NORMAL SCHOOL CLUB PRESENTS ONE-ACT PLAYS

(Continued from Page One) the land of Ponderay. Princess Felicia (Jessie Whitlock) is a vain little ruler who in spite of the elaborate environment finds quite a sparse life, and thinks herself the greatest of all things. She doesn't want to marry the Prince of Ponderay (Allen Carlson) merely because that is what her people want her to do. What she finally does is interesting but don't be mistaken, the whole act is without a deep plot or anything subtle or hidden. A guess from the start will tell what the end will be. The play is good, not for its intellectual feeling but for its surprising thoughts, but because it is cleverly written with wit and freshness in the conversation. Both of the leading parts were played with an ease and an artistic touch that had much to do with the act's success.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Teel have moved in with Mrs. Teel's mother, Mrs. Albia Smith. Arthur Wallace is busy plowing. Miss Lola Gilbert is working for her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robin Gorbett, this week and Mrs. Almendra Carper is staying at the Wallace home.

THEATERS

Sally O'Neil "Found" by Harry Cohn The ability to judge the worth of an untitled actor is rare. In fact, it is so rare that such men as David Belasco, Elton Soble, Mack Bennett and a few others who possess it are few and far between in the theatrical world. According to many, Harry Cohn, vice-president in charge of production of Columbia Pictures Corporation, possesses this ability to pick winners in no uncertain degree. His reaction to Sally O'Neil the first time he saw her is a typical example of his insight. Miss O'Neil plays the leading female role in "Broadway Scandals" the Columbia all-talking, singing, dancing musical comedy presentation now playing at the State Theatre, told a story that is just one of the many proofs of the above opinion. That Mr. Cohn's judgment was good, is proved beyond a doubt by Sally O'Neil's sensational success.
