THE HOLY SCRIPTURES—For the Scripture saith, Who-soever believeth on him shall not be ashamed. For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek; for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.—Romans 10:11, 12.

The Observer has been skeptical from the start of the practicability of the daylight schedule with one isolated community trying to adopt it. We did not sign the petition. It makes little difference to a newspaper what time is adopted. There are many advantages, many disadvantages. Now the latter seem to outweigh the former. There is too much confusion. Half the town is on, half off. Many farmers are objecting. Mothers are harassed. Visitors are confused.

What time is La Grande having? At best, it's a doubtful time. Go to the theatre on daylight time and the clocks are standard. . . . Fathers go to work on standard time, children go to school on daylight. . . . Visitors from other towns come in on standard time and find half the stores an hour ahead. . . . La Grande people go to gatherings in other towns and find they are an hour too early. . . . Some business places open at eight, close at six. . . . Others open at nine, close at seven. . . . Some work half way between, some don't know just when they work. . . . The month is May, the day is Wednesday, but the hour is your own. . . .

The retirement of George Selbird from ownership and editorship of the Union Republican cannot be contemplated without regret by every member of the newspaper fraternity in Eastern Oregon. Mr. Selbird, known as the dean of editors in this section, has labored long and faithfully in his community. He is the type of newspaper man who naturally contributes innumerable services to the welfare and development of a town. He has promoted civic harmony while he gave Union a good local paper—and he has always been a prime booster for the stock show and other community events. Although we regret his retirement, Mr. Selbird has well earned the rest and leisure that will now be his. He has devoted a lifetime to his chosen work. His compensations have been many but surely none is more satisfying than the realization that his endeavors have won the high respect and devotion both of the members of his profession and the fellow citizens of his community. That is a measure of success that might well be envied by anyone.

OVERDOING IT

The special coinage menace, for the abolition of which President Hoover recently took the initial step, is not a very great one—except to the unfortunates who buy the half dollars, thus providing themselves with a life-long problem as to what to do with them and where to keep them—but it would seem to be a sound principle to end it.

When the scheme was originated it was a clever and intriguing idea; it was an effective stunt for raising funds for commemorating such anniversaries, for most of the special coins have been sold for $1 each, 50 cents going to the government and 50 cents to the association promoting the celebrations. Stone Mountain monument and a number of world's fairs have benefited financially by this method.

Now that it has degenerated into a system it is best to place some limitations on the practice or end it completely. There are too many other cheap ways for congressmen to do favors and for organizations to get something out of the government for nothing. Even though the cost be negligible, it is unwise to encourage systems for getting something for nothing out of the government.

Things of this sort are too good to be spoiled by abuse, but they always are. Worthwhile movements originate them only to see them taken advantage of by the unworthy. Precedents are embarrassing, if not dangerous, in a democracy.
