Air Passenger Travel Gaining In Northwest

PORTLAND, Ore. (Special)—An increase of 30 per cent in passenger travel in June over the month of May shown in the monthly traffic reports of the Varney air lines is graphic evidence of the growing popularity of the slogan "Travel by Air." Exactly 130 passengers availed themselves of the service over the Varney system during the month of June. A good share of these passengers proved to be traveling on business and went beyond the eastern terminus of the lines, Salt Lake City. Some went beyond via the air popular "hop" to Boise to Salt Lake City, reports disclosed. This fact is probably due to the long and uneventful train ride between the same two points.

The Varney organization will inaugurate its Seattle, Tacoma to Portland service to connect with the Portland to Salt Lake City service about the 15th of July. This service will undoubtedly be popular with Portlanders as it will give them their only opportunity to go from the Rose City to the Puget Sound section, spend a business day there and return in time to close their Portland offices.

Harvest Under Way This Week In Wallowa Co.

(Observer Correspondent) WALLOWA, Ore. (Special)—Harvest operations have been getting under way in many parts of this county during the past week or two. Some of the wheat farmers in the dry farming sections have been busy during the past few days cutting backwaters around their winter fields, while many of the valley farmers are in the midst of haying. Some of the first cutting of alfalfa were cut two and three weeks ago and some of the later fields were cut during the past week. Timothy and other later kinds of hay are being cut and there appears to be considerable difference in the quantity of hay in various fields. Much of the alfalfa was very light. Timothy and other grass which is being cut for hay has been an excellent growth during the past ten days while the weather has been warm and will probably produce nearly as large a tonnage of hay as is ever raised here.

A heavy rain which fell over parts of the county several days ago is said to have done considerable damage to some of the grain fields in lower valley, reports stating that at the L. T. Powers farm there that a field of heavy barley was badly flattened by the rain and winds and that a number of other fields in that community were tangled and put down quite badly also. The burning of the grain in the dry farming areas of the county is said to have been checked by the recent rains and that the wheat is filling out well. Farmers feel that if another week or ten days of favorable weather can be had that some of the best wheat crops which have been harvested in this section in a number of years will be secured. Fairly good stands of grain is seen in the most of the wheat fields and the greater part of it is quite heavy. Spring sown crops have also been greatly benefited by the recent moisture, however, with the dry season now a hand it is highly probable that more rain will be needed in order for the spring crops on dry land to make anything like a normal yield. Pasture and range conditions are still quite good in all parts of this county. The ranges had not begun to dry up very bad when the last rain came and this additional moisture should prolong the green stage of the grass for two or three weeks at least. Some of the stockmen who have their cattle and other stock on summer ranges in the mountains and timbered sections say that the stock are doing exceptionally well and getting very fat.

Some of the first shipments of Wallowa county lambs left here recently for Omaha markets. The lambs were shipped by the Wallowa County Marketing association and are said to have been exceptionally nice ones. Most of the sheep owners say that their lambs this year are the best they have raised in a number of years. Several cars of hogs and cattle left the county the last of the week for the Portland market. A. W. Johnson who is in charge of stock shipments for the Wallowa County Stock Marketing association took the shipment to Portland Saturday.

Sam Meek helped H. D. Bechtel put up hay a few days the first of the week. J. F. Haun, of Evans, has been busy several days the past week fixing watering places for some of his stock which he has in pasture in the Leap section. The recent hot, dry weather has dried much of the stock water up badly and it has been necessary to move a part of the stock to pastures in the valley.

Oscar Maxwell has been busy the past few days doing some repair work on his combine harvester. He has several hundred acres of winter wheat to harvest this season and expects to do some cutting for neighbors. According to reports from farmers in the hill sections the greater part of the harvesting will be done with combines again this year. Much of the early sown grain has colored up rapidly during the past week and should the weather remain warm it is likely that some combining will be done during the latter part of this month. A change in warehouse management has taken place here recently, according to Lee W. Bell, who has been in charge of the warehouse here for the Warehouse Service corporation. The houses have been taken over by the Kerr-Gifford company and feed supplies which have been handled by the Warehouse Service corporation are being sold out. Mr. Bell will still retain the management of the local storage facilities for the Kerr-Gifford company.

F. A. Downing and A. W. Harmon, of the Leap community, were delivering some cattle here for shipment with the Shipping association the last of the week. Road building work is in progress on a community project in Middle Valley and the county steam shovel and dump wagons are being used in the work. The road being worked leaves the highway at the former T. L. Sherod ranch about two miles east of town and connects with the highway just west of Louisa near the Tilton farm. This road when finished will serve a large number of farmers on the south side of the valley. The county crew are camped near the G. P. Reel farm.

Giles Plass moved his tractor to town the early part of the week and is having it repaired. He expects to do some stationary threshing in parts of the community. L. W. Minor has been busy the past several days cutting grain hay at his farm in the hills east of town. He recently finished putting up about 190 tons of June grass hay also.

J. H. Feagins, of Leap, was an Enterprise business visitor the early part of the week. Sam Meek, of Leap, delivered some fat hogs to the stockyards here the last of the week.

Numerous persons from this section have made trips into the timbered areas during the past week or two looking over the huckleberry prospects. Reports from several indicate that the crop will be very light this year. In the earlier areas the greater part of the berries appear to have been killed by the heavy frosts experienced here in June and those which are being raised in much of the timbered areas during the past several years have kept the brush closely eaten off. Some express the opinion that the berry crop in the high mountains will probably be better because of the fact that being later they were probably not greatly damaged by the early frosts.

Cherries are beginning to ripen at some of the orchards in this community. While pie cherries are said to be a fair crop the Royal Anns and other sweet cherries are not very plentiful. Some cherries are being sold in the community at this time by growers of Union county. James Plass's children arrived here recently from Klamath Falls and are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Giles Plass of Leap.
