Old-Time Bicycle Does Its Stuff Once More—Once Held Mile Record

La Grande people who happened to be on Adams avenue yesterday afternoon passed and stared when a peculiar vehicle passed by. The elder ones—who had reached the half-century milestone—smiled as reminiscences of their earlier days flashed through their brains. The younger ones were all curiosity, most of them remarking on how "far it was to the ground in case of a fall."

The vehicle was a 41-year-old bicycle, ridden by Francis Greulich, who appears to be quite proficient in its operation, at least according to present-day standards. It isn't an ordinary bicycle. True, it has two wheels, but one of them is as tall as a man's shoulder and the one that trails along behind isn't much larger than one on a five-year-old's kiddie car.

Francis mounts it from the rear on a little step that is attached to the framework. If successful, he immediately rides away. If not, he tries again. "How to get off?" is the next question and the prompt unemployment conference of labor and capital, feeling that everything possible in the way of executive aid already is in operation.

It was said further that the statement of Secretary Davis in the labor department, published this morning, represented the White House viewpoint.

Davis' Statement The text of Secretary Davis' statement follows: "Senator Wagner makes a great show of indignation that the administration has not been able to overcome the whole of the terrific dislocation of business and consequent unemployment resulting from the stock crash in New York, the senator's home city. I admit that there is distressing unemployment, but for the first time in the history of these events by its actions and policies the administration has held unemployment to less than one-half that of previous crashes, and by the stabilization of business and cooperation of the business world, work is being provided in a way that should relieve most of this within the very near future. While employment for the week of February 17th as compared with February 10th, showed a drop of three-tenths of one per cent, the situation today is greatly improved over the low point of last December.

43,000,000 at work. "It is a fair estimate to make that the new census will show something like 6,000,000 individuals earning a living in the country, and certainly 43,000,000 of them at work.

The construction program worked out by President Hoover exceeds 1929 and in having its effect. The secretary of commerce has announced a seven billion dollar program for the government and other civic agencies.

"But above all, the workers of the country need the passage of the tariff act to remove uncertainty and allow the workers to make in our own factories the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of goods now coming in by import. In fact, the delays in tariff legislation are more responsible today for creating unemployment than any other factor.

"Push the building program, pass the tariff bill, and our workers will find employment."

The members of the interim committee are: Representative Hector MacPherson, of Albany, chairman; Representatives Honner D. Angell, of Portland, and J. E. Norton, of Coquille, and Senators E. W. Miller, of Grants Pass and Jay H. Upton, of Bend.

BOBBED HAIR PROBLEM STILL LIVE IN LONDON LONDON, (AP)—Hard working photographers who can't decide even now whether to "let it grow" may be comforted to know that anguish.

Hair is still a major problem in feminine circles about London. The season's edict that only long tresses are proper has resulted in revolt.

West End hairdressers report that every day they clip scores of hard-grown fringes intended to become heavy evening gowns.

Princess Arthur of Connaught, Princess Ingrid of Sweden, and the Infantas Beatrix and Maria Cristina of Spain are among those who keep to short locks.

The marchioness of Londonderry, Lady Louis Mountbatten, Lady Inverclyde, the former actress June and Lady Anne Hunklo have refused to bow to the hairpin.

WOULD SEGREGATE ACCOUNTS The state public service commission in a petition filed by Fred A. William, attorney for the Oregon Merchants Utility bureau, is asked to require the public utility companies operating Oregon to segregate the accounts of any merchandising or jobbing business they may do from the accounts pertinent to their business of manufacturing and distributing heat, light, power or energy.

FINISHES LEG OF FLIGHT NEW DELHI, India, March 4 (AP)—Van Laver Black, now en route to Japan by air, arrived here today from Karachi, covering the hop in six hours. He will leave for Calcutta tomorrow.

This afternoon they were spending two hours visiting the city water, sewage and lighting systems, the Normal school and other points of interest in La Grande.

the "West's greatest reclamation project."

Stressing the importance of water conservation in western states, the former president called upon the states of Arizona and California to settle their differences on the Boulder dam question. He suggested that Arizonans and citizens of Nevada, Utah and California, as well, take their Bibles and read the admonition "agree with thine adversary quickly."

Mentions National Policy In regard to Coolidge dam, the former president said it represented a national policy and gave a brief outline of the thirty-year governmental program for the development of the waste places of the west.

"This is one of the great national projects," he said. "It will make this country more productive and bring in a larger income. I think you should devote a part of this increased income to bettering the national life. You should devote some of it to a better system of education, and then you should think of more conveniences and comforts for your homes."

"So it seems to me that we ought to dedicate this to the advancement of the nation, to the benefit of education, to the making of better homes and the making of a better country."

Smokes Peace Pipe Following the dedicatory ceremonies, Lewis D. Nelson, Pima Indian and spokesman for his tribe, asked Mr. Coolidge to participate with himself and the chief of the Apache tribe in smoking the pipe of peace.

"For years the Pimas and Apaches fought each other in these hills and until recent years they were bitter enemies," Nelson said. "Today we are going to smoke the pipe of peace and end forever the bitter feeling that caused bloodshed in earlier days."

Governor John C. Phillips, of Arizona, and Will Rogers, ambassador-at-large, participated in the ceremonies. Rogers said he "came over to pay my respects to Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, and to see the dam they got built by using the Indians as an ally."

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge left for the east at 8 o'clock last night, officially ending their western visit.

ing school, where they are likely to contaminate younger inmates in that institution, and too young to be sent to the penitentiary, and others are not deterred from the commission of crime, but rather encouraged, for they think that if they should be so unfortunate as to be apprehended and convicted they may be paroled and will not have to suffer confinement.

"Rather than send boys and girls between the ages of 13 and 21 to the penitentiary, how much better it would be to send them to an institution where they can learn some useful and honorable occupation or trade. Such an institution could be designated as the "state industrial school," as similar institutions are designated in some states. The late Governor Patterson in a message to the legislature recommended the establishing of such an institution and it is to be hoped that Governor Norblad, who seems to have very progressive ideas and policies, will see fit to do likewise."
