At a charming luncheon and afternoon of bridge, Mrs. R. J. Campbell and her sister, Miss Anne Pederhen, were hostesses Thursday afternoon at Mrs. Campbell's home in Enterprise. Guests included women from Enterprise, Joseph, Wallowa and 16 from La Grande.

Painted daisies in blue glass bowls were effective centerpieces of the luncheon table. The rooms were attractively arranged in floral decorations of white lilies, snapdragons and other blossoms. Luncheon was served at one o'clock.

Mrs. Ira Parker sang two delightful solos, accompanied by Mrs. Craig. Both Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Craig are of Enterprise.

Seven tables of bridge were at play with Mrs. H. N. Ashby winning first honors and Mrs. Clyde Soltz receiving the second award. Consolation award was presented to Mrs. McCully, of Joseph.

PEAT LAND VEGETABLES BRING IOWA MAN HONOR

CLEAR LAKE, Iowa (AP)—Sam Kennedy Jr. has demonstrated that an Iowa can become a "master farmer" even without the traditional hogs and corn.

Vegetables gave Kennedy his title. He grows and markets more than 22 earloads of onions, onion sets, cabbage and potatoes each year. He owns 400 acres of peat land and rents 20 acres more, which produce his vegetables and have given him the highest sugar beet yield in the Iowa-Minnesota territory of the American Sugar Beet company for four of the last five years.

He is a thorough student of peat land problems and one of the most successful users of this type of soil in Iowa.

PIG NEVER PIGGISH UNTIL MAN FORCED HIS APPETITE

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—The pig should worry if a neat civilization becomes self-conscious about him. He has proof that it was civilization that made him piggish.

The agricultural research center at the state college here stands ready to testify that the reason the hog "loves" his food—five times as much as ordinarily would be necessary for him—is that the demands of civilized man, his keeper, for rapid growth in the porcine carcass are the cause of his overgrown appetite.

H. E. Ferrin, swine specialist, says that in their natural state hogs grow at only about one-fifth

Tuning System Provides Selectivity On 2 Tubes Equal to Other Methods

WENATCHEE (AP)—The necessity and value of advertising and merchandising as a means of increasing the sale and improving the price of pears was stressed in a statement issued by the Pacific Pear Growers association of which David H. Roenberg, Medford, Ore., is president.

Approximately $50,000,000 is invested in 10,000,000 pear trees now growing in Pacific coast states; the association pointed out, and the significant fact brought out was that less than one half of these pear trees have yet reached bearing age.

As a result the output of oranges and lemons has more than doubled during the past 20 years, the average price per box also has doubled.

James Gleason At the State In "Swellhead"

The State theater's change of programs today brings that excellent actor, James Gleason, in the "Tiffany" all-talking production of "Swellhead" directed by James Flood and recorded by RCA Phonophone.

Johnny Walker, Marion Schilling, Natalie Kingston, Paul Hurst, Lillian Leighton and a lot of other good artists support Gleason in that A. P. Younger story of a young fighter who achieves success through the support and encouragement of his friends and then gets so swollen-headed that he loses his friends, loses his confidence, loses his girl—and nearly loses his title of champion.

How he regains all that he has lost and holds onto his title is said to provide "Swellhead" with all that goes to make good entertainment—comedy, suspense, action, romance and thrills. The picture will remain at the State theater today and tomorrow.

SEEK TRACES OF OLD OREGONIANS

Scientists Digging For Relics Left by Race Once Inhabiting State.

By Eva Nealon (As Written in Medford Mail Tribune)

MEDFORD, Ore., (AP)—From a mound at the foot of Echo mountain on the outskirts of Gold Hill where the Indian lover once wooed his dusky mate, where salmon leaped high in the clear waters of the Rogue river during the snowy warriors to snare them, where a rapidly disappearing race, hundreds of years ago buried its dead sitting up—the white man will this week excavate skeletons and their possessions to be placed in a museum for the use of scientists.

I. S. Crossman of the University of Oregon, representative of the Oregon Historical society and other scientists will be in Southern Oregon when the major excavations projects is started.

Preliminary excavations will be made earlier in the week at the mound discovered a year ago by Bill Hittle, rancher of the Gold Hill section, whose collection brought from the burying grounds has aroused the interest of scientists from all sections of the Pacific coast.

The pottery, arrows and knives are so constructed as to convey characteristics of a more highly developed people than the Indians known by Oregon pioneers. Just who these people were, who chose to bury their dead on the banks of the river, where the water seeks a more even flow and Echo mountain, heavily wooded with evergreen trees, rises like a monument above their graves will be perhaps be known when scientists view the excavations.

People were allowed entrance to the grounds for a short time after Hittle made his discovery. Destruction of the relics necessitated closing the mound until scientists could be on hand to supervise the work.

Long pipes of stone, perfectly moulded as a Grecian vase, were the first things found by Hittle. "I thought they were some kind of a musical instrument," he said, "but I couldn't get a tune out of them. I then saw what I think is tobacco smoked on the inside of one of them. The pipe of which he spoke is the most beautifully constructed of them all, with a thumb at the end of the stem and a thin band carved round the middle. It is smoothly hollowed out inside and are all the others, but is covered at the end with a substance which is believed to be the remains of the last pipeful smoked.

Skeletons were found of men, women and children, their knees tucked under their chins. As many as five were located in one grave placed in a circle all facing in. With them were the arrows and knives, mallets and stone hatchets which they were taking with them to the happy hunting ground.

A skeleton of a woman with two stone weapons crossed over her breast was also unearthed. No beads nor metal ornaments adorned her tomb. The absence of them in all the graves leads scientists to believe the burying was done years before gold was known to the American native, and before the white man's arrival on this coast.

Broken bowls of stone and mallets, obviously used for pounding and grinding stone corn are similar to those left here by the Indians, well known by the early settlers, as are the many arrowheads found in the mound.

STUDY BUTTER-SOFT METAL TO FIND COMMERCIAL USE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Metals, soft enough to be cut with a knife, which decompose water at ordinary temperatures are being studied by the bureau of mines to find wider commercial uses for them.

Of this group of alkali metals, caesium and rubidium must be kept in a vacuum because if placed in dry oxygen at room temperature they ignite spontaneously.

Caesium, rubidium and lithium generally occur together in nature, it is pointed out. Silvery white and of very light weight, they tarnish rapidly in air.

Discovered through use of the spectroscopic, caesium and rubidium are employed in the manufacture of photo-electric cells. Caesium is finding use in the manufacture of radio tubes. Lithium is widely employed for medicinal purposes. In pyrotechnics, lithium chloride is used to give a crimson color to fireworks and signal lights.

Although the minerals from which these three metals may be extracted are distributed rather widely in nature, the known minerals and deposits rich enough to furnish large supplies are few, bureau chemists say.

OREGON ROAD PARK MEASURE UP TO HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 12 (AP)—Exchange of reversioned Oregon & California grant land for timber land bordering Oregon highways has been authorized by the senate and sent to the house yesterday. The bill was sponsored by Senator McNary.

late governor Patterson. Garden clubs and chambers of commerce of the state approved of the plan and lent support.

The bill is designed to give to the state title to such timber-land as borders its highways, to the extent of one-half mile on either side of the road. This would permit the state to take whatever steps it desires in the matter of controlling unsightly signs and other objects tending to mar scenery.

Great Towers Erected At Oregon Point To Check Up On The Columbia

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—At the Dalles, on opposite sides of the Columbia river, two steel towers have been erected by the United States geologic survey for the purpose of gaining more accurate knowledge of the habits of the great stream.

This equipment, installed at a cost of $7,999 and paid for by the federal army engineers, marks the climax of 22 years of record keeping of the idiosyncratic habits, potentialities of the flow, a time record that stands first throughout the world.

Since 1878 the geologic survey has been gathering data at that point where the new towers stand, but the record was obtained through the use of small boats in midstream and the results were not as accurate as desired. Now steel cables connect the towers, set 1240 feet apart and a 280-ton cable car is swung from the cable and may be operated from either shore high above the water's surface.

Suspended from this car by a long line is a meter that may be lowered and raised at will and which measures the speed and flow of discharge at all stages of flood. At low water the Columbia is 80 feet deep beneath the cables.

Much Information Available As the result of the charts made by the survey through more than a half century of observation much information is available for the vast watershed of the Columbia below the Snake river. Three
