"Parafal" Find Genuine

Seven ancient manuscripts, two containing parts of "Parafal," which were discovered in the city archives of Wasserburg, Germany, have been declared to be genuine. The writings contain parts of poems by Wolfram von Eschenbach, and five long manuscripts from part of the poem "Willehalm," sections of which were previously unknown.

Kilt Not Scotch, Latest—Scotland and England have been arguing as to the origin of this kilt, long believed to be distinctly a Scotch creation. The English have the best of the dispute at present by presenting proof that 200 years ago at Parkinson, an English tidler, while in camp with General Wade, was commissioned to make the first kilt. It then was called the "fiddish bag" to distinguish it from the belted plaid, which was made in one piece.

Drawing the Line—We know that the city housewife demands more and more service, and is less and less inclined to do kitchen work when she can get out of it. But when it is suggested that it will be necessary for the turkey-raiser to evolve a breed of birds with built-in dressing, we positively draw the line.—Farm Journal, 4-16-3 t.

Far-Off Yet Near—Referring to the Andromeda nebula, a galaxy of stars so distant that 1,000,000 years are required for its light to come to us: "The astonishing fact," says Dr. Forest Ray Moulton, distinguished astronomer, "is not that these exterior galaxies are so far away, but that they are so near that their distances can be approximately measured," 4-16-3 t.

First "Angel of Mercy"—Fabiola, the first nurse recorded in history, was a Roman woman who established a hospital and convalescent home for the poor after her conversion to Christianity, about 380 A. D., 4-16-3 t.

Take Time to Decide—Those who are quick in deciding are in danger of being mistaken. Sophocles (496-406 B. C.), "Oedipus Tyrannus," 4-16-3 t.

Evil in Wake of Lie—Lies are the cause of all the sins and crimes in the world.—Epictetus, 4-16-3 t.

Good Advice—Into the well which supplies thee with water, cast no stones, 4-16-3 t.

Displaced Labor—When the sewing machine for shoes was first introduced one man could do as much as sixty had done before by hand, 4-16-3 t.

Success Suggestion—"Do what you like and like what you do afterward," says a correspondent in Farm and Fireside, 4-16-3 t.

Test of Will Power—"You don't need lessons by mail to develop will power. Just pass a piece of paper over a crowd without stopping to investigate," San Francisco Chronicle, 4-16-3 t.
