Miss Richmond, Ira Clay Woodie Married June 11

Announcements were received in La Grande today from Eugene that Miss Ruth Eleanor Richmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whitman Richmond, of Eugene, and Ira Clay Woodie were married June 11 at Eugene. Mr. Woodie is athletic director of the La Grande schools.

The following news story of the wedding is taken from the Eugene Guard of June 12:

Miss Ruth Eleanor Richmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Richmond, and Ira Clay Woodie were married Wednesday evening at a garden ceremony held at the home of the bride's parents at 748 Eleventh avenue west. The Rev. Fred J. Clark performed the ceremony at eight o'clock.

The service took place in a beautiful setting before a trellis of roses in the garden. Palms were banked against the trellis. The many flowers, plants and shrubs added to the setting.

The couple was unattended. The bride wore a dress of green tulle with a corsage of gardenias, sweet peas, and Ophelia roses.

A group of fifty relatives and friends was invited. An informal reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. A. A. Pompe, of Vancouver, Wash., Mrs. L. D. Pierce, and Mrs. Henry Halverson presided at the summer table.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodie are to live in La Grande the coming year where he will teach. Both are former students of the University of Oregon. Mr. Woodie is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity and was well known as an athlete.

Irma Underwood And K. M. Clisby Wed In Portland

The marriage of Miss Irma Underwood, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Underwood, formerly of La Grande, and Keith Meric Clisby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Meric Clisby, took place Wednesday evening at the first Presbyterian church in Portland. Preceding the ceremony at which Bishop Titus Lowe, of the Methodist church, officiated Mrs. Margaret MacManus, instructor in violin at the Oregon State college, planned a charming 30-minute program, accompanied by Edward Courson. Miss Caroline Whitney also gave two beautiful violin selections. The wedding was very beautiful and very impressive commencing throughout to all that a formal church service should be.

In the bridal party were Miss Vera Kienast, of Bellingham, Wash., maid of honor, while the bridesmaids were Miss Dorothy Brown, of this city, now a student at the University of Washington, and Miss Naomi Hohman, of Portland, a student at the University of Oregon. Little Anna Louisa Sigurdson was the flower girl.

The bride's gown was of white tulle with a chanel model. The tulle wedding veil was held in place by a close fitting rose point lace cap. Her bouquet was of royal lilies. Miss Kienast wore a chiffon dress in pastel shades, carrying a bouquet of spring flowers, while Miss Brown's gown was of powder blue chiffon, and her flowers were pink sweet peas and roses.

Harold Hawkins of Bellingham, Washington, served Mr. Clisby as his best man and fraternity brothers were ushers. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the church services.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Oregon where she was affiliated with the Kappa Alpha Theta society. The bridegroom is an alumnus of the University of Oregon. He is a member of the Sigma Xi fraternity. After a trip through California Mr. and Mrs. Clisby will spend the summer in Seattle.

Few Mushrooms Left In Hills Around Kamela

By Mrs. C. E. Thornburg (Observer Correspondent)

KAMELA, Ore. (Special) — Although Kamela is still enjoying sunshine and summer weather, it has been much colder this week on account of the wind. Sometimes the air has been filled with dust coming over the hills from the Pendleton district. Mushrooms are still being brought in, but their season is about over. There have been many sheep in the woods around Kamela this spring, that it is almost impossible to tell much about the huckleberry crop. The sheep have eaten the bushes. It is reported that in some places, the huckleberries were found to have been frozen.

Logging activities in Meacham, which were halted by the rainy weather, have resumed. R. Hawes, of Kamela, who works for the Casey Lumber Co. there, had not worked for several weeks.

ing, here are some points you ought to bear in mind.

First, rid yourself of the superstition that every drowning person sinks three times before he goes down.

Some sink once and for all time and others may bob up and down many times.

You can help the person by remaining on shore, do so; you may be of greater help to him in this position than in the water.

You can help by throwing out some object that will float and to which he can hold on until aid comes. This object doesn't always have to be a life preserver. A log, or any fairly large piece of wood will suffice for this purpose.

If he is far out, you have to go after him. If you have a boat handy, your problem is easy. If you can swim well the matter isn't very hard or dangerous provided you bear in mind a few simple points.

Swim out as quickly as possible but don't exhaust yourself going out. Remember you've got to come back and bring the drowning person with you.

While swimming out, keep your eye on the drowning one. If he goes down, you will want to know the exact spot.

If he does go down below the water you can sometimes locate him by the air bubbles.

When you are near the victim, first calm him by reassuring him that you are going to help him, then take hold of him by the hair or by his coat collar, or swimming suit, and draw him after you. In this position, his face is up and out of the water and he can breathe.

The so-called death grip of the drowning person is more fatal than fact. A drowning person becomes exhausted quickly and is no match for the rescuer.

When you have finally gotten him on the shore, look to see if he is breathing. If not, apply artificial respiration and send for a doctor.

If you are in doubt, give the drowned one the benefit of the doubt and try the prone-pressure method of resuscitation.
