"CANNON ERA" IN ART PASSES

In the opinion of the Pennsylvania State Art Commission, which has been endowed with broad powers in the field of monuments and public works, "cannons to the right of them, cannons to the left of them, cannons in front of them and cannons to the rear of them" may be an appropriate setting for a war, but in peace the cannon sounds a discordant note in the harmony of public architecture and landscape.

The commission, which has supervision over all buildings, monuments and other structures erected on public grounds, have adopted, as a settled policy, a rule that cannons are not to be placed in public places except for temporary display. It fails to see anything ornamental or inspirational in munitions of war, finding them, on the contrary, to be symbolical of death and destruction and not even commemorative of the heroism and sacrifice of those whose memory they are intended to perpetuate.

This ban and the reasons advanced for it are certain to arouse to protest those who mistake militarism for patriotism, but no one will object on aesthetic grounds. Congressmen who obtained for their districts captured or surplus artillery pieces at the close of the World war inflicted an injury, rather than conferred a benefit, upon the communities which received them. Having no other place to put those evidences of service to the constituency, the recipients have propped them up in public parks and squares at the sacrifices of beauty and dignity.

Air Safety Need Unites Nations; Plan Paris Meet

PARIS (AP)—The question of safety in the air has already united 17 nations in collaboration to make flying safe and therefore cheaper. The 17 countries which have definitely adhered to the new organization will hold their first congress in Paris in December and by that time it is expected most of the other countries will have become members.

Each country has agreed to furnish data on everything pertaining to safety in the air.

The United States was one of the first countries to give its support to the new international body. Seven groups and six sections at the congress will look after the general organization of safety in all countries, statistics of accidents, general problems of security, application of remedies, physical fitness of pilots, safety in meth-

THE LAST CHORE

In the cooking school conducted under the auspices of the Observer this week, Mrs. Beth Bailey McLean stresses modern methods of cooking. Naturally then, she uses and recommends Crisco, the modern shortening.

Date Sticks good for youngsters

One mother I know realizes that her children need sweets. So she provides home-made confections like these Date Sticks. Made after this tested Crisco recipe, they satisfy the craving for sweets in a wholesome way. As nearly as possible all of the fuss and bother have been kitchen-tested out of Crisco recipes and a satisfaction added—the satisfaction of using a modern shortening which lends its own fresh flavor to the foods made with it.

Mix Crisco and sugar well. Add sour milk which has been mixed with soda. Then add flour which has been sifted with salt and baking powder, and fold in nuts and dates. Pour into shallow Criscoed pan and bake 20 minutes in moderate (350° F.) oven. Cut into narrow slices while still warm and roll in powdered sugar. These cookies will take the place of less wholesome sweets for the children.

Fluffy? Yes, Crisco is now so fluffy you don't have to cream it.
