Ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone—Eph. 2:19,20.

TRY LA GRANDE FIRST
"Try La Grande First" should be the slogan of every citizen who wishes to see this city progress.

It is the community spirit that brings the citizenship closer together and prevents the formation of the lines sometimes drawn by factions. When a movement is started for the public good it is first necessary to establish a sentiment in favor of the proposed project, and it is easy to create this sentiment if the proper community spirit prevails.

The main object of this life should be to make the world a better place in which to live, and that can be accomplished when the entire citizenship is working together for that purpose. Every citizen of this community working together could help to make La Grande the best city in the state in which to live, and the result would be an inspiration for future generations to continue the good work.

TRAVELERS ALL
Americans have always had a desire to see their own and other countries and during the past few years the ambitions of more and more of our citizens have been realized in visits to various places of attraction.

It matters not in what direction we go, there are beauty spots awaiting those who enjoy nature, but the Pacific Northwest is especially favored in having so many scenic rivers, lakes and mountains within its borders, and added to all this is the charm of the forests and the great expanse of ocean.

The title "The Playground of America" may well be applied to this part of the country, and increasing numbers are each year finding rest of mind and health of body in the enjoyment of the wonders that have been provided for the benefit of mankind.

PROSPECTING
Little particles of yellow ore found in a ditch started the California gold rush. Glittering specks of dirt found on a river bank in Alaska induced the stampede for gold in the Yukon. All the great oil booms in Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Texas and California came from spurts of black liquid from holes in the ground.

But why should we go to such rare things as gold rushes and oil booms for illustrations of man's treasure-hunting instinct, when every day there are communities demonstrating their possibilities anew, though in a less picturesque and smaller way?

Agricultural, industrial and business opportunities may be developed in such a way as to bring continued growth to any community that applies itself to the task of making the most of its resources, and La Grande is more favored in the latter respect than are many cities.

To him that hath shall be given. Those who need air and sunshine least are the ones with sense enough to use them most.

If species adjust themselves to adversity, as the evolutionists say, why hasn't lawn grass learned to grow so high and then quit?

It's funny about not letting the people in the District of Columbia vote on who will be their guests.

What does it mean when the thermometer is around 90, and the daily market letter says, "Butter Is Firmer?"

In Washington

By Herbert Phanner
WASHINGTON—Aboard ship recently, from New York to New Orleans on a brief vacation, I struck up an acquaintance with one of the old army's most colorful figures.
Col. Charles M. Taylor—Indian fighter, veteran of countless campaigns in the old west, now retired and a seasonable globe trotter, despite his advanced age—was making his way to Honolulu alone.
He had spent several days in Washington among his old cronies around the Army and Navy club before starting his trip to Honolulu. He still owns his home in the capital, in the northwest section of the city, and returns here between visits to various parts of the world to keep alive his memories.
The colonel's resemblance to the late William Howard Taft is remarkable. In fact, he is proud of the fact that Mrs. Taft herself once told him that he could easily be mistaken for her husband.

means something," says the colonel, "despite the fact that they now have motor cars, airplanes, machine guns and tanks."
STILL VALUABLE
But invariably, in his discussion of the cavalry of today, he would say with the greatest emphasis: "The horse is still king."
And to the question, "Has the cavalry outlived its usefulness?" with a great show of spirit he would reply, "No." And as if his vehemence were not sufficient proof, he would quote the words of General Pershing: "There is not in the world today an officer of distinction . . . who does not declare with emphasis that cavalry is as important an arm today as it has ever been."
And the words of Marshall Foch: "The greatest threat of disaster with which we were faced in 1914 was stayed off by the devoted bravery and endurance displayed by the cavalry corps."

Chats With Parents

HIS FATHER'S FAULTS
By Alice Judson Peake

The mother of a three-year-old the other day confessed that she felt completely helpless before his temper tantrums and his stubbornness.
She had tried to cope with these faults of his ever since he was a baby. She had used every art and every device that she could discover either through talking to people experienced in dealing with children, or by reading books on the subject.
She went on to tell that from the moment she looked upon her baby's face she knew that he would be like his father, a man in whom she had been bitterly disappointed.

She had found especially trying his violent and senseless rages, his refusal ever to admit himself in the wrong and the fact that when once he had made up his mind nothing would influence him to change it.

There were long contests of wills between her and her child, but always it was she who was forced to capitulate. She made mountains out of molehills and succeeded only in accentuating the very tendencies she was trying to eliminate.

Her fear that her child would become like his father has made her handle him in such a way that he very likely will become so. It is unfortunately true that our distress at finding faults in our children, especially those which are reminiscent of our own personal disappointments, makes us so unwise and unskillful that without being aware of it we develop the very faults we fear.

Presbyterian Church Erected At Union In '81

By Mrs. L. F. Terrill
(Observer Correspondent)

UNION, Ore. (Special)—While tearing down the tower of the Presbyterian church recently workmen found a slip of paper bearing the signatures of the carpenter who erected the building and the painter who was responsible for its decoration. They were Jerry B. Thompson and Thos. Heritage and the date was March 2, 1881. The names and date proved interesting to some of the older residents here.

During a short interval between 6 and 7 o'clock that Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Griggs were absent from their home Monday evening someone entered their home and smashed the drawers taking a small amount of cash and a sorority pin. Even the dog that was supposed to be on duty overlooked the intruder's presence.

Word was received this week by Mrs. Viola Baker of the death of Mrs. Esther Purcell, sister-in-law who was known to Union friends as Lucy McComas. She died July 10 and was sent to Spokane for burial.

Mrs. Belle Busick accompanied her son Claude to Seattle on Tuesday to visit her younger son Harold, for a short time.
The cherry harvest ended and the packing sheds closed early this week. The crop was not so heavy this year as last and prices were more or less fluctuating. Growers hope to obtain a slightly better price for the blacks than for the Royal Anne but owing to the instability of the market all they can do is to wait and hope for the best.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gale, Ted Hutchinson and Edward Bloom returned Wednesday from their week-end trip with excellent fishing. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hutchinson and Mary drove to High valley to bring Mrs. Gale home in the car.

—FOR A PENNY A PERSON A MEAL

First payment $10.00 Installed ready to cook.

Why fuss along with 1910 methods of cooking, when the modern electric ranges are as snappy as a 1930 roadster?
Electric Cooking has always been clean and cheap —now it is fast. An automatic oven regulator cooks while you are out.
An electric range is yours on easy monthly terms, and it cooks for about a penny, a person, a meal. For, while the price of most necessities has almost doubled, electricity costs less today than ten or fifteen years ago.
