THE TRUE GIFT—But not as the offence, so also is the free gift; for it through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.—Romans 5:15.

Tulips are opening, lawnmowers are clattering, Easter bonnets are appearing. And the fishing season opens Tuesday!

Don't overlook the necessity for registering so that you can cast a ballot in the May primaries. Voters who have not changed residence and who voted in the last general election are already registered and need not worry. The rest should give registration immediate attention. Under the party system as it operates in Oregon, the results of the primary election frequently determine the results of the general election in the fall. It is generally agreed that the republican nominee for governor will be elected—barring Joseph as a possibility—so the May election is of utmost importance.

PROHIBITION MORE AN ISSUE

Whether prohibition was an issue in the presidential campaign of 1928 is a mooted question, but that it has become an issue of no little moment under the Hoover administration, which is dealing with it by commission, none can honestly deny. Public sentiment was never more crystallized nor the opposing battle lines more tightly drawn.

There is a significance that cannot be ignored in the house judiciary committee hearings, in the widespread interest in the prohibition poll being conducted by newspaper and magazines and in the Massachusetts and Rhode Island referendums.

Nothing political or in a legislative way may come from all this. Congress shows no inclination to tackle new prohibition legislation at this time, limiting its program to the major recommendations of the Wickersham commission. Here and there state legislatures may turn "wet" or "dry" in a legislative way and some local political campaigns may be waged about the standards of these two antagonistic causes.

Most trouble over the situation is felt by the candidates for congress. Congressional elections this year, many observers think, will come nearer to being a national referendum on the issue than has yet been had. Few candidates will get through the 1930 campaign themselves on this "burning issue."

OWNERSHIP OF THE AIR

Ownership of land no longer includes everything from the earth's core to the limit of the sky, the Massachusetts supreme court has ruled in a test case to determine an aviator's right to skim the housetops.

The court gives the landowner full and undisputed authority over the air above his property to a height of 100 feet, above which is public right-of-way. Of course that ruling does not give aircraft the right to crash into that portion of skyscrapers and other structures above the 100-foot limit.

Here is a decision that requires some interpretation. It cannot possibly mean to establish a legal limit or settle the ownership of the air, for there are obviously many conditions under which a thousand feet or more might be the minimum margin. In fact the flier who threw overboard a monkey-wrench at a height of 25,000 feet would be guilty of trespass or something.

The ruling is in answer to a complaint against pilots who skim the housetops too closely for comfort and safety. Wherever there are airports surrounded by houses this complaint is common not without justification, in spite of the few accidents that have occurred.

While the court's view is of interest to property owners, it is of considerable significance to aviation, which can see in it the forerunner of many other restrictions if pilots persist in a reckless disregard for the rights and safety of others.

The probability that the legislature would adjourn not later than tomorrow complicated the chances of the bill coming up for a vote.
