Y. W. E. A. Banquet Held Last Night

Perhaps the largest banquet of the Young Women's Educational auxiliary since its organization ten years ago took place last night in the dining room of the La Grande hotel with covers laid for 50 at numerous small tables decorated with bowls of tulips featuring a color scheme in the pastel shades of lavender and pink. Stended roses were placed on a few larger tables. Large baskets of lilacs were added to the decorative effect. Pretty individual leis were a feature of the menu.

"The Heritage of Women," an interesting and entertaining address, was presented by Miss Kate Houx of the Ackerman Training school. In it Miss Houx depicted the change of woman's place in the world since the time she was counted as a possession and classed with the chattels and household effects to the period of industrialism and the modern changes it has brought.

"The present is a period of change and no one can predict the outcome, but out of it all, I think women will succeed and wisely," she said. The opening number of the program was a piano solo "Viennese Waltz" by Miss Helen Williams who responded with an encore. Another feature was "Apple Blossom Time" a musical reading and dance by Miss Marion Boyles dressed in a colonial costume.

Mrs. Claude Cooper, who has been an active member of the auxiliary for many years, and a pleasing soloist for its programs, sang for them the last time before moving to her home in California. Miss Mima Cooper, who accompanied her in a two-part harmony with Miss Williams at the piano.

The remaining funds of the auxiliary were voted to be given to the Camp Fire group, to the Methodist church where most of the meetings are held and the remainder to Miss Ruth Margaret Hall, who is now undergoing a series of operations at the Mayo hospital. While here, Miss Hall was a very active worker in the auxiliary in spite of her illness.

Mrs. Elsie Clark, president, and her assisting officers were elected unanimously for the coming year. Mrs. Esther Burnett is vice president and Miss Lulu McNeese was re-elected secretary treasurer. The retiring officers are Dr. Lewa Wilkes, president, and Mrs. Elsie Clark, vice president. Mrs. Claude Cooper was chairman of the program committee for the year just closed and Mrs. Edith Byers is in charge for the coming year.

As her closing address, Dr. Wilkes gave an interesting talk about Madame Curie, the co-discoverer of radium. Miss Mabel Morton led the devotional. The following is the program for next year's meetings: Homecoming, Mrs. Elsie Clark, chairman assisted by all the past presidents; Carrie Jacobs Bonds, Mrs. Faustia Taylor; The Negro in Literature and Music, Miss Alice Kilpatrick; Journeys in Bookland, Miss Blanche Spears; Winter Carnival, Miss Alice Cook; Romance in Foreign Lands, Miss Blanche Clark; Drama, Mrs. Beatrice Young; Spring Festival, Mrs. G. VARIETY IS ESSENTIAL IN CORRECT DIET

Diversified Diet Insures the System Getting Necessary Calories, Vitamins, Minerals and Roughage

Rarely does a single food contain all the elements of nutrition. But too often meals are served without regard to this fact. To promote health, fruits, vegetables, meats, eggs, fish and cereals should be eaten for the contribution each makes to the system's needs. What is more, desserts, jellies, jams and confections may be included. Not only do they contain wholesome elements, but they round out the meal in a most satisfying way. The taste appeal of many foods is definitely increased by using sugar as a flavor. A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt will heighten the flavor of most vegetables. Try this suggestion in cooking spinach, turnips, peas, cabbage, tomatoes and string beans. The same rule applies to the preparation of meat and vegetable stews. Doctors and dietitians recommend a diversified diet. They also approve the use of sugar in making essential foods appetizing. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Simple Costume Can Still Be Very Gay

By Diana Merrill (Associated Press Fashion Editor)

PARIS (AP) — Restaurant ensembles and theater clothes have struck up a style pact. For dining in a public place or going to the theater on any but a gala night the well-dressed Parisienne has special costumes discreet in line but not necessarily subdued in color. The ensemble includes dress, matching wrap, close fitting theater hat or cap, with shoes, handbag and gloves all in the general scheme of the costume. When dresses are sleeveless long gloves are worn. Long sleeved theater dresses have complementary cap-sleeves, wraps, sleeveless jackets or little fur wraps. The matching hat is the high point, in the style sense, of the ensemble. French milliners are turning out endless varieties of the theater cap and hat. One of the chic forms is shining black sequins. Satin kerchiefs which appear to be loosely knotted on the head but are in reality draped in permanent form are a favored stay of matching theater wraps. The satin dress, wrap and turban outfit is youthful and lends itself to a variety of color schemes and combinations. Lace ensembles with lace straw hats, complete even to long lace gloves, are a mid-summer theater style sure to have a tremendous success in France. Theater costumes are slightly shorter than the usual evening dress lengths varying from 12 inches from the floor to ankle length. Sweeping dresses are reserved for wear at formal indoor affairs or in her own home. Trained or trailing dresses are worn to the opera, the most formal theatrical event in Paris, dresses tend to clear the floor, relying on material and cut for formality.

"Wise Girls," Laughing Hit, Now At the State

The troubles of a man with daughters to marry, and of a plumber with ambitions, make "Wise Girls," now at the State theater, a talking picture of great comic importance. Admittedly successful as a stage play, this domestic comedy of J. C. and Elliott Nugent has greater breadth and scope in film form. It is not confined to the home but spreads out through the neighborhood. It brings the laughs not in any forced manner, but simply and naturally, because it tells of simple and natural people. Elliott Nugent more than lives up to the advance reports on his work as "Kempy James" while J. C. Nugent is a composite picture of millions of worried fathers. Roland Young carries still further the comic reputation he has gained in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Holy Night." Excellent performances are also given by Clara Donnell, Norma Lee, James Donnell, Leora Spellman and Marion Schilling. E. Mason Hopper did a splendid job of direction. The picture will be at the State theater tonight and tomorrow.
