E. C. MYERS IN RACE FOR POST ON COMMISSION

Senator Kiddle announced here Saturday that he would seek re-election.

Bennett Announces Platform

Senator J. E. Bennett, candidate for governor on the republican ticket, has announced his platform. He favors an income tax law modeled after that of the federal government with like exemptions and one-half the rate, stating that after that, the intangibles and excise taxes should be repealed. He also favors development of natural resources, retention of all power sites by the people, business judgment in support of public schools and colleges, no more issuance of highway bonds until the indebtedness shall have been reduced, protection for the independent merchants of Oregon against the chain stores, support of laborers against too much merging of banks, abolishment of public service commission, separation of different kinds of inmates in penal institutions, aid for agriculture, support of the dry laws.

The hard-boiled business man at last fell in love. But he did not change his style of writing. One day he wrote to the girl in this manner—"In regards to my feelings for you, I refer to letter of the 15th inst."

No Wall Flowers In The Capital; The Careful Mothers See to That

By Sue McNamara (AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON (AP)—There are few wall flowers at debutante parties in Washington. Though the ratio of women to men in the capital is reckoned at 16 to 1, careful mothers and chaperones see to it that winsome debas have plenty of cavaliers.

Because of this wise and determined foresight, the girls fairly dance the soles off their slippers in a single evening. There are no disconsolate damsels draped along the walls.

Star lines often extend half the length of the ball room. A debutante must divide one dance among three or four cavaliers. That makes her look very popular. The same "cut in" without ceremony, Debas smile and nod graciously and a moment later they ditch these partners for new ones.

Midshipmen and cadets in uniform, young men with a foreign accent from the legations and embassies and bachelor members of congress line up along the dance floor. As the evening progresses the "cutting-in" becomes fast and furious.

Debas' spirits must never flag, her smile never waver, no matter

CENSUS WILL BEGIN HERE ON APRIL 2

go bright and early Wednesday morning.

Its 120,000 census takers, reporting to 375 supervisors, have been instructed on how to scrutinize every city apartment house, and sleuth out every hermit in a hut on a remote river bank.

To census headquarters here, every hermit is a family and must be counted as such. Tally must be taken, too, of the mothers out at sea. Everybody counts with Uncle Sam. His aim is to be accurate.

That is one reason why the month of April was set for census taking. It is considered a between-season time when the adventuring "average American family" is most likely to be found at home.

"Americans are god-about and the hardest question in the census is where to enumerate them," said one expert in the office of the bureau chief.

With one of these big brown portfolios under his or her arm, and an assortment of 20,000 possible questions on the tip of his or her tongue, a census taker will come calling on you with two weeks after April 2 if you live in the city, within 30 days thereafter if you live on the farm.

Chats With Parents

By Alice Jackson Peale

It was Gladys' engaging habit to scurion whenever things went wrong with her.

For five years this technique stood her in good stead, for her mother had never failed to respond either with the coaxing tones of compassion or with the vehement anger which told Gladys that she was the center of the world.

dren Gladys decided she wanted crackers and promptly screamed for them. At first no one paid any attention to her, then the teacher asked her what was the matter and screaming still, Gladys indicated the cracker plate.

The teacher explained that she would have to wait until the crackers were passed and asked her to be quiet. She screamed louder. So Gladys was unostentatiously led from the room and told that she might come back as soon as she could sit quietly like the other children.

For 10 minutes Gladys, in the isolation of the adjoining room, tried varieties of screaming, with no results except an obnoxious sentence. At the end of that time she decided she was through. Opening the door, she walked back into the kindergarten room and took her place at the table. Nothing was said to her. She was cured.

A large proportion of children's bad behavior can be dealt with thus simply. Mothers could save themselves and their children endless unhappy irritation if they would but remember that any fault is nurtured by attention, flattering or otherwise, and that being ignored or exiled is the quickest way of helping a child to get over it.

Peanut Cookies (3 dozen)
1-3 cup fat, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons cream, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup shelled roasted peanuts, chopped, 2 1/2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder.

Cream the fat and sugar. Add the rest of the ingredients and shape into a roll. Chill for 12 hours or longer. Cut off in thin slices and make on a greased baking sheet.

Macaroni Creole, Serving 6
3 cups cooked macaroni, 4 tablespoons bacon fat, 3 tablespoons chopped onions, 4 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 1-2 cup chopped celery, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups tomatoes, 1/2 cup cheese, cut fine, 1 cup rolled bread or cracker crumbs, 2 tablespoons butter, melted.

Heat the bacon fat in a frying pan, add the onions, green pepper and celery and cook slowly until well browned. Pour over the macaroni and add the salt, pepper, tomatoes and cheese. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cover with the crumbs, which have been mixed with the melted butter. Bake for 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve in the dish in which baked.

Strawberry Shortcake
1 quart berries, washed and hulled, 2-3 cup sugar, 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons fat, 2-3 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter.

Mix and chill the berries and sugar. Mix the flour, baking powder and salt. Cut in the fat with a knife. Slowly add the milk until a soft dough forms. Pat out until the dough is one inch thick and three inches wide. Bake for 15 minutes on a baking sheet. Split and spread with the butter. Add part of the berry mixture. Replace the top of the shortcake and cover with the remaining berries. Serve cold or warm.
