Cherry Picking—

In speaking of the cherry harvest in some sections of the valley already on and a few days, or possibly a week or more away in other sections, Prof. Cecil Ordway says of picking: "Wages are not high, but they are not low. Careless picking should be tolerated in any event, as a blanket of fruit spurs and large branches under the tree is an expensive condition to have. Expert picking means clean picking, with few broken fruit spurs. The tree needs its leaves to produce food for the winter and coming season, and the spurs are the bearing surface. Removal of either will injure the tree."

To Cottage Grove—
Herman Laky, who is known in this valley, both personally and because of the success of the teams which he has driven in the department with which he has been connected, has been elected as vocational agricultural instructor in the high school at Cottage Grove and is moving to that place. G. B. S., 74 Soon, Now Preparing His First Novel

By Bates Haney
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
LONDON (AP)—George Bernard Shaw will be 74 years old today and his first novel soon published. It is called "Immaturity" and written just 48 years ago when the noted playwright was 25 years old. Shaw has not before published a publisher imaginable and they all turned it down. Some would scarcely look at it. "Shaw said, 'But, confound it, I have been able to do it again with interest now, mind you, with all my experience—so it must have been a respectable novel. I wrote it before I had Karl Marx, before I had seen about the country state with a gleaming axe on his shoulder and his white beard flying in the wind. He eschews all meat, eats only vegetables and fruit, and gets his sunlight as possible and already he has become a legend at Cap Antibes, France, where his tall, almost nude figure is seen for hours at a time pruned and raked, his park, his bath, or walking about in a monkish looking dressing gown. No man in London is more adept at getting a taxiab after the theater than Shaw. He is out of his seat in a jiffy and while the rest of the audience is still standing at attention to the strains of "God Save the King," the 74-year-old socialist probably is well on the way home. Shaw's pointed pen has jabbed so many people that it isn't surprising when some of them jab back. The Royal Academy of Art, which he has often belabored, refused a few months ago to hang his portrait by John Collier, although accepting a companion picture of Adonis Huxley by the same painter. Collier said he considered the rejected picture the better of the two. To this day, Shaw is never so happy as when taking pot shots at some revered English institution, casting aspersions on the British national character or ridiculing some empire fable. His comparison of Lenin with George Washington was one of his most severe digs at the British. He accused them of treating both of these men alike, crucifying them while alive and canonizing them when dead. Between criticism of England and the United States he attacks his own Irish with zest.

HEAT DOESN'T BOTHER MICHIGAN'S PORKERS

DETROIT (AP)—It isn't the heat that bothers Michigan's porkers. August, regarded as the hottest month, recorded a mortality rate among hogs of 1 to 1.331 animals in 1929 compared with an average ratio of 1 to 817 for the other 11 months. According to the report of the Michigan Livestock Prevention association, the month of May is the most serious to hogs with a mortality ratio of 1 to 448 animals.

BEAN GROWERS TO COMPETE

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan bean growers this year will be offered a bean growing contest. Awards based on the greatest margin of profit are offered by Michigan state college, the Michigan Crop Improvement association, and the Michigan Bean Jobbers association.

MANY THOUSAND TONS OF WOOL ARE BEING SHIPPED

Wool growers in this valley will be very much interested in the following story from the Portland paper relative to the present shipping activity of wool from the Portland port.
A saving of a fraction of a cent a pound by water transportation as against rail is sending thousands of tons of wool through Portland this year that formerly moved overland. As a consequence the American-Hawaiian Steamship company has had to add four extra ships to its schedule of intercoastal sailings from this port. Two of the extra ships have loaded and gone, and two are to come. The saving in transportation charges is being effected by the National Wool Growers' association, the nation-wide co-operative marketing body formed under direction of the Federal farm board. In previous years it was the practice for wool growers in marginal territory, such as eastern Idaho and western Wyoming, to ship their clip to Boston by the quickest Portland route, which he has tolerated in the department with which he has been connected, has been elected as vocational agricultural instructor in the high school at Cottage Grove and is moving to that place. Mr. Laky has been at Canby for four years, having opened up the Smith-Hughes work there and has carried it forward with eminent success. The livestock judging teams have made exceptional records in the northwest. Mr. Laky is a relative of the Taylors of La Grande but is known over the valley.

The national marketing organization, being less concerned with a quick sale than with effecting every possible economy, has been routing the marginal wool to tide-water, mainly at Portland, and sending it thence to Boston by intercoastal steamship line. The American-Hawaiian Steamship company has been able to obtain a lion's share of this business at a time when, east-bound tonnage is otherwise scarce. Much of the space in the intercoastal freighters usually reserved for freight from California to the Atlantic has been filled with wool at Portland, without protest from California, and four vessels scheduled to load east-bound on the coast from Portland have been diverted to this port for virtually full cargoes of wool. Visible evidence of the size of this year's wool movement through Portland exists at municipal terminal No. 1, where the American-Hawaiian pier is stuffed with bagged wool to the roof.

The extra wool-carrying vessels are the Kansasian, the Missouriian, the Columbian and the Kansasian left Portland June 1 and the Mexican June 14. The Columbian is now on Puget sound and will be due here Sunday to lift 2500 tons of wool, and the Kansasian will be along about June 26. All four are in addition to the vessels calling regularly in the weekly service maintained by the American-Hawaiian line between Portland and the Atlantic coast. All of the regular callers recently have taken large wool shipments.

Data compiled by the Merchants Exchange from declarations filed at the customs house show 5,566,017 pounds of wool shipped from Portland since June 1, the largest monthly movement on record. Since January 1, wool shipments from Portland have amounted to 14,417,109 pounds, a volume for 8 1/2 months exceeding any half-year figure on record and approaching the 12-month totals for several recent years. Wool shipments from Portland for the last four calendar years were:

Year	Pounds
1929	18,019,717
1928	15,844,786
1927	23,773,484
1926	20,469,163

In addition to the current wool movement, arrangements have just been made with the American-Hawaiian line for the shipment to Boston of 750,000 pounds of the 1929 clip which was held over and has been in storage at terminal No. 4. The increase in wool movement has been opportune for the steamship lines participating in the business as it fills in a slack period. By the time the wool movement lessens, the canning season will be well under way and consignments of canned fruit, vegetables and salmon will be available to fill the holds of the ships.

Wool Growers Seek Reduction In Grazing Fees

The Oregon Cooperative Woolgrowers association has joined with other wool grower organizations in a movement seeking reduction in grazing fees on forest land this year, due to extremely depressed conditions in the industry this year in which lamb and wool prices are at a low point.

The sheep industry is faced with a serious situation at the present time because of the depression in the wool grower's association and must have some relief. The Oregon Woolgrowers association through conferences with the State Tax commission and county assessors in this state, have succeeded in bringing about a reduction in assessments on sheep amounting to a trifle more than 31 per cent.

Wool growers in Eastern Oregon in some instances have already made cuts in wages in camp tenders and herdsmen, ranging from 15 to 25 per cent, the Pendleton East Oregonian reports, and this cut is expected to be made more general throughout the sheep industry by fall.

Also, this newspaper reports that leases on private grazing lands in Umatilla county have been reduced in some instances 25 to 50 per cent.

PAIN IN YOUR SHOULDER? Use Tysmol for Relief

Knife-like jabs of pain in the vicinity of the shoulder blade are generally due to neuritis, brought on by exposure to drafts or a sudden change of weather. In some cases there is stiffness or soreness in the muscles, making it difficult to raise the arm.

The safest and easiest way to relieve such an attack is to apply the small quantity of Tysmol over the affected area. This soothing, healing preparation is quickly absorbed through the pores and carried to the brooding aching peripheral nerves. The pains usually stop at once, and in a very short time the last trace of soreness should disappear.

Tysmol is absolutely harmless—free from dope. Recommended for all forms of nerve pain, whether caused by neuritis, neuralgia, rheumatism or rheumatoid. Sold by leading druggists. Always on hand at the Glass Drug, Inc.—Adv.
