THE STRONG MAN'S TASK—We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves.

The world was made in six days. That was before the senate was created.

"The Filipinos are as capable of voting as the people of Chicago or Philadelphia." Would you call that damning with faint praise or just plain knocking?

Lame ducks, wounded vanities, split cardrums, political heartbreaks and lost voices account for Washington's having the largest medical population of any city.

WEALTH Opinions differ as to whether the stock market is the road to wealth. Surely the billions of actually realized profits, earnings, savings and bequests held in trust by savings banks, life insurance companies, trust companies and similar institutions mean more in the lives of the people than the mirage of stock-market fortunes.

These holdings keep on increasing whether the market goes up or down. They are invested in a manner largely independent of temporary fluctuations on the stock exchange, and they represent, with other conservative investments, the backbone of individual prosperity.

While the ability to produce wealth will continue to be a distinctive national asset, the conservation of savings deserves more honor than has been accorded it in the past.

NOW ONE IN SIX Thirty years ago less than three per cent of American youth of college age was securing higher education.

No nation has ever suffered from an overdose of education, and the United States is now in no danger of over-education. The unemployed are not college men and women, nor are the recent graduates poured into the professional ranks starving or becoming public dependants.

Hundreds of thousands of graduates have been turned out by the institutions of higher learning since the war, yet with those large numbers only one in 40 adults is a college graduate and one in 20 of the remainder has had some college training.

This is the day of the educated person and the supply has not yet exceeded the demand. Helping to make possible the absorption in business and industry of the educated hordes is the displacement of labor by machinery.

The truly educated man will find a place for himself. The miseducated untrained must have a place created for them. Which suggests that there is a reciprocal relationship between education and modern business which has worked to the mutual benefit of business and the educated man and woman each making the other possible.

Health Talks MORE THAN A FAINT The simple faint is an alarming but not dangerous condition.

It is due to inadequacy in the blood supplied to the brain. It can be corrected by placing the patient in a position where his body is flat and his head a little lower than the rest of his body.

Occasionally, however, what appears but a simple faint, may in actuality be a much more serious condition.

For example, an individual falling and striking his head may suffer concussion or brain injury.

In hot weather, the faint may be due to sun-stroke or heat-stroke. The faint of an old person may be due to apoplexy and again, the sufferer's unconsciousness may be due to poisoning.

Often the cause of the faint may be gathered from the events preceding it.

Where the faint is very definitely known to have been due to such simple conditions as fatigue, fright, anxiety, pain or deep emotional disturbances, the sufferer will respond to simple treatment such as described above.

Where, however, there is a history of injury to the skull or where the person is aged or feeble, or shows paralysis, bleeding from the mouth or ears, or other exceptional symptoms, it is unwise to depend upon first-aid alone.

Sun-stroke, heat-stroke, concussion, apoplexy and like conditions demand expert attention, and frequently the very life of the sufferer depends upon how expeditiously such help is secured for him.

Chicago "Pit" To Have Skyscraper As Its New Home

By Walter Brown (Associated Press Staff Writer) CHICAGO (AP)—Only the excited shouts and jerky gestures of the white-coated traders will be carried over to the new $12,000,000 home of the board of trade when it moves this month.

The old furnishings, many of the old practices, will be left behind in the temporary Clark street structure which the board has occupied since 1925.

The eleventh home of the historic and largest grain exchange, is on the site of the tenth home—at the head of La Salle street, looking north through Chicago's financial canyon.

44 Stories It is 44 stories from the street level to the pedestal upon which Ceres will preside. The goddess of agriculture, 40 feet tall, built of aluminum will stand atop the structure, a drop of 608 feet from her head.

The trading room is on the fourth floor, 167 feet by 111 feet, five stories high.

There are the traditional "pits" where trading in grain futures is done, one for wheat, the largest, and then corn, oats and rye.

Electric lights flash quotations; the clock ticks at Arlington; electric recorders; insulated walls and floors to deaden sound, with ornate and lighting fixtures in modern design, are new to "Pit" surroundings.

Most of the 44 stories are given over to offices.

Started in 1838 Trading in grains in Chicago began as far back as 1838, but not until 10 years later was a market established. Eighty-two merchants organized the Board of Trade of the City of Chicago.

After occupying several rented rooms the board had its own house in 1860. There were 1,558 members. In 1865 it was a tenant in the chamber of commerce building.

The Chicago fire drove it out in 1871 and business was done in a wigwag.

The next year the exchange was in the rebuilt chamber of commerce building.

The most famous of the exchanges' abodes was built in 1888 on the present site.

In 1911 Philip S. Armore unsuccessfully sought to convert the wheat market; Patton virtually succeeded and Arthur Cullen began a spectacular career in grain and stock speculation.

It was the "pit" of stage and novel. The facts of its history were more glamorous than the fiction.

DOES 88 HOLES OF GOLF ON HIS 83RD BIRTHDAY LONG BEACH, Cal. (AP)—Major C. P. Mathewson is literally shaking his golf mallets against time and change.

On his recent eighty-third birthday he took a tour of eighty-three holes of golf on the municipal course here, just to prove to himself that he is not growing old and that he is still up to his game.

He started out in the early morning hours with an 88 for the first round, and wound up with 101 for his final eighteen holes at 5 p. m. Major Mathewson figured that he walked 18 miles and took 104 strokes for an average of 4.8 per hole.

In frontier days an Indian scout in western Nebraska, Major Mathewson took up a job at Paterson Springs, Fla., when he was 22. He struck upon the marathon idea five years ago.

Creation of New Group Banks Is Opposed, Adams

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP)—Opposition to creation of new banks by group systems in communities already served adequately and to establishment of branches outside metropolitan districts, was expressed today before the house banking committee by Elmer E. Adams, president of the First National Bank of Fergus Falls, Minn.

He said he was not opposed, however, to the acquisition of existing banks by the group systems, and that "individual banks which are on their feet have no fear of being unable to compete successfully with group banks unless unfavorable legislation is passed."

"The unfortunate situation which has developed in the northwest and in some other parts of the country," he added, "is not in our opinion due to the failure of the present system of banking but because congress and legislatures have permitted the establishment of banks with too small capital and in communities which were unable to support them."

Ernest Torrence In "Untamed" At The State Ernest Torrence has taken his Scotch accent out of the northlands, dusted it thoroughly, and is using it in Joan Crawford's first all-falling picture, "Untamed," which will come Wednesday to the State theater.

The gigantic Ernest was brought to this county originally to play a very Scotch Scotchman in musical comedy. For years he aired his natural Highland tongue in scores of stage productions.

During the last decade, however, he has been in silent pictures and there has been no need for the peculiar intonation of those who come from Glasgow, Edinburgh or points north.

"Untamed," however, gave him his first Scotch role in talkies—and the "burr" which had almost disappeared from the Torrence diction, has returned miraculously overnight.
