We are informed that American tourists spent thirty million dollars in Canada last year. It seems the scenery is getting prettier over there of late.

Gert—Did you get your husband a surprise on his birthday?

Sadie—I'll say I did. You never saw a more surprised man in your life.

Gert—What did you get for him?

Sadie—Breakfast.

Nothing is so nerve-wracking as talking pleasantly to a man who's leading up to a request for a loan.

Two Frenchmen had a serious quarrel and, after pouring abuse on each other, decided that the only way out was to fight a duel.

But after thinking things over, one of them objected. He protested that they might both be killed.

Finally they agreed to toss for it, the loser to go behind a tree and shoot himself. So they tossed a coin in the air and the loser departed, pistol in hand.

There was a loud report and the winner of the toss rushed to the tree. "Great Christopher!" gasped his enemy. "I've missed myself!"

Cheer up girls, landing the first husband is hardest; after that they come easy.

Neighbor—These luminous paints are wonderful.

Mrs. Johnson—What do you use them for?

Neighbor—We paint the baby's face with them and then in the night we can give him his bottle without getting a light.

AFTER ILLNESS

By Alice Judson Peale

Every mother dreads the period when her child had just recovered from an illness and is perhaps for the first time in weeks up and about and supposedly his usual self.

These are the days of peevishness, of clinging to mother's skirts, of temper tantrums over nothing, and an unreasoning irritability which tries a mother's patience to the utmost.

It is a time, too, when we are particularly anxious not to resort to severity and punishment.

While the child was ill, nothing was demanded of him and everything was done to keep him as comfortable and happy as possible. Now, when he is off the sick list, he naturally tries to cling to the special prerogatives and priviliges which were his as an invalid.

It is almost impossible not to spoil a sick child and the process of unspoiling him afterwards is not easy.

At this time we need to be particularly careful to avoid any sort of strain. If we know that Tommy, who has just recovered from the measles, has a tendency to quarrel with his brother, we will see to it that he is not thrown too much with him during the first days.

We will be particulary careful to provide for him plenty of interesting things to do.

Without appearing to hover over him, we will watch for the first signs of fatigue or overstimulation and either make him lie down and rest or let him listen quietly to a story or some music.

We will aim always to prevent the crises which call for discipline without letting him become aware that we are doing so.

Sino-Russian Mails Slow

SHANGHAI (AP)—Even though mail service has been resumed over the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria, letters from Shanghai take six weeks in reaching Moscow because the route is by sea to Darien, thence via Harbin and Manchuli to soviet land. Until North China becomes settled and traffic is resumed via the Tientsin-Peiping line, this condition will endure.

QUICK-STEP THRIVES on Rough Treatment

NO AMOUNT of decorative skill can make a room attractive when the floor is discolored and ugly. Start with the floor. Cover up the stains with color. Finish it with one of the eight beautiful colors of QUICK-STEP and you have the beginning of an artistic room—a room of which you can be proud. Do not confuse QUICK-STEP with ordinary floor finishes like paint or enamel. QUICK-STEP is neither one nor the other—it is QUICK-STEP and there is nothing like it. It gives a durable, lustrous finish that you can walk on day after day without a heel-mark showing.

It's a real pleasure to use QUICK-STEP. Whether on wood, cement or composition materials, it flows on evenly and smooths out without showing a brush-mark. It dries in one-half the time of ordinary floor paint and becomes a hard-wearing surface that stands up under the constant scuffle and tramp of many feet. Now is a good time to give QUICK-STEP a thorough test. You'll be glad we told you about it.

QUICK-STEP is a product of the General Paint Corporation and is sold by the following dealers near you.
