Noted Artist Draws New Comic Strip of Flying Adventures

Adventure is no stranger to John C. Terry, creator of Scorchy Smith, the story of a boy aviator's daring exploits, which appears as a daily strip in The Observer beginning Monday.

A colorful career in the west, a host of exciting experiences in rugged mountain country and a keen interest in aviation combined to create Terry's enthusiasm in creating the story of Scorchy. Although Scorchy's fearless piloting and narrow escapes are fictitious, Terry places them in realistic settings, of which he gained intimate, first-hand knowledge through following the precarious trails of the fliers during his youth.

Pioneer in Animated Cartoons

Terry first won national fame as one of the pioneers in producing animated cartoons for newspapers in New York. He is a brother of Phil Terry, creator of the animated "Aesop's Fables" and the two have been recently associated in the production of animated drawing synchronized with sound.

Before entering the movie business, John C. Terry was a cartoonist on a number of leading metropolitan newspapers in New York, San Francisco and other western cities. He participated in several notable political campaigns in the western copper districts while acting as staff cartoonist on a Montana newspaper.

Maude Memorabilia "Heut"

In 1906, he won credit for a national picture "scout" by sending out of the city the first plane scraps of the San Francisco quake and fire. He was spending a vacation near San Francisco when news of the disaster reached him. Rushing to the scene, he obtained some excellent pictures and by a devious route managed to place them on a train for Astoria, Mont., where he was associated with The Standard at the time. The pictures were distributed from Astoria to newspapers throughout that section and it was several days before any other photographs became available.

Similar thrilling experiences, his fertile brain and genius for vividly depicting action and breath-taking suspense are reflected in Terry's latest creation, and the one he regards as his outstanding production, Scorchy Smith. Watch for it every day in The Observer.

Nolley Draws News Cartoon For Observer

Lance Nolley, whose striking style of drawing has attracted national attention, will present his news cartoons to readers of The Observer beginning Monday, March 17, an outstanding addition to this newspaper's features.

Nolley's cartoons are based on the important news developments of the day. Tinting his drawing-board over the telegraph table at the New York office of The Associated Press, he has access to the vast flow of news coming to this world's greatest clearing house of current intelligence.

Selecting from the day's harvest of reports on important events and occurrences those which carry the greatest interest for his thousands of followers, he depicts them with vigor and clarity, interpreting the significance of current happenings in the light of their place in the background of world interest.

A New Development

His pictorial comments are then distributed by the fastest possible means of communication to participating members of The Associated Press, so that they may be presented to readers speedily and while the news is still "hot." Drawn without bias of any kind, Nolley's cartoons mark a new development in this field—portraying the news of the day pictorially, accurately and without favor.

Nolley possesses a rich background of experience for his task. As a staff cartoonist for metropolitan newspapers, he has become known to newspaper readers in many sections of the country.

An inherited urge to draw led Nolley to seek education and training in this field immediately upon completing schooling in Dallas, Texas, where he was born. He studied at the Chicago Art Institute for several years and supplemented this training with work under special instructors in cartooning.

Drinking Was Father's Hobby

Returning to Dallas, he joined the art department of The News and later became staff cartoonist of the Austin (Texas) American. Seeking added experience in larger cities, he again went to Chicago and worked for several newspapers there. From Chicago he went to New York and for the past year has been drawing illustrative cartoons for The New York Herald-Tribune.

Nolley is the son of N. W. Nolley, who was for many years secretary of the Dallas cotton exchange and a well-known figure in the south. It was the older Nolley who contributed to The Observer's new cartoonist his inherited talent. Nolley, Sr., was intensely interested in cartooning, which was his prime hobby. When the son displayed the same tendencies, they were encouraged to the exclusion of any other profession.

Mrs. Caroline Neff submitted to a fourth blood transfusion Friday morning. Mrs. Neff is very much improved and hopes to return to her home in Salt Lake City in the near future. She praises Hot Lake and all the many fine friends who have assisted in helping her to recover.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hanks and daughter, Mrs. William Henigan, and baby daughter, of La Grande, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer N. Jacobs, and children, Glen and Walter, of North Baydel, were Sunday visitors at the John Peterson ranch. Mr. Hanks and Mr. Jacobs with Mr. Peterson own an interest in the sheep business so they have been frequent visitors during the lambing season.

The Orrie Burford family has moved from their home in this section to their ranch in High Valley. Mr. Burford has been renting and has now moved back to his own farm.

The J. A. Zaugg family has been entertaining guests from Canada. The Zauggs formerly lived in Canada and welcomed their friends from their old home.

Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Lindsey were visitors in La Grande Thursday.

Rene de Vos Is Main Contender

CHICAGO, Mar. 15 (AP)—Rene de Vos, of Belgium, today still retained his ranking as foremost contender for Mickey Walker's middleweight title—by the margin of a not very popular second-round decision over Clyde Chastain, hard punching Dallas, Tex., youth.

De Vos gained the decision over the Texan last night in the feature of the Chicago stadium's show, his superior punching and more deft left hand enabling him to pull away during the last five rounds. Chastain stayed even in the early part of the fight, and his aggressiveness made him the popular favorite.

Legion Head To Visit At Union Late This Month

By Mrs. L. Z. Terrall (Observer Correspondent)

UNION (Special)—Sid S. George, state department commander of the American Legion, is scheduled to be an honor guest of the Union Legion and its auxiliary the last Monday in March. Mr. George has gained a state-wide reputation as a speaker and his coming is being anticipated with much interest. An open meeting at the Women's club building is being arranged for the evening and friends of the American Legion will be invited to attend.

Attention has been focused on the basketball tournament the past few days and the attendance as compared with other years shows an added enthusiasm in this sport. Some close contests as well as some surprises in the ability shown by some of the smaller high schools have treated the audience to some real thrills. One of the most pleasing features of the whole tournament has been the sportsmanship displayed by the participants. In all respects it has been as big a success as the management could wish for.

Mrs. Viola Parker was hostess Tuesday afternoon to the members of the Presbyterian Missionary and Aid society. After full call and a business session Mrs. Parker gave a talk on the missionary work among the Indians and Mrs. J. M. Johnson read a paper on the same work in China. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Carl Stratton is going on crutches this week as a result of a sprained knee.

The first stevedore reported in Union was caught by R. H. Bonney during a fishing expedition to Willows. He was taken to the hospital the first of the week.

Engene Conklin, of Ontario, has been visiting at the home of Superintendent Roy Conklin and attending the tournament this week.

Mrs. Tom Conley who has been visiting in Union and vicinity for the past two weeks, will return to her home at Spaulds, Wash., on Monday. The Steve Hara family will accompany her home for a few days stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sommer and a brother Joe Sommer drove over from Elgin to spend Wednesday at the M. S. Levy home.

The delegation of commercial club members who attended the annual banquet of the La Grande chamber of commerce Tuesday evening report one of the most interesting meetings ever attended in La Grande. Those who went were: G. L. Hess, Merion Davis, E. E. Conner, C. L. Cudwell, Louis Rifeber, Clarence Rosewall, W. W. Stevens and Cecil Grieg.

After spending three years in Union as manager of the Standard Oil plant, George Winship has been transferred to Herndon, Mo. and Mrs. Winship have made many friends in Union and it is with keen regret that friends learn of their transfer. They will leave the first of the month.

Those singing were: Neva Stein, Pauline Edwards, Guy McTellan, Sam Southall, Gilbert Stein, Wayne Walker, Fern Koffard, Elmer Ahoos, Chas. Burk, Edna Tasker, Leola Lehtinen, Violet Riley, Vera Jensen, Faye Valawinkler, George Anderson, Colleen Plummer, Lavon Price, Lavern Rye, Helen Rimby, Amalgam Rose, Juanita Wilson, Audna Waburn and Mildred Howland.

The second number of the program was a musical play. Those who took part were: Melvin Constock, toy maker; Helen Boush and Charlotte Price, fairies; Lois Himmanson and Winton Buckett, Dutch dolls; Rose Zupan, violet; Ella Jones, rag doll; Ruby Prussler, blouse doll; Mabel Wolf and Irene Allen, Japanese dolls; Betty Cole, Bronita Hochman, Pauline Brooks, Elizabeth Wehler, French dolls; Arion Thompson, Pierre; Lois Holloman who presented a toe dance as Porro; Phil Amisworth, Jack-in-the-box; Elmer Maxwell of Susanna; Gordon Underwood, captain of the soldiers with Albert Helian; Eugene Wehler, John De Fries and Carl Stewart as his men; Audrey Fallow and Vera Hammer, clowns; Rita G. The Rev. Frank Hopkins, who had been scheduled to speak on "Citizenship," was introduced.

During the business meeting with Mrs. William Beery presiding, reports were given by Miss Hilda Anderson, chairman of the social committee for the basket ball night to take place in the near future and by Miss Myrtle Hoyt, chairman of the program committee for the same event. Mrs. J. K. Charlton, historian of the association, reported that the rather unusual history of the association would be completed by the close of school. Principal R. A. Wilkerson is assisting Mrs. Charlton in collecting records and data.

The following nominating committee was appointed: Principal R. A. Wilkerson; Mrs. J. K. Charlton; Mrs. B. Young. A committee to select and order new films for the school projector was appointed with R. A. Wilkerson as chairman.

Gives Review At Meeting of Club

Mrs. Donald Engue gave a very interesting review of the play "Berkeley Square" by Balderson at the meeting of the Neighborhood literature club last night at the La Grande hotel.

This play was begun by Henry James who wrote the first part of it, but died before it was finished. Mr. Balderson revised it and attempted to have it published, but it was a number of years before its unusualness. It is of a man who desired to live in the past and was transposed several generations back to the seventeenth century to find that he did not fit with the past because of his modern ideas.

Galsworthy's "Cromwell" will be reviewed by Mrs. Beatrice Young and Mrs. Stella Jigle at the next meeting, Friday evening in the La Grande hotel.
