

Big Submarine, The V-5, Has Eight Separate Bunks For Crew

PORTLAND, Me., July 23 (AP)—A sinkable apartment house is one way to describe comforts and safeties of Uncle Sam's latest submarine, the V-5.

Following her builder's trials this month off Provincetown, Mass., the V-5 will leave the Portsmouth navy yard about July 29 for governmental inspection at Annapolis, preceding a shakedown cruise to South America.

The first impression of the visitor descending in to the 371-foot steel hull is the air's freshness. This is due to special air salvaging machinery and elaborate ventilating systems.

The next impression is its roominess, compared with other submarines or even with some destroyers. Here every man of the crew of 80 has his own bunk. In addition there are separate rooms forward for each officer.

There are three galleys, each with electric refrigeration, one for crew, one for warrant and petty officers and one for other officers.

Telephones link the compartments from end to end. Between each bulkhead is a complete set of automatic and manual controls for maneuvering in emergency. Propellers disconnect from driving motors, which then become generators for batteries housed so that it is believed no fumes will menace the crew.

Electric motors not only do the sub's steering, flooding and special sea duties, but her ventilation, hoisting and ordinary jobs. All the electric equipment was installed by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Safety devices are everywhere. There is an extra "lung" for each member of the crew. This is a new submarine escape appliance for getting out without elaborate equipment.

The V-5 has three escape hatches, respectively, through the conning tower, one forward and another aft. There is in each series of compartments, so that squads of men advance until in the last the water enters and they step outside. Those inside empty this compartment and use it in turn.

TREESH Tea

A QUALITY YOU WOULD INSIST UPON IF YOU KNEW ALL THE FACTS

Till coffee was packed in vacuum, you never knew how much of its glorious flavor you had been missing. The same is true of tea. The two are identical in one respect: A little air—a little moisture—and pff!—the finer flavors are gone. With coffee it happens quickly. With tea more slowly—but sure. And it is many months before tea reaches you from the tea gardens—frequently a year. Its original flavor you could never enjoy until Schilling, by a secret process, packed tea hot in vacuum.

SCHILLING TEA

SEALED HOT IN VACUUM Both a tea leaf and a coffee bean must be toasted to drive off the moisture, which helps to rob them of flavor. Good coffee is packed in vacuum immediately after roasting. Tea is toasted at the tea gardens, then sealed in large chests lined with lead. When it arrives in America it is repacked in ordinary tins or even cardboard boxes. And that's where the damage is done! But this is how Schilling does it. As the tea is poured from the lead-lined chests, it is toasted again, and while still hot (just like your coffee) it is sealed in vacuum. Schilling Tea comes to you as fresh and fragrant as it left the Orient—the only tea completely protected from the tea garden to you.

SCHILLING ICED TEA

Schilling Iced Tea is far more refreshing than any other, because it is fresh to begin with—fresh and fragrant. Black tea (orange pekoe) is best for iced tea. And try using tea bags instead of loose tea. Steep the tea to the desired strength, remove the tea bag, and your tea can stand for some time before pouring over the ice. No danger of its steeping too long before icing. Just two or three minutes over-steeping makes a lot of difference in the flavor of tea.

TEA IN BAGS

Tea bags as well as loose tea are packed in vacuum by Schilling. A Schilling Tea bag contains just the proper amount of tea for two delicious cups or two tall glasses of fragrant iced tea. Try this modern way of serving it.

REAL ESTATE MAN HELD IN MURDER CASE

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—A warrant charging him with the murder of Mary Baker was issued yesterday against Herbert M. Campbell, Virginia real estate man, owner of the gun with which police believe the girl was killed.

Miss Baker's body was found stuffed into a culvert near Arlington National cemetery on April 12.

Campbell was subjected to an extended questioning Monday night which continued well into the morning hours. He stoutly maintained he did not kill the young government clerk, but police said he told them the gun in question had never left his possession.

William C. Cloth, commonwealth's attorney for Arlington county, Virginia, who swore out the warrant, said part of Campbell's alibi had been broken down.

The authorities also said the alibi of Herman H. Barre, who was arrested in Montreal last week in connection with the Baker case, had been torn out in almost every respect. He will, however, be held for further questioning as to what he knows of Campbell's activities.

Frontier Cheyenne, with its saloons, dance halls, variety theatres and gambling tables, has been produced in a miniature for a five day run of "Frontier Nights." The buildings of "Old Cheyenne" include faithful reproduction of many of the notable structures in the city in the late '60s and '70s.
