Vitamin D Held As Preventive

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 18 (AP). — Dr. Weston A. Price, Cleveland scientist, told an audience of prominent Philadelphia physicians here that after ten years of research he has found in "vitamin D" a preventive, and in some cases a cure for the so-called degenerative diseases — cancer, heart trouble, influenza and pneumonia.

In some instances he said he had cured cases of these diseases by the introduction of the vitamin in capsule form, or in less advanced stages by changing the patient's diet to include quantities of spring butter containing a high percentage of the curative element.

He did not mention cancer specifically among these cases.

Dr. Price, with conclusions drawn from spectral analysis of the sun's rays, presented the theory that light is composed of these elements which sustain the spring season and are absorbed by grass.

and particularly spring butter. In the winter, mothers pay high prices for "fresh" butter, whereas the product that has been in cold storage from the previous spring is of much higher value.

"The capsules I use contain a concentrate of vitamins from high-vitamin butter, together with almost equal amounts of high-vitamin cod-liver oil."
