Kay said he conferred with 11 state committeemen, including seven of the nine who signed a statement following a meeting in Pendleton several weeks ago. Meier, Portland candidate for republican nomination as governor today announced his "statement of principles" includes an "unqualified subscription to each and every plank" in the platform of the late Senator George W. In listing other items of his platform Meier said it would be his purpose "as governor to do everything within my power" to protect the lumber industry "from ruinous foreign competition."

On the Sky Ceiling

The sky ceiling now means the lowest layer of clouds, and particularly those using gliders, must study the weather, especially the clouds, like any old-time shepherd. Cumulus or white wool-pack clouds form at the top of a rising column of hot air. A glider reaching this column can rise on it and hang suspended just below the sky ceiling where the hot air condenses into clouds.—St. Nicholas.

Hot in Pendleton

Saw Great Naval Battle

The peninsula of Jutland embraced the area between the Skagerrak, the North sea, and the Kattegat and has an area of approximately 6,750 square miles. It was in May, 1916, that the famous naval battle of Jutland between the allied and German fleets was fought off the western coast of the peninsula.

The coolest place yesterday on the entire coast below the Canadian line appeared to be Eureka, Cal., where the thermometer rose no higher than 58 degrees. WASHINGTON VERY WARM WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The capital today began another lap of its endurance contest with the heat, the thermometer registering 91 at 9 o'clock this morning. That was six degrees warmer than 9 o'clock yesterday when the mercury soared to a record high of 105.6. The forecast for the District of Columbia predicted "continued warm weather" tonight. Some relief was promised tomorrow.

THREE DEATHS IN MARYLAND BALTIMORE, July 21 (AP)—Three deaths and a score of prostrations in Maryland were blamed on the heat today as thermometers early gave indications that yesterday's record breaking temperatures of above the century mark would be surpassed during the day. A clerk on his way to work this morning dropped dead as the mercury at 9 o'clock had passed the 90 degree mark. Another man died from a broken back received yesterday while he was swimming, and a third man, apparently crazed by the 96 degree heat of Hagerstown jumped fully clothed into the Potomac river and was drowned.

DEATHS, CROP LOSS CAUSED BY WEATHER

(Continued from Page One) today or tonight in a large part of the north central states, the Chicago forecaster prophesied. Predictions for Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Illinois carried such encouraging phrases as "somewhat cooler" and "seasonable temperatures." The break in heat had penetrated into western Iowa last night. The double damage of heat and drought was noted in many grain states. In Iowa, particularly, the dried corn threatened serious loss to farmers unless benevolent rains fell soon. An unofficial observer in Iowa reported finding top soil in corn fields at a temperature of 144 degrees.

Iowa Corn Loss The Iowa corn loss, some agriculturists estimated, already amounts to one bushel an acre, and if the drought extends much longer, the estimated loss will be doubled, they said. William Clapper, president of a corporation operating five canneries in Iowa, said the state's crop for canning, including sweet corn, has been damaged 20 to 50 per cent. Ohio and Kansas, as well as several southern states, face crop loss unless showers soon supplant the sun.

PACIFIC NORTHWEST COOLER The Pacific Northwest states, including Oregon, continued to enjoy summer weather much cooler than the average of the nation over the weekend. Yesterday most of the temperature maximums in this state ranged from 70 to 90, with La Grande's figure moderate for this time of the season.

WARMER WEATHER COMING PORTLAND, Ore., July 21 (AP)—All signs today indicated warm weather is moving in on Oregon. Weather bureau predictions were for "continued warm today and tomorrow." The intense heat wave that has been sweeping the east is moving westward and the weather report says rising temperature is the rule over the North Pacific slope. The official chart shows the hottest observation spot in Oregon yesterday was Umatilla where the temperature touched the 90-degree mark. Medford was next with 90 degrees. Other Oregon temperatures included Albany, Salem and Wolf Creek, 85 each; Portland 83, Roseburg 82, Baker 80, Marshfield 68. Red Bluff, Cal., thermometers soared to the 100-degree mark. Walla Walla and Yakima, Wash., each had 90 degrees.
