Night Airmail From The North Stolen

His body ricocheted off a sedan parked at the curb, plunged through an open coal chute and terrified a negro stoker in the hotel bath room.

The night airmail from the north was stolen last night, and the driver of the truck in which it was being carried from the municipal air port kidnaped.

Five pouches, two containing registered mail valued at a little more than $25, were taken. The truck driver, Adolph Stehno, was finally set free, and he ran nearly half a mile to telephone first news of the robbery.
