SCIENTISTS WILL STUDY WEATHER

Twenty "Beard Lion in its Lair" on Greenland Ice Cap This Summer.

UNMAK, Greenland (AP)—Ten tons of scientific equipment is on its way to the 16,000 foot roof of Greenland's ice cap, the spot regarded as the "focus" of all cold weather.

The equipment is part of the supplies of Professor Alfred Lothar Wegener's climatological expedition. It goes to a permanent scientific depot on the ice, said to be the first ever manned throughout an arctic winter.

The location is called the "focus" of northern weather because previous investigations have shown that winds blow continually outward in all directions from Greenland's ice cap.

Recently, considerable evidence has been collected that this immense ice sheet is the controlling factor in starting many storms throughout the whole northern hemisphere.

The home of the weather is well guarded against man's prying. The first leg of the journey from here will be made with ice-land boots and Greenland huskies, carrying 70 tons of scientific equipment.

The second and last leg is a stretch of 250 miles, beginning at the foot of Kamanurik glacier. Sixty tons of the equipment will be left in a base camp at the foot of the glacier, and 100-horse power motor sledges will attempt to drag the remaining 10 tons up the slope to the ice cap.

With Wegener are 20 scientists. They will make trigonometrical surveys of the ice cap.

Former surveys have been based upon barometric pressure, to indicate altitude. The trigonometrical heights are expected to be correct to within 30 feet.

Wegener is professor of meteorology and geophysics at the Austrian university of Graz. He is 49, married and has three daughters.

Flora Outing Is Well Attended; Program Feature

By Brock Tucker (Observer Correspondent)

ENTERPRISE, Oregon (Special)

The Flora road picnic Tuesday was attended by the largest crowds in its history. The day was perfect and the grounds were covered with automobiles. The picnic was held 35 miles north of Enterprise near Flora. There were two eating places on the grounds, one sponsored by the American Legion. The program started with a few numbers by the Enterprise municipal band, which was followed by the American Legion drum corps. Next was a song by Ernest, Arthur and Clifford Collinsworth, and a yodelling song, "Sleep Baby Sleep," was sung by Lillian Hoode. The Collinsworth trio sang another song which was followed by "When its Springtime in the Rockies," by the audience. Closing the musical part of the program, Clifford Collinsworth yodelling two numbers. J. A. Burleigh gave an interesting talk, followed by a talk from Daniel Skean, president of the pioneer association. Dinner was served on long tables provided by the Flora people. After dinner, the band played a few more numbers and then various races were staged, offering a dollar prize to each winner. There were races for all ages of boys and girls, also a fat men's race and a pole race. The dancing started about three o'clock. Music was provided by Childer's orchestra. Dancing was enjoyed the rest of the evening. The day was marred by only one accident. It occurred about 10 miles north of Enterprise on the Flora highway Tuesday morning when Mike Crow's car, driven by his son, started to pass Fred Shafer's car, driven by his son, Roy Shafer, and as the road was narrow, the Crow car hit the hub of the Shafer car, over balancing it. It ran on two wheels for a long distance but by the skill of the driver was righted. While on two wheels, two daughters, Enid and Burrell were thrown from the Shafer car, breaking Enid's collar bone and cutting her lip and knee. The older daughter, Burrell was thrown on her head, knocking several vertebrae out of place and bruising her head badly.

Miss Vera Frank, of Enterprise, claims the honor of being the first swimmer to go in Wallawa lake this season. Miss Frank swam in the lake on Sunday, June 8.

Morris Hue, of Enterprise, was working in Joseph last week.

Albert Chenoweth, of Salem, a former Wallawa county resident was in Enterprise Saturday visiting relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. James Woodie, and their son and daughter and their families, who live near Alice, were among Wallawa lake visitors on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Williamson, who are running the Wallawa lake store again this year, have remodeled and practically rebuilt this large cabin into two cozy little cottages. Mrs. Williamson has furnished them very tastefully. It is said that a Whitman college professor built this cabin at Wallawa Lake before anyone else ever thought of living at this resort.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Tucker and son were picnicking at Wallawa lake Sunday.

There were a few early swimmers at Wallawa lake Sunday and there was a large crowd at the lake for so early in the season. There were many people picnicking, swimming, boating and fishing. Many La Grande people were there as well as some from Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Amineno and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Booth and daughters, were picnicking at Wallawa lake Sunday. The pet camp elk came up and was in their camp before long and Mr. Amineno was seen feeding her from his hands. This elk was raised on a bottle by Howard Hudson, of Union, and is very tame. She goes around from camp to camp and gets food. She is very gentle and harmless. If approached right, one must walk up to her without hesitating or she will think you are jumping at her and will strike her fore feet.

Mrs. Byron Mayfield and daughter, Millicent, who has been attending high school in Portland, arrived home yesterday.

The Enterprise girls 4-H club met at Mrs. A. B. Miller's house last Tuesday.

Chief Joseph post of the American Legion presented a two night show Friday and Saturday called "Nights in Paris." Around the dance floor were booths of different kinds, such as hot dog, hamburger and soda pop stands, as well as many concessions. Upon entering, French francs were sold at ten cents each and with these one could buy any variety of things. Music was furnished by Fletcher's Round-Up orchestra, and dancing was enjoyed by all. At the close of the last night a car was given to Miss Cressie Weaver, of Enterprise.

Gene Sarazen travelled 3,000 miles by train to play a famous last winter annual and first prize in the $25,000 Agua Caliente Open golf tournament. At the last moment he decided this June that traveling a similar distance across the ocean for another shot at the British Open was too much—even for a hunch-player. As a result the American challenge for the classic title at Holyhead consists of three amateurs—Bobby Jones, George Von Elm, Don Metz.

Four pros—Leo Diegel, Horton Smith, Jim Barnes, Mac Smith.

This squad makes up in class what it lacks in numbers. It is now no better than a 2 1/2 to 1 wager that Jones captures the championship. It is no better than even money that the British crown comes to the United States for the ninth time in ten years.

Jones has won the event twice and Barnes once. Diegel and Mac Smith, on separate occasions, had the title in their grasp, only to see it flutter away in the riotous drive down the stretch. Von Elm has been well up in the running at least twice and is the best bet among the amateurs, outside of Jones, the kid himself.

Electric Company May Face Action

SALEM, Ore., June 12 (AP)—Unless the Gold Beach Electric company desists from what is alleged to be a violation of orders of the state highway department and of the law in the installation of power line equipment through Gold Beach and towards Wedderburn, suit will be instituted by the commission to have the company declared a nuisance. J. M. Devers, attorney for the commission, said that the commission had instructed him to sue if necessary.

Relative to state highways the law requires that power concerns must place their poles and lines in whatever position along the highway the commission tells them to. The rule the commission follows when more than one company has right of way along a state highway is to require them to use the same pole line. If a company does not comply with the commission's orders the law provides that it may be declared a nuisance, Devers says.

SMILING SKY BEAMS UPON STOCK SHOW

Joseph Speaking

In addition to the racing events and the arena contests, including some boxing and music by the Union band, the chief feature of the program is the actor's being given by George H. Joseph, of Portland, republican candidate for governor. Mr. Joseph is addressing his crowd from the judges stand and is being heard by several hundred Eastern Oregon people.

Nothing at the show is attracting just the same kind of attention as was the six horse hitcher. Competition is very keen with four teams, six horses each, of the finest specimens of horseflesh. The horses all belong to men right here in the valley who have this made made this contest one of the outstanding ones to be staged before the grandstand. The prizes in this field are quite fair also, first $150, second $125, and third $100.
