"Song of Love" Now Showing At The State

Belle Baker, star of the Columbia all-including singing, dancing backstage drama "The Song of Love" playing at the State Theatre for the last times Tuesday, is a product of New York's east-side—that metropolitan district that has produced more political and artistic celebrities than any other section of the world.

Her theatrical career started early. She made her debut on the stage at the age of eight. She appeared frequently in East Side music halls, thereafter, and was the first singer to make a specialty of Hebrew melodies.

Morris Gest discovered the talented child and decided to introduce her to up-town audiences. An opening was arranged for her at Hammerstein's Victoria.

Belle Baker is one of the most popular vaudeville artists of the decade and one of the highest paid. One secret of her popularity is her versatility. She sings peppy jazz songs, ballads, character and direct selections with equal success.

Chats With Parents

ASKING TOO MUCH
By Alice Judson Peale
On his sixth birthday Tommy had become the proud possessor of a watch. Almost over night he learned to tell time.
"And from now on," said his mother, "I expect you to get to school on time in the morning and to be punctual to meals."

stimulated by his new gift Tommy did very well for a few days. Then came the birthday party of his little cousin who lived on the same block.
"Remember, Tommy," his mother said, "I expect you to leave and come home at 5 o'clock sharp. You have your watch and you know how to use it. Have a beautiful time, dear, but don't be late getting home."

It was 6 o'clock when, having waited supper for him for an hour, his mother set out for the party to drag away a happy and excited boy.
"I'm disappointed in you, Tommy," she said. "You know better than to be late. I guess you're nothing but a baby after all."

Tommy could think of nothing to say in his own defense, but anyone who understands children can. It is one thing to be old enough and clever enough to tell time, quite another to have the self-control necessary to leave an exciting party. A bright six year old can easily do the first, but many a man or woman of thirty has not yet learned to do the second.

and, Mothers of bright children frequently make the mistake of expecting from them a degree of emotional control on a par with their intellectual development.
In the growth of any child it is usually a long time before emotional control and self discipline catch up with mental capacity.

...in a liner it's SPEED!

in a cigarette it's TASTE!

It is a competitive age—and for most things, an age of speed. But good cigarettes are not made that way. Unhurried ripening of leaf, thorough ageing, painstaking and uniform blending and cross-blending—this is the standard Chesterfield method. And Chesterfield's popularity proves the formula right. What smokers want most, Chesterfield gives in fullest measure—mild smoothness, savory fragrance, deeply satisfying richness and character.
