JOHN MELVILLE IS IN BUSINESS HERE 35 YEARS

(Continued from Page One) went west to California in 1874, a young man of 20 years. After a year in Portland and then going to The Dalles in 1878, where he was employed by Al Bettington, hardware dealer who is well remembered by many of the older residents of this section. In 1882 he moved to Roslyn, Wash., working in a merchandise store but in 1883 the town and store burned to the ground and he returned to The Dalles, where he was employed by the O.-W. railroad until 1890. In October of that year he moved to La Grande, and continued with the railroad shops from 1891 to 1895, when he turned to plumbing.
