THE KINGDOM OF GOD—For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power.—1 Cor. 4:20.

Senator Simmons, dean of the United States senate and a national figure in democratic politics, was defeated for re-nomination. North Carolina, it seems, is not proud of its republican majority of two years ago — or of Simmons' support of Hoover.

King Carol is on the Rumanian throne at last. And while the rest of the civilized world may be somewhat shocked at the national enthusiasm for this prodigal prince, it is well to remember that kings today are kings very largely in name only. It's easier to look up to an adult figurehead than to a child monarch, and serving in that capacity is about all Carol is expected to do.

People who are not ordinarily interested in the world of sport may find some food for thought in the performance of Frank Wyckoff on Saturday in Chicago when he bettered the world's mark in the hundred yard dash. For many, many years the record had stood at 9.6 seconds. Many track experts thought it unlikely that the time would ever be lowered. But last year Tolon, of Michigan, beat the old record a tenth of a second and now Wyckoff runs it in 9.4. His performance is just one bit of evidence that there's nothing in the world that can't be improved on to some degree. When the height of speed or perfection or efficiency seems to have been attained, along comes someone to do the job just a little better than the previous record holder. That's typical of American progress and indicates what we may expect of the future.

School elections, under ordinary circumstances, go by default. People find it difficult to be seriously interested and a handful of loyal citizens do the voting. Such a condition should not exist. The schools are the most important consideration we have, especially from the taxpayer's standpoint. Forty-two cents of every tax dollar in Union county goes for schools. Therefore the coming school election deserves some attention. The men to be chosen will have authority over the taxpayer's pocketbook that should not be lightly given. Choose your directors with special thought to their business ability, their financial judgment, their broad-minded and impartial attitude toward school officials. Go to the polls and vote. The school election is always of utmost importance and should be regarded in that light.

WORTHY OF HEARTIEST SUPPORT

As The Observer has often remarked, there is no single event in the county year that is more important from the standpoint of county development than the Eastern Oregon Livestock show at Union. It's there that the foundation is laid for continued interest and greater enthusiasm for stock raising, for dairy expansion, for agricultural efficiency throughout this and adjacent valleys. The stock show has been the greatest influence for progress on this valley community that we have had. And rightly so. No where else in Oregon outside the International and the State Fair is there a finer aggregation of stock than at the Union show. It brings a number and quality of exhibits each year that is worth going long distances to see. And this year there will be special attractions for many visitors in the special race programs to be offered. With good weather, the show should break all records for attendance. Surely it is worthy of everyone's heartiest support.

Wisconsin's Cheese Industry Is Result of Crop-Wrecking Pest

MONROE, Wis. (AP)—A little town in Wisconsin has made the world's cheese. Green county looks back to the root crop disaster of 1834 as a place of responsibility for an industry now worth $2,000,000 a year. It was the church, hay, wood, wheat and corn crops, that gave Wisconsin an industry that has grown until now produces 300,000,000 pounds of American cheese, milk and buttermilk cheese—most of it from the output of the Wisconsin states. As the soil went toward the south to diversify its agriculture, the church lay down the flag and into a business that makes it one of the wealthiest states in the Union. The industry in Green county as begun 35 years ago by Swiss settler families, but the production of cheese in Wisconsin can be traced back as far as 1827 when Maria Rockwell began a small home industry in Jefferson county. Most of the early cheese was made in the homes, with longer equipment. As early as 1834 Wisconsin cheese was sold in barrels in Chicago for as little as 3 cents a pound. One of the first agricultural co-operative ventures in the United States was begun by a Wisconsin county farmer who came to Wisconsin in 1840, driving a herd of 10 cows from Ohio. The next year he took in the milk from 10 cows owned by four neighbors, manufactured cheese and divided the profits at the end of the year. Jacob Karlen almost made himself a social outcast by making the first hamburger near Monroe. Townsfolk held their noses as Karlen's wagons passed through the streets. But Karlen and his cheese became good customers at Monroe banks and under those conditions matters readjusted themselves. There now are 2,400 cheese factories in Wisconsin.

King of Butlers Is In Cast Of 'Untamed'

With the death of John Mackinnon and the partial retirement of Charles Green, a new claimant has arisen for the honors of being the "King Butler" of the screen. For years Mackinnon, robust ex-British military band-leader, had undisputed claim to the title. Close on his heels, however, came Charles Green, who is perhaps the only screen butler who was ever one in real life. Wilson Benz, however, now replaces these two at the top of that interesting cross-section of players who make "butling" their cinematic specialty. Benz, now exhibiting his talents in Joan Crawford's Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking picture, "Untamed," has butted with high success in "Bulldog Drummond," "The Clinging Vine," "The Road to Yesterday" and many other pictures. He was a highly successful character star on the English stage. "Untamed," which was directed by Jack Conway, is now being shown at the State Theatre.

GENARO BEATS BELANGER IN TITLE BATTLE

TORONTO, Ont., June 11 (AP)—Once again Frankie Genaro, recognized as the flyweight champion by the national boxing commission, has thwarted the attempt of Albert (Frenchy) Belanger to regain the crown that formerly rested on the Canadian's head. Genaro retained his national boxing commission title last night with a slashing ten-round victory over Belanger. The diminutive Toronto fighter had the best of the argument for four rounds but thereafter Frankie displayed the speed and cleverness that has carried him to the top of the division. The fight was a speedy affair from the start to the finish, but the champion fought ahead slowly and surely in point scoring as the end drew into view. Late in the fight Genaro scored repeatedly with left jab and a powerful overhand right.

Golf And Tennis Stars Will Wed Monday, June 30

By Thomas T. Topping (Associated Press Staff Writer) PARIS, June 11 (AP)—On the stroke of noon, Monday, June 30, the chimes in the tower of Sainte Clothilde church will ring gaily to announce the wedding of Madeleine Simons Thlon, de la Chaux, queen of the French golf kingdom, and Rene LaPostolle, tennis Napoleon of world's tennis. Their romance began aboard the transatlantic liner which brought the two young folks back from the United States to France in 1927. That was after Rene LaPostolle by his victories over William T. Tilden and William Johnston had been the main artisan of the French victory which brought the Davis cup to France for the first time, and it was after Madeleine de la Chaux had made a most creditable showing although not achieving such signal success in the women's golf championships of the United States.

Real Parisian Wedding

The romance was continued in the world of society, to which both families belong, the LaPostolle as leaders in the automobile and airplane industry of France and the de la Chauxes as an old family dating back from the Bourbon regime. It will be a real Parisian wedding. Personalities of the aristocracy of the Faubourg St. Germain, leaders in the world of industry and finance, princess of tennis and princesses of golf, will form that day around the two champions, a circle of admirers and well wishers. We want as little display as possible," Madeleine de la Chaux told the correspondent. The bride's dress also will be simple although the work of one of the most fashionable dressmakers along the Champs Elysees—all white satin and in the latest 1930 summer style.

Will Continue Golf

Invitations have been sent to most of the ranking tennis players in the world and Simons expressed regret that Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, busy at Wimbledon defending her title, would be unable to attend. Wimbledon is likely to prove a similar handicap for the women's tennis stars, preventing them from being present. "Will you continue to play golf?" the future bride was asked. "Why, of course," she replied. "On the 15th of June I shall compete in the French international championships."

Library Chats

Plan Your Vacation Reading "Summer time is the best time for reading," says Miss Doly, librarian. "Because many people think the winter months the only ideal time for reading, there are many more desirable books on the shelves during the summer time. What is a vacation trip to the mountains or to the beach without a book?" she said. The library makes a special concession to those who are planning extended vacation trips and will make up any package of from one to a dozen books and allow the borrower special privileges on the books until September first. "Of course this does not include our new seven day books or any book with a number of requests ahead. Summer time is a good time to read those books that you have always intended to read but somehow has never found the time," says Miss Doly. "One of our patrons is reading many fine standard things from a list, 'One Hundred Best Books.' She thinks summer time a splendid time to 'catch up' on her reading. Those wishing to read along some special list will find lists such as the above at the library or the librarian will be glad to make a list of titles to suit the reading tastes of the patron."

POISON LIQUOR RAIDS SUCCEED

(Continued from Page One) United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle said that the cases against those arrested in the "smoke" shop raids would be given preference and would be taken directly to the federal grand jury without preliminary hearings before a United States commissioner. He said he would ask the maximum penalty where convictions were obtained. He described the liquor as "liquid death" and called its dispensers "murderers." A separate campaign against sellers of poisonous liquor was being conducted by New York City police. One spokesman proprietor was held on $10,000 bail on a charge of homicide in connection with the death of an alleged patron. Mayor James J. Walker, in a statement, said he favored hanging for anyone convicted of selling poisonous liquor declaring the electric chair was too good for them.
