Effect of Ivy on Stucco

The bureau of standards says that ivy will not cause a stucco house to crack. It will, however, tend to prevent evaporation of the moisture from the walls after rainfall, with consequent possible dampness in the house. The tendrils of the ivy may bore into the stucco and may cause disintegration at these points, provided the stucco is not of good quality.

Gathering Life's Joy

The joy of life comes in its by-products. The man seeking fame is a sorry man, if his eyes are so closely on his objective that he cannot see the things by the wayside. The miles we walk or ride are avenues of adventure if we have the wit to see it!

HOOVER TO SIGN TARIFF MEASURE

The chief executive sees in the flexible clause a much-needed "progressive advance" giving "erect hope of taking the tariff away from politics, lobbying and log rolling." He regards the bill, too, as the fulfillment of the republican party's pledge to protect the markets of agriculture and the wages of labor and of his own requests for a "limited" revision of the customs schedules.

All this Mr. Hoover made clear in a statement issued for publication today, in which he bluntly asserted his intention of approving the bill and then proceeded to an analysis of its contents. Immediately the tariff took on the aspect of a major issue in the coming congressional elections, with the democrats and the independent republicans for the west arrayed against the administration.

It was learned the latter group, which failed in its effort to keep the export debenture plan in the bill, is preparing for an intensive campaign in the farming states and is counting upon Senator Borah as its principal speaker. Two years ago Borah campaigned for Mr. Hoover's election.

The president himself will journey across the western tariff battle-ground this summer. In addition, such veteran champions of the protective policy as Vice President Curtis and Senator Watson, of Indiana, the republican leader, are considering speaking tours to meet the challenge of the independents. In his statement, Mr. Hoover placed responsibility for the rate schedules squarely upon the shoulders of congress.

"Certainly," he said, "no president, with his other duties, can pretend to make that exhaustive determination of the complex facts which surround each of these 2,300 items, and which has required the attention of hundreds of men in congress for nearly a year and a third."

After quoting the republican tariff plan of two years ago and citing statistics in support of his contention that the bill constitutes a limited revision and will be of advantage to the farmer, Mr. Hoover devoted a large portion of his statement to the flexible provisions.

No tariff law can be perfect, he said, and changing economic conditions require change in the import duties. In the flexible provision he saw the remedy for this situation, he said, which should make a congressional revision, with its resultant agitation and business uncertainty, unnecessary for years to come.

"Conditions in Chicago are better than in any big city in the country except for a few racketeers and I defy any city to show a cleaner record than Chicago.

"I have stood 500,000,000 tons of pressure and I've stood it manfully and this is what I get. I am not making any alibi. I'll put my record against that of any other chief of police.

"I engaged the best men in the profession, professors of the University of Chicago, for example, the ablest and most incorruptible men. I organized the traffic safety and the educational commission which effected a saving of more than 100 lives in a year. I have fought for more police, more cars, and done everything to make Chicago a great city.

"But I have met an insurmountable obstacle. By that, I mean prohibition and I don't give a damn who knows it.

"The reason I am resigning is to give them all a free hand and let them stick their noses into it and find out what they can. All this has made it impossible for me to function."
