GRAIN MARKETS DECLINE SHARPLY

Prices of Most W heats Carried to Lowest Point in Years.

WASHINGTON, June 23—Grain markets declined sharply during the week ending June 21, and prices of most grains were carried downward to the lowest point in recent years, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Generally favorable prospects for the 1930 harvest, weakness in the stock market, increased movement of new wheat and continued slow demand, particularly for wheat and rye, were principally responsible for the sharp reduction in prices. Wheat reached the lowest point since 1914, rye since 1902, oats since 1922 and corn since 1926. Flax was relatively firmer than other grains, but the market was unsettled and slightly lower compared with a week ago.

Increased offerings of new wheat together with a continued slow export demand for the large stocks remaining in North America, appeared to be the dominating influence in the wheat market, since crop conditions in important producing areas of the Northern hemisphere were slightly less favorable than recently because of deterioration caused by hot, dry weather in some areas and by heavy local storms in other districts. Harvesting of winter wheat in the United States has proceeded northward to Southern Indiana, Central Illinois, and Central Kansas, with ripening being hastened by dry weather in the Central Western States. The condition of domestic spring wheat continues generally favorable, although local damage from heavy rains was reported in some areas while additional moisture would be helpful in others. Showers in the Canadian Provinces were beneficial for spring wheat, but some further damage has been reported from high winds in sections of Alberta, where high temperatures have reduced the moisture supply. European crops are reported to have deteriorated during the week, particularly in Italy and Poland, as a result of dry hot weather. Prospects continue better than last season in Germany and Austria, and are favorable in Bulgaria and Roumania. Heavy thunder storms did some damage in Sweden, Sweden and France during the week.

Wheat Markets
Domestic cash wheat markets declined with futures and current sales of all classes of wheat were at the lowest prices in recent years. Dry weather in the southwest favored harvesting and threshing and marketing of new wheat increased materially. 162 cars of new wheat were received at Port Worth since June 20. The quality has improved rapidly and protein is high. Premiums have therefore been negligible, with dealers at that market bidding only 1-2c premium over ordinary types for 13 per cent protein wheat, and about 1-4c additional premium for each 1-4 per cent protein over the 13 per cent. No. 1 hard winter ordinary protein was quoted June 20 at 95 1-2-96c, delivered Texas common points or basis Galveston export rate. Mills were taking the new wheat freely, but there was little export inquiry. 6 cars of new wheat were received at Kansas City, half of which was from Kansas and the remainder from Oklahoma. The Oklahoma wheat was of high protein, ranging from 13 1-4 to 14 1-2 per cent, but the Kansas wheat ran low in protein, ranging from 10.85 to 12 per cent.

The new wheat sold at practically the same price as old crop grain but demand generally was of only moderate volume. Heavy test weight, high protein old wheat was in good demand from local mills, but export inquiry was lacking. Spring wheat markets followed the downward trend on winter wheat but demand for flour improved at the lower prices and mills became more active buyers of cash grain with the result that cash premiums were advanced about 1c per bushel in relation to future prices.

The decline in Durum wheat was not quite so great as in bread wheats. July Durum at Duluth declining only 5 7-8c and closing June 20 at 82 5-8c. Domestic inquiry was somewhat improved and there was scattered export demand, but prospects for the new crop continued generally good and were a weakly factor. Prospects for Durum in competing areas however, are less favorable. Conditions in North Africa are not so good as last season, and early indications are for a reduction of about 4,000,000 bushels in the Algerian crop, and of over 3,000,000 in the crop in Tunis. The Italian crop is also expected to be smaller than last season. No. 1 and No. 2 Amber Durum were quoted at Minneapolis June 20 at 83-89 5-8c and at Duluth at 83-85 5-8c. No. 1 durum sold at the latter market at 81 5-8c-82 5-8c. No. 2 Mixed at 79 5-8c-82 5-8c, and No. 2 Red at 79 5-8c per bushel.

Independently Weak
Canadian Spring wheat markets were independently weak, reflecting more favorable weather for the new crop in the Western Provinces. Wheat for July delivery at Winnipeg declined 7 3-8c and cash grain 6-7c per bushel. No. 1 Manitoba Northern was quoted at Winnipeg June 20 at 91 7-8c.

Pacific Coast wheat markets followed the decline in Eastern and foreign markets and were 5-7c lower. Crop prospects continue generally favorable in Washington and Oregon and harvesting is progressing favorably in California. Export demand remained almost negligible for Pacific Coast wheat and domestic milling inquiry was still weak. Cash prices at Portland declined about 5c during the week with Big Bend Bluestem No. 1 Hard White quoted June 20 at Portland at $1.09, No. 1 Soft and Western White at 96c, No. 1 Hard Winter, Northern Spring and Western Red at 94c per bushel. No. 1 White and Red wheats sacked were quoted at Seattle at 95c, and No. 1 Dark Northern Spring in bulk from Montana with 14 per cent protein at $1.03. No. 1 Hard Winter in bulk from Montana was quoted at 92c per bushel. New wheat was expected at Portland about the last of the month but very little new crop wheat has been contracted by the trade as growers are not inclined to sell at current quotations. Rains towards the last of the week were very beneficial for the crop in the Pacific Northwest and another good crop is in prospect. Export sales at Portland totaled only about 7700,000 tons of White wheat to the United Kingdom.

KIDS STUDY 'CADDYCHISM' TO LEARN ANGLES OF JOB

DALLAS (AP)—Let a caddy sneeze on the greens of the Texas Golf and Country club, and the victim, with the putter knows immediately that a little more "caddyism" is needed. "Caddyism," new in golf's lexicon, describes a session that the club's secretary has once each week with the caddies. There is more to the sessions than appears at first blush. Texas caddy club caddies not only must be able to carry clubs with a grace that eliminates clutter, but must also know the little niceties that go to make the perfect club carrier practically invisible and non-existent. Illustrations go along with the weekly lessons and caddies are permitted to ask questions on obscure points. Because the caddies are graded and paid accordingly, they are taking the business seriously and pay close attention to the "caddyism."

The total targets of Frank Troch of Portland, Ore., dropped in trap shooting from the regulation 15 yard distance is estimated at 115,000. He began shooting in 1912.
