Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould (Associated Press Sports Editor)

It's an old baseball axiom that if "the heat doesn't get 'em by the end of July, the strain will."

The strain has begun to tell on some of the major league clubs that go off to sensational starts. Hot weather signs now point to a repetition of the 1929 world's series between the Athletics and Cubs.

Neither has an easy road to travel for the rest of the season, nor any such advantage as they enjoyed at this time last year.

Each championship club, however, has displayed sufficient steadiness, despite difficulties, to warrant retention as favorites.

The A's overhauled Washington as soon as Connie Mack mustered his regulars in full formation. Jimmy Fox finally got the range and has stepped up to share the slugging duties with Cochran and Simmons. Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg combine enough pitching class to keep the race safe for Philadelphia.

The Cubs plunged into a shower of baseballs and pop-batters in super-heated Brooklyn, shooting the Robins down on the wing. It's a question whether the Robins will stay down.

As is the case with the A's, the Cubs have at least three good reasons for doing things handsomely—Stephenson, Cuyler and Wilson at bat. Root, Malone and Bush on the mound. Gabby, Harnett to catch, chatter and hit.

Hee Dyer will contribute his lanky, space-eating stride to the sprinting festivities in the National A. U. track and field championships at Pittsburgh late in August.

The blond Stanford star, who holds the I. C. A. A. A. 220-yard title, will wear the colors of the Los Angeles C.

Dyer was the only sprinter in the country to beat Frank Wykoff at the 100 last spring, but he is better over the furlong route. It is to be hoped he will have a chance to race George Simpson of Ohio State in the 220, a distance at which either is capable of giving the world's record a tumble.

A correspondent notes this advertisement in the Oakland City (Ind.) Journal:

"Fore Sale—A 6-cylinder sedan, in good condition. Edd J. Roush."

Appended, in reference to Roush, is the comment: "Quit of work—perhaps some of the fans who gave this car would like to buy it back."

There was work and plenty of it for Edd Roush this spring in the outfield of the New York Giants. But Roush refused to do it at a reduction in salary. He stayed home on the farm, rather than take any part of a cut.

If Roush had come to terms, the Giants might now be in the National League lead, with a one-time batting champion saved the embarrassment of visiting the classified ad sections.

FOOTBALL AIDS INFELDERS

ATLANTA (AP)—Johnny Dobbs, veteran Dixie manager who's piloting the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern association, believes football training helps many baseball infielders.

Commenting on two former college halfbacks, Luke Appling of Oglethorpe and Bill Bancroft of Howard, two of the most promising rookies in the Southern this year, Johnny said:

"I think football must be good for infielders. Notice the way Appling and Bancroft use their hips. They may be starting one way but are able to shift their balance with an almost imperceptible away and go get that ball."

"It is instinctive, but without it an infielder isn't going far. I imagine football helps develop that instinct. The fact is, I asked both of them if they had played football when I saw that little movement."

Rogers Hornsby doesn't dance or read books to save his feet and eyes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 (AP)—Dave Barry, who gained the sobriquet of "Fourteen Count" after the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Soldiers field in 1927, was knocked out early today by a Niles Center policeman. Barry, according to Robert Bowman, was parked along a suburban road within the village limits of Niles Center, and the automobile had no lights aglow. The policeman investigated but Barry refused to answer questions. At the Niles Center station, the prize fight referee refused to leave his car but when Officer Bowman attempted to drag him out, "Fourteen Count" jumped to the ground and assumed a fighting pose. Barry led and Bowman came back with a right cross to the chin, which, according to the policeman, "killed Barry cold." A Niles Center physician was summoned and revived the referee. He identified himself. A woman with him, he said, was his sister-in-law, Mrs. Gertrude Marty, of New York. Barry was held overnight, pending filing of charges today. "I thought it was a holdup," Barry told a justice of the peace in Niles Center today. "You see my sister-in-law had a lot of expensive jewelry and I wanted to protect it." The justice fined Barry $20 and $5 costs on a charge of drunkenness.

CYCLE-RACING BOWL RUINED BY FIRE TODAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 4 (AP)—The velodrome, big wooden cycle-racing bowl, was destroyed before dawn today by a spectacular fire.

Its frame track and stands burned like tinder when flames, apparently from carelessly-tossed cigar stub at last night's races, broke out near the main entrance, and although five alarms brought dozens of pieces of fire-fighting equipment to the scene the structure was reduced quickly.

With seats for eighteen thousand spectators, and a landmark of uptown New York since it was erected at 25th street and Broadway about nine years ago, the velodrome was one of the largest cycle-racing stadia in the world.

Outdoor bicycle and motorcycle races were held there several times a year during the winter, and most of the leading bicycle riders of the world had pedaled around its board track.

The fire damage was estimated unofficially at about $100,000, but officials said the loss from disruption of sport schedules would multiply the figure.

Harry Mendel, manager, said there was no insurance on the structure, and an important part of the loss would be nearly 200 bicycle racers whose wheels were destroyed in the fire.

John Ringling and I. M. Upperton, New York automobile dealer, were co-owners of the velodrome.

GOLF IS ASCENDING

QUINCY, Ill., Aug. 4 (AP)—Quincy likes night baseball better than circuses—but daylight baseball can't outdraw golf.

Eighteen hundred fans turned out last night to watch the Quincy Three Eye league club play Terre Haute, with a circus as the counter attraction, but only 400 passed up their golf to watch the afternoon contest between the clubs.

SHAKESPEARE PLAY IS SUCCESS IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI (AP)—Shakespeare in Chinese has proved popular in Shanghai with the natives.

The Chinese Dramatic club devoted to staging translations of western plays, experimented with "The Merchant of Venice" with great success. To play had a long run and was patronized by rich and poor alike.

Cuba Is Training Foundlings For Useful Citizenship; Leads Others

By H. E. Knoblauch (Associated Press Correspondent)

HAVANA (AP)—Cuba takes a leading place among all nations in its provision for children born of poverty or shame.

Few countries have any official institution to compare with the Casa de Beneficencia in Havana, an establishment supervised by the government and consecrated to affording foundlings ample opportunities to achieve their inalienable birthright—the chance to become happy, useful citizens.

The Casa de Beneficencia, or "House of Refuge," is similar to, and yet quite different from the average foundling asylum, it is similar in that its general objects are the same but the Cuban institution is better organized than the average American or European orphanage.

There is, first of all, little door in the wall to which, under cover of night, an unfortunate mother or poverty-stricken widower may bring a tiny babe of dependent humanity. Inside the door is a soft, revolving cradle, big enough to hold three infants and connected with the main signal by wires which immediately signal the arrival of a new charge.

The parent is scarcely half a dozen steps down the street before the babe is in the hands of a nun. There follow years of careful nursing, tender treatment and education.

No phase of possible development is overlooked. Aesthetically as well as physically, morally as well as mentally, the boy or girl is trained to assume the responsibilities of the adult man or woman.

A striking example of the results is afforded by the career of Dr. Juan Valdes, one of the country's greatest physicians.

Dr. Valdes was a foundling. He was educated as any American college man of means might be and rose to the top of his profession.

The name "Valdes," incidentally, is bestowed upon all male babies. It was the name of one of the founders of the asylum.

The refuge has been in existence more than a century. It has reared thousands of children into good citizenship and is commensal respect and admiration of every resident of Cuba.

River Flows Backward

The Chicago river originally emptied into Lake Michigan. Now, water from the lake is forced through the river into the Illinois river and thence into the Mississippi river. Thus it may be said that the Chicago river flows backward.
