DOTS AND DASHES TEACH VIOLIN NOTICE QUICKLY

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—In 15 minutes, says Prof. Claude Semmler, head of the department of violin at Texas Christian university, he can teach almost anyone to play a tune on the violin.

His method discards ordinary notations of music, and substitutes a series of dots, dashes and numerals. Each symbol stands for a certain action by the player.

"The object of this quick-teaching method is not to develop artists, he says "but it makes an interesting, pastime, and novices find it amusing."

Llano, Texas, experienced freakish weather recently when for two consecutive days the temperature rose to 103 in the afternoon and dropped to 53 at night.

SETH PARKER GETS PLENTY OF FAN MAIL

By C. E. Butterfield (Associated Press Radio Editor)

There's a young man in radio who seems to be getting along right well. His mail, and he gets loads of it, comes addressed "Phillips H. Lord." Maybe those who listen know him much better as Seth Parker, and then again maybe he is more familiar as Uncle Abe of the new Uncle Abe and David sketches.

This artist does not portray aged Yankee characters, although he is comparatively young in years. His birth came July 13, 1902.

The son of a minister, Lord grew up on a Maine farm.

Besides "Sunday at Seth Parkers," heard Sunday nights on WEAF and NBC coast to coast chain, and the Uncle Abe and David daily skits, also on a WEAF chain, he is the originator of Seth Parker's Singing school, heard weekly from a number of individual stations.

To accomplish all of his tasks, and radio does not get all of his attention, requires just about 15 hours of plugging a day. Here are some of the other things he does besides writing and acting the radio skits: writes books, composes hymns, makes records, and writes four newspaper articles a week.

It is estimated that his prolific pen turns out the equivalent of three 3-act plays a week.

Then there are rehearsals for his radio appearances to be taken into consideration.

To sneak up on the young man when he is writing his script is almost like attending a show. The busy pencil rushes over the paper at a happy thought. A quick turn of the head to the right, and Seth Parker comes into being as the author writes out a phrase in that particular style. The pen. It again.

A turn of the head to the left, another character is speaking. Back to the paper time after time, and another twist of the head, and another sketch is turned out.

AGA KAHN'S FRENCH WIFE LIKEN TAILORED STYLES

PARIS (AP)—Red and white is a favorite color combination of the Begum Aga Kahn, French wife of one of the wealthiest East Indian princes here.

Many of her golf costumes are white with red accessories. She also wears afternoons costumes of red and white or red and black print.

The Begum Aga Kahn prefers semi-tailored clothes even for afternoon wear and she has a marked penchant for skirts of medium length. Her sister runs a Paris dress shop.

India Trade Boycott May Aid U. S.; Nationalists' Fire Aimed at Britain

WASHINGTON (AP)—While America's business stake in seething India is jeopardized by the political disturbance, government economists see possible benefits eventually accruing to the United States from the boycotts instituted by the Indian nationalists.

It is quite possible, the economists say, that the movement of the nationalists, regardless of its outcome, may result in India seeking more of its import necessities from countries other than Great Britain.

American trade, department of commerce observers say, is only partially sharing the handicaps which the Indian merchants sought to impose on British trade.

While the boycotts have been nominally directed against all foreign goods, the direct animus has been against British products. In fact, statistics during recent months show that while British imports into India have declined sharply, those from other countries, especially Germany, Japan and the United States, have increased somewhat.

Business in India now, however, is described as "stagnant" with little or no hope for great improvement in the near future.

Our exports to India consist largely of kerosene oil and specialties such as automobiles, sewing machines, typewriters and cigarets. Most of these are luxuries which only a comparatively small number can afford.

In 1929 our exports to India were valued at $55,390,000. The United States imported from India that year products valued at $149,332,000.

Forest Planting On Increase In Pacific States

Forest planting by all the principal agencies engaged in the work of reforestation in Oregon and Washington last year covered a total of 6,117 acres, records just compiled by the U. S. forest service, Portland, Oregon, show. This is 5 1/2 per cent of the total acreage planted in the United States last year, which amounted to 111,175 acres.

Several reasons are given by foresters for this low percentage of planting in the most important forest region of America. First, much of the forest land of Oregon and Washington reforests naturally if given reasonable and proper protection from fire. Second, federal appropriations for planting on burned-over areas that need it are insufficient. Third, the idea of forest planting as a profitable venture for industrial organizations is just beginning to take hold in this region.

The total acreage set out in young forest trees in 1929 included 107,557 acres in the continental United States. 2,094 acres in Hawaii, and 1,534 acres in Porto Rico. Reforestation activities included the planting of 31,430 acres by 21 states and two territories; 5,920 acres by municipalities; 25,088 acres by industrial organizations; 539 acres by schools and colleges; and 1,516 acres by other organizations.

Planting by farmers for the extension or improvement of farm woodlots and windbreaks amounted to 64,825 acres; and planting by other individuals, 3,650 acres. The U. S. forest service planted 18,207 acres of land on national forests in 1929.

The totals for Oregon and Washington are: planting by municipalities, 500 acres; by industrial organizations, 3,346 acres; by farmers, 188 acres; and by the U. S. forest service, 2,085 acres.

Michigan, with 27,820 acres restored to tree growth, led the states last year in total acres planted to forests. New York ranked second with 21,135; and Louisiana third with 19,883 acres. Other states which ranked high in forest-planting activities were Pennsylvania, with 6,318 acres; Washington, 4,400 acres; Massachusetts, 3,388 acres; Ohio, 3,425 acres; and California, 3,023 acres.

Industrial forest plantings in 1929 included 10,090 acres planted by pulp and paper companies; 8,732 acres by lumber companies; 3,189 acres by water and power companies; 1,581 acres by mining companies; 100 acres by railroad companies; and 1,446 acres by other industrial organizations. The industrial plantings in the Pacific northwest consisted of 2,500 acres by lumber companies, and 786 acres by pulp and paper companies.

Through the provisions of section 4 of the Clarke-McNary reforestation act, the federal government assists in the cost of operating nurseries at Oregon state college, Corvallis, and Washington state college, Pullman. These nurseries are handled by the schools of forestry, and here planting stock is raised or distributed to farmers for windbreak and shelter-belt planting. The Crown-Williamette company in Oregon and the Long-Bell Lumber company in Washington maintain private forest nurseries. The federal forest service operates a nursery at Wind River, near Carson, Washington, for the raising of 1929, the cumulative total of all re-planting stock for federal forests.

To the end of the calendar year just planting in the United States of which the forest service has record was 1,993,398 acres. This included 274,385 acres of national forest land and 206,583 acres by states; 46,282 acres industrial organizations; 16,335 acres planted by the federal government; by municipalities, 193,262 acres by other organizations; 5,315 by schools and colleges; and 91,776 acres by farmers and other individuals. In cumulative acreage planted, Iowa led with 242,260 acres; Nebraska was second with 210,088 acres; Kansas third with 201,190 acres; and New York fourth with 183,369 acres.

A Japanese author has just published a book of more than 500 pages devoted to English verbs and adverbs.

Place of Women Still In Home In Australia

By Sue McNamara (Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the woman looking for a husband and a home Australia is a land of promise, but not for the woman seeking fame and a career, says Mrs. Kenneth Street of Sydney.

Mrs. Street looks with amazement upon the prosperous looking, efficient women she meets in this country who are holding down big jobs.

"Through women have had the vote in Australia for 30 years, only four women in all that time have been elected to state parliament," says this fair haired, simply dressed Australian woman who is the wife of a supreme court justice and the daughter-in-law of a knight.

"So if it's a mahogany desk and a big salary which lures a woman she had better stay in America. If it's ruffled curtains, baby cribs and a ## shining kitchen, well, that's another story."

Mrs. Street is president of the newly organized United Association of New South Wales, numbering about 300 women, which seeks to obtain for Australian women some of the political and business advantages enjoyed by women in this country.

Her first step after her return home will be to take a survey of all employed women to ascertain the discrepancy in pay between men and women, in what trades women are allowed and what chances they have for promotion. The drive for legislation will follow.

Australia, she says, fines its voters 25 if they fail to vote. Women as well as men are often fined.

BREASTSTONE FAMILY REUNION BIG AFFAIR

PUT-IN-BAY, Ohio (AP)—The Breaststones will put in at this port for their third great tribal reunion, August 24. Descendants of a Jewish patriarch, reputed to be the first Hebrew land-owner in Russia, the Breaststones, Bregstones and Breckstons of America have kept their family ties well knit. The family has ## its own newspaper. More than 200 attended the 1929 reunion.

STUDIES MINE SAFETY

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—H. K. Catterji, mine inspector of India, has just completed a study of safety methods in the iron ore mines in Northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

SWIMMING POOL TOO POPULAR

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—A backyard swimming pool was built for their children two years ago by Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Haven to keep them out of traffic dangers. Now the neighbors' children flock there in such numbers that the Havens charge a nickel a day to keep the crowd within reasonable size.

MINNESOTA ORDER BUSY

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Approximately 250,000 persons entered the United States across the Northern Minnesota border in automobiles during the fiscal year ending June 30. Another 60,843 persons entered on trains.

Don't Stub Your Toe!

ONE DARK NIGHT — so the story goes — a certain monarch placed a large boulder in the middle of the road. Thousands of his people, thereafter, severely stubbed their toes or troubled to walk around. At length, one lusty youth—wiser than the rest—seized the stone and heaved it from his path. And where it had rested, he found a bag of gold.

Are you stubbing your toe? Are you overlooking any bags of gold? How about the advertising in this paper? Do you read it—consistently? It is a bag of gold to many of our readers.

In our columns you will find the advertisements of alert, progressive merchants and manufacturers who seek to tell you something they think you ought to know. This advertising is news about the very things that interest you most — articles that will save you money, lessen your work, or add materially to your comfort and well-being.

Thrifty men and women read advertising. To them it is a plain, every-day business proposition — a duty they owe themselves and their purses. It tells them where they can buy exactly what they want at a price they can afford to pay.

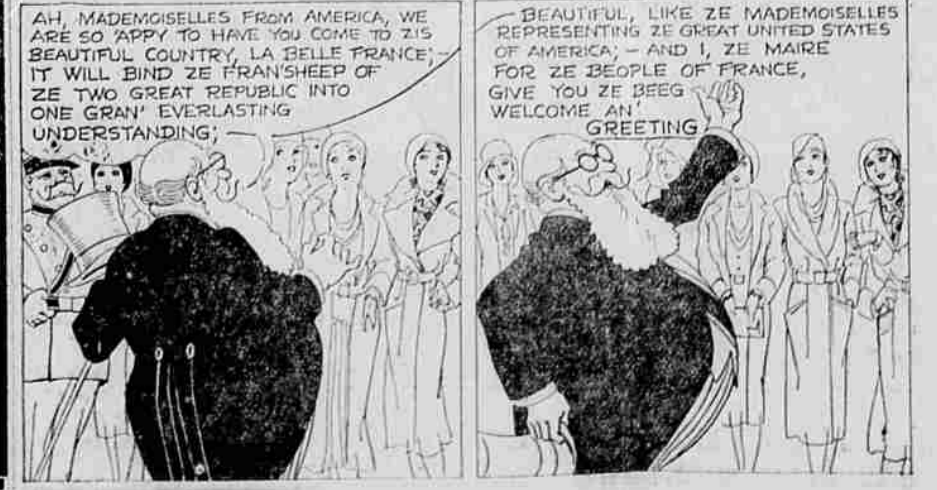

Advertising pays them. They make it pay.

It will pay you too. Read it
