WHEAT MARKETS FLUCTUATE LESS

Prices Steadier Last Week Following Sharp Decline Previously.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The sharp decline which carried wheat prices to the lowest point since 1914 was checked during the week ending June 20. Demand improved at the lower levels, while offerings were only of moderate volume, with a relatively large percentage of the new wheat being placed in storage and not offered for sale, according to the weekly grain market review of the United States bureau of agricultural economics. Coarse grain markets strengthened toward the close of the week, but with the exception of corn prices remained below a week ago. Rye continued weak and flax prices made further declines.

No important changes occurred in crop conditions throughout most of the northern hemisphere. Harvesting of winter wheat in the United States progressed actively and advanced into Northern Kansas, with grain ripening rapidly in Nebraska, Iowa and adjacent areas. Spring wheat is heading in Minnesota, South Dakota and Montana, and is generally well stood. Good rains benefited the crop, which is clean and of good color. Growth is slow in northern parts of the belt, and some deterioration has occurred from dry weather in local areas. Showers in Canada prevented further deterioration in most sections. Moisture supplies are sufficient for current needs in most parts of Manitoba where the crop is reported in good condition. Beneficial rains were also received in northern and eastern districts of Saskatchewan and in central, northern and western parts of Alberta. In other sections of these two provinces however, moisture is badly needed. High winds and lack of moisture has caused loss of some wheat acreage in Canada, according to the Manitoba Free Press, and the height of the crop is considerably below normal for the time of year. The per cent of wheat in "shot blade" or "boot" is low as a result of drought.

Harvesting is in progress in Southern European countries and in southern sections of Russia. Early harvest returns from Italy are less favorable than previous reports indicated, but marketing of new wheat is increasing. Reports from France are still conflicting and local damage from lodging resulting from heavy rains, is indicated. Yields in Spain are somewhat irregular but a good average crop is in prospect. Conditions in Northwestern Europe continue generally favorable, but an outlook below that of last season, as reported in Yugo-Slavia where conditions are less favorable than in other countries of the lower Danube.

Demand for the large supplies in North America, where market stocks are around 35,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago, continued relatively light, although inquiry became more active at the lower prices. Export sales for the week amounted to 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 bushels, according to trade estimates, mostly of Manitoba, but including also some hard winters and Pacific coast white wheats. Sales were principally to the United Kingdom, Italy, Denmark, Germany and France. No. 2 hard winter wheat from Atlantic ports was reported sold in Liverpool during the week at $1.03, but United States wheats are still meeting keen competition from Argentine Indian and Australian wheats, shipments of which totaled nearly 4,000,000 during the week, with more than half being from Argentina. 62½ pound Rosafé Argentine wheat was quoted in Liverpool June 20 at $1.02½, Australian wheat at $1.12½, and No. 5 Manitoba at 99½¢ per bushel. Prices of native wheats in Europe have declined in spite of the high tariffs, reflecting the prospective early marketings of new wheat. Native wheat was quoted in Hamburg June 20 at $1.97, in Paris at $1.96½, in Milan at $1.76, and in Copenhagen at $1.16.

Coast Markets
Pacific coast wheat markets declined with eastern markets early in the week but recovery was not so marked and prices at the close were 2 to 3¢ lower than a week ago. No. 1 Big Bend bluestem hard white was quoted at Portland June 27 at $1.07. No. 1 soft and western white at 95¢, and No. 1 hard winter, northern spring and western red at 91¢ per bushel. No. 1 white and red wheats were quoted at Seattle at 95¢, and No. 1 Big Bend bluestem hard white at $1.07. No. 1 dark northern spring 74 per cent protein from Montana was quoted in bulk at both Portland and Seattle at $1.06, and No. 1 dark hard white at $1.03 at Portland and at $1.02 per bushel at Seattle. Demand at Portland continued inactive. There was some inquiry for flour from Shanghai and Manila but sales were of small volume. Domestic flour demand continued dull and domestic mills were therefore slow buyers of wheat. The new crop is making favorable progress but a larger infection with smut than in recent years is indicated in some sections. Growers are not selling freely and very little contracting has been done. Prices of grain bags remained unchanged, with Calcutta's quoted at 10¢ and domestic at 10½¢ at country points. The export sales of 700,000 tons of white wheat to the United Kingdom reported in last week's review was in error, and should have read 7,000 tons.
