocal solo, "Caroline."

Review Books—Interesting books and plays and their authors were reviewed. "Last of the Lawries," by Paul Green, is very gripping and dramatic. This play will be presented next week by the normal school. Two other important plays are "White Dress" and "In Abraham's Bosom." The author was awarded the Pulitzer prize on the merits of the latter play. Du Bois Heyward is a very human and understanding author, appreciating and realizing the problems of the Negro. "Man's Dilemma" is said to be his best work. Allan Locke is an author of various phases of literary art. Two collections of his works have been edited, entitled "New Negro." They consist of poetry, music, and fiction. Some of his plays have been collected into a book, called "Nigger Heaven." The Negro was awakened to his possibilities in production of literary art by this collection of works.

A group of poems, plays, and novels were reviewed by different students. "Ole Miss Pole Cat," "More Rain More Rest," and "Black Cats," were the poems which were read. "Scarlet Sister Mary" is a realistic novel, a series of pictures true to life in detail, and they are humorous, simple, and they are concerned with religion, and brightened with love. A very dramatic play is "Tory," which has been successfully directed, produced, and acted by Negroes in New York. Tory is a genius with two great passions in life, begging and shooting craps.

SENATE ACTS ON CRISIS IN GRAIN MARKET

SENATE ACTS ON CRISIS IN GRAIN MARKET—The farmer also was a victim of the collapse. The board is endeavoring, through frames of the farmers' own organizations, to help restore stability and expedite recovery from a crisis which the farmer did not create and for which he is not responsible. The measures taken are purely emergency measures in part with those taken by other business agencies of the country, and I am confident that the board members and will receive the support of all thinking business men in its efforts to contribute its part toward the swift recovery of the country as a whole from this situation. The grain trade in particular is interested in the maintenance of stability and the board earnestly hopes for their cooperation in the measures now being taken for restoration of the grain markets. Some 6,000,000 bushels of wheat have been purchased by the stabilization corporation, he said, and in addition, advances have been made on an additional 9,000,000 bushels. The corporation, he added, intends to hold its wheat until the market has improved or gone above the purchase price. With reference to the 1930 wheat crop, large insisted that the board is making no effort to "peg" prices and declines to set up a scale of advances until the extent of the crop and the market situation can be appraised. In reply to a question asking if there were anything the board could do to stop the descending price of wheat, large said, the board still has a sufficient credit balance to buy every bushel of wheat on the American market. "That would stop it, wouldn't it?" he added. Republican Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania says prohibition is going to ruin his party (the republicans) if something isn't done about it right away. Maybe President Hoover ought to appoint a commission of ruination.

benefit from prohibition, adding: "That this iniquitous amendment be nullified is my earnest prayer." Graham sought to introduce a statement from Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, one of the fathers of the dry amendment, along with a resolution passed by a W. C. T. U. organization in Texas, opposing the hearings. The committee, however, deferred action until the dry advocates are heard after the next session. With the remark, "now that we are much perturbed about conditions in Kansas, I'll ask the clerk of the committee to read a news item from Kansas City." Chairman Graham handed a clipping to the clerk. The item went on to say that four seventh grade school boys had set up a speakeasy with liquor found in a cache in the basement of a building. One of the boys, it said, was 13 years old, and three of them were 16. They were to sell the liquor at a price to be fixed by the buyer, because the profit would have been 100 per cent anyway.

Objects to Item—Representative Michener, republican, Michigan, objected to placing the item in the records. He said he had received hundreds of clippings on the prohibition question since the hearings began two weeks ago but he did not feel they were pertinent to the evidence unless substantiated by reliable witnesses. A letter from the Rev. Charles S. McFarland, of New York, secretary to the Federal Council of Churches, denying the charges made by Henry H. Joy, of Detroit, last week that that organization had contributed to the election of Representative Grant and Hudson, republican, of Michigan, was read by the clerk. McFarland advised Chairman Graham his organization had a policy which prevented participation in elections. Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, objected to the insertion of the letter in the records until the drys were heard. After this committee returned to Chicago, Michigan, who lives in Chicago, testified that since the first year of prohibition there had been a material increase in the number of alcoholic patients of both sexes and that mortality in such cases likewise had shot upwards.

Low Ebb in 1920—During 1920, he said, the number of alcoholic cases reached its lowest ebb in the history of the psychopathic institution, which deals only with insanity cases but after that year, he added, the number of cases for all ages and both sexes increased. Whereas the number of alcoholic patients in 1916 was 95, it increased, the physician said, to 700 after the eighteenth amendment was enacted. Before prohibition, he testified,

MAKE PLANS FOR BIG CELEBRATION

MAKE PLANS FOR BIG CELEBRATION—(Continued from Page One) The wear and tear of an active day sometimes leaves business men and women in a state of nervous fatigue. By the time home is reached the evening meal served, the fatigued person is too hungry to eat slowly. As a result of food-bolting, or eating too fast, the discomfort of indigestion often follows. In such cases, a leading Philadelphia doctor recommends drinking a flavored milk beverage in the late afternoon, or eating two or three cookies or a piece of candy. The sugar in this food checks hunger and overcomes nervous fatigue in an appropriate way. Later, the evening meal can be eaten with calm enjoyment.

Such endorsement of sugar should not be overlooked. Too often home diets are lacking in this important food. In this connection the tendency to eliminate desserts from balanced meals is dietetically wrong. Aside from the quick energy sugar supplies, it can help in promoting a more balanced diet. A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt in cooking vegetables brightens their flavor and causes them to be eaten with more relish. As a matter of fact, such use of sugar increases the value of the food thus seasoned. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.
