PRIMO DE RIVERA PASSES IN EXILE IN PARIS HOTEL

Death came to General Primo De Rivera on the eve of his departure for Weissenhof, Germany, where he was to take the cure.

Interment probably will take place in the family vault at the cemetery of San Isidro at Madrid, Wednesday.

He reached the pinnacle of his career at that time when he broke the Spanish constitution and brought into power the military dictatorship, putting all the political parties hitherto ruling Spain into the background.

Energetic Executive

Throughout the period of power, the dictator displayed notable energy. An untiring worker, he devoted himself to every phase of administrative work and no problem that arose was shelved.

The development of industry and commerce, the financial situation, international relations (especially with the transatlantic republics), labor questions, transports and other means of communication—all were taken up.

Some of his schemes were regarded as rather futile and aroused sharp criticism, but when he could be convinced of their faults he was ready to change his viewpoint.

The absolute military rule of the dictator and his nine associate generals lasted from September 13, 1923, until December 2, 1925. On that day it was announced that a civil government would take its place under the presidency of Primo de Rivera. The change made little difference, as no member of the new cabinet had any party affiliations and no elections were held.

Chats With Parents

RIGHT SUGGESTION

By Alice Judson Peale

When Betty's mother puts her down for her afternoon nap the child rests docilely enough, but surely does she actually go to sleep.

But when it is Aunt Sue who performs the ritual of spreading the covers and lowering the blinds the child always sleeps from one to two hours.

Aunt Sue performs no magic and gives no sleeping potion. She herself is merely perfectly sure that Betty will go to sleep, and it is this suggestion which conveys to the child by her voice and manner, Betty's mother is a worried, over-

SPRING HOUSE CLEANING

Will soon be here. It is a subject which is not so pleasurable. A whole lot of your cleaning troubles will be solved however, if you will go to Richardson's Art and Gift Shop, and get you a can of All-in-One Cleaner. You will positively be surprised how much more easily you will clean your wood-work of that film of furnace dust and soot which has accumulated during the winter time, with All-

What I want is more than a general willingness to admit that democrats and republicans may not know so much about national problems.

What we need today is a new point of view, some way of looking at life that calls out intelligence and emotions to apply to public affairs. The lack of it brings about a general apathy that stagnates American politics. We should break away from sheephood.

"With our control over nature, poverty is inexcusable, yet we have made no attempt to get at the bottom of the problem. We accept conditions as we find them, and answer them with dogmas that have lost all meaning.

"Do unto others as you would have them do to you, and do it first, is our international law. Instead of applying our energies for the safety of Americans in Nicaragua, we need national patriotism for the removal of slums, victory over disease, and solving of the unemployment problem."
