GODS TEMPLE—Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?—1 Cor. 3:16.

Finding the cause and cure for the common cold will spoil a good excuse for spending blue Mondays at home.

Trade variations arising from seasonal influences have been cut down in extent until the "summer slump" has virtually disappeared. No longer does the sultry season take all the pep out of business.

EXTENDING AIR LINES

The department of commerce at Washington is this year adding 3,000 miles to the nation's lighted air trails and erecting 20 new radio stations for receiving and sending weather reports for the guidance and protection of air traffic.

This is being done for aviation by the government because the cost is great and air transportation has not yet been able to bear the cost of its own airways.

The lighthouses of aviation which light the way for night fliers from coast to coast and border to border are now followed by only a few carriers of the night mail, transport planes and "tramps," but the day is near at hand when these beacons will be the guideposts of a voluminous traffic.

Not less warranted is this subsidizing of air transportation than the subsidizing in the past of the railroads and shipping, and the past and present federal construction of inland and coastal waterways.

INDISPENSABLE

Newspapers are the most conspicuous evidence of progress and civilization. This generation can no more imagine man getting along without a newspaper than business getting along without advertising.

For example, newspapers provide the customary wrapper, and a very excellent one, for fish and other permeating materials that must be transported from store to kitchen.

They are equally indispensable in starting fires. What does the housewife put down to protect the just-mopped kitchen floor? Newspapers, of course.

And yet there are people who criticize the newspapers. But even the hypercritical must admit that the family newspaper gives them more for their money than the politician gives for his promises.

One More Month Of First Half Of Coast Ball

By The Associated Press Going into the last four weeks of the first half of the Pacific coast baseball league season, the Sacramento Senators, in first place by a two and a half game lead, faced the probability that the seventh place Seattle Indians would not give them serious trouble in this week's games.

The Senators boasted the two leading pitchers of the league, in spite of the fact that Tony Freitas suffered his first defeat of the season at the hands of Oakland Wednesday night.

The Missions, only half a game behind Oakland and ambitious for a place in the first division, took individual batting honors, with the Hoopes far ahead of the pack.

The Portland Ducks, who emerged for a day from their long sojourn in the cellar Saturday, were again in eighth place as they journeyed to Oakland to open a week's stand.

The sport is camel racing, and is indulged in during big festivals. The choice racer is a different breed from the dromedary. It is called the "mechark."

The start of the race is very muddy, and the camels patter to a confusing finish. Often three or four riders lay claim to first place and not infrequently the conclusion sees a fight.

The "jockey" is called a "mechark," and he has marvelous command of his mount. He uses neither bridle nor leading his animal by the pressure of his feet and by pinching the camel's hide with his toes.
