Western Crews Spike Rumor of Dissatisfaction

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 27 (AP)—Reports of western crews being dissatisfied with the conditions under which intercollegiate varsity race was rowed yesterday, and having threatened not to return to the Hudson next year, were described by representatives of the westerners today as "absolutely untrue."

The basis for these reports appeared to be the fact several motor craft, including a coast guard patrol vessel, in keeping abreast of leading crews in the varsity race, caused a swell and helped increase the waters shipped by Washington, Columbia, Navy and others which trailed the Cornell crew to the finish.

Washington, only one of the three western eight's affected by these conditions, offered no alibi, much less considering any protest.

"You can say for us we lost to better crews yesterday," said Earl Campbell, graduate manager of Washington. "We shipped a lot of water in the rough going, so much so that two of our men had to jump overboard at the finish to keep the 'Pay Break' from going under and that we did not row our best race, anyway."

"Washington is satisfied the best crew won the race and congratulates Cornell as well as Syracuse, for a great performance."

Campbell's statement was echoed by Al Ubrickson, Washington's head coach who declared he had no excuse.

ANDREWS AGAIN IN GOBI DESERT

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—Hope of opening a wholly new chapter in the history of man is the objective of the Roy Chapman Andrews-American Museum of Natural History expedition now en route to the Gobi desert.

Now for the first time there is a chance to search for man's beginnings in that period of time named the Pliocene, which ended a full 1,000,000 years ago and began more than 5,000,000 years ago.

Need of the Hour

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK (AP)—In wood that has been fireproofed every cell acts as a diminutive fire extinguisher when the wood is heated. Each one gives off a fire smothering gas, says a report of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

Man has been traced back 1,000,000 years in England, and in the Peeping Woman. He has been found so highly developed 1,000,000 years ago that many scientists are out; he must have been extensively distributed long before, in the earlier Pliocene corridor of time.
