WOOL MARKET
 BOSTON, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin of Boston will say tomorrow:

"While two or three houses report fairly good business again this past week. There is little doubt that the demand for wool has tapered off more or less on the whole. Prices, however, keep firm and favor the finer worsted descriptions still.

"Foreign markets are firm though quiet and somewhat unsettled. Tendency by reason of strikes or financial difficulties. Midsummer dullness prevails across the Atlantic as well as here.

"The place goods markets respond slowly to the new openings but September and the opening of agencies is expected to reveal more clearly the buying disposition of the market.

"Mohair still is slow, with prices nominal here and abroad."

The bulletin will publish the following quotations:

Scoured basis: Oregon: fine and f. m. staple 73-75; fine and f. m. clothing 65-67; valley No. 1, 67-68.

Mohair: Oregon: 38-40; domestic grading first combing 50-52; good carding 34-35.

MAY PARK GOLD STAR MOTHER IS HOME FROM TRIP

bi crosses standing row on row. Coming nearer we found the acreage carpeted with grass and clover. Kept closely moved. This particular cemetery was in a rolling country the grounds being on a very gradual slope.

At the head of each grave to be visited by a gold star mother, and at the base of the cross had been placed an American flag. The graves are so arranged that it was very easy to locate the particular ones. Each mother was given a beautiful wreath, provided by the government, to place on her son's grave. The company was taken out each of three mornings with considerable time allowed to remain there. The trip was made over a different route each morning as was the return to Verdun, thus giving the visitors many glimpses of the battlefields.

Much Rehabilitation
 "The devastation which we saw, even after these years, is beyond description," Mrs. Beeson said. Trenches, barbed wire entanglements, shell torn areas, dug-outs, all of these were viewed by the mothers of the men who had had such a tremendous part in it all.

"There is much rehabilitation going on, according to Mrs. Beeson, but not in the localities which they visited."

But to return to the cemeteries, for that is what the mothers were interested in most of all. The burying grounds are nearly all surrounded by stone walls or will be soon. At the Meuse-Argonne ground, a million dollar memorial building is being planned. There are walks, drives, flower gardens and caretakers quarters—all of these surmounted by the glorious Stars and Stripes. Some small trees dot the ground, but these are to be removed before they get to be too large. There is a building at the outskirts of the cemetery where visitors may be accommodated with lodging and food.

Excellent Weather
 "We were fortunate in having splendid weather," Mrs. Beeson reported. Our heavy coats were never worn unless we needed them on the upper deck. The food was good, probably not prepared as we would have prepared it, but it was very good, nevertheless."

The group sailed from France on the President Roosevelt and were on the sea on the return trip for another eight days.

Mrs. Beeson was gone from the valley but one month and six days, but it was a period of time crammed with experiences which will never be forgotten, with courtesies and kind-

Buy $81 Worth Of Crawfish For Wallowa Lakes

ENTERPRISE, Ore. (Special)—Game Warden George Rogers conceived the idea of planting a few crawfish in certain of the high lakes. The idea occurred to him that, if they thrived and became plentiful, part of the problem of food for the ever increasing number of fish in these waters would be solved. Accordingly Mr. Rogers ran a very small advertisement, according to the Recorder-Chiefman. He would pay one cent each for crawfish and hoped to get a hundred or two by this means.

Now the average citizen going about his farming, dairying, merchandising or what not, would not consider crawfish overly plentiful. Mr. Rogers himself had never been impressed by their abundance.

Next morning after the paper came out, however, there were small boys in a line a block long waiting to deliver and collect. Each had a can, bucket, or old coffee pot and each wanted to turn the wriggling contents into cash, so he could go back and catch some more.

Calls came from other towns and Mr. Rogers was kept busy all day counting and accepting delivery of crawfish. He would dash up to Joseph, do his stuff and fly to Lostine on the urgent call that youngsters had crawfish and no place to keep them.

At night worn out and weary Mr. Rogers checked up and found he had some $100. Imagine $100 crawfish!

He then sent out word to all and sundry that he was supplied with crawfish for the present. He would buy no more. He had enough to do to care for the thousands he had. At every turn, however, the small boy-optimistic or uninformed of the collapse of the market, would head him off and offer him crawfish. This continued until it was unsafe to even say "crawfish" anywhere near the game warden.

Mr. Rogers is moving them to the high lakes this week, using cream cans, 250 crawfish to the can, and two cans to the mule or jack horse. A little arithmetic will show that it is quite some job to convey, distribute and plant 8000 crawfish in the high mountains.

TWO CAUGHT AT SAFE IN OIL STATION

Officers rather expected the men to attempt to shoot their way out. No cars were near, however, and it is possible that the two men did not have an immediate means of escape or they might have pursued a different course. It is said.

Believed Professionals
 Early this morning the safe in the oil station could not be opened due to the work of the yeggs. The two are believed to be professionals. They were described by one of the officers as "cool as a cucumber." Both used gloves so as not to leave any fingerprints.

Nothing was found on the men to establish identification, officers having to accept the names given them.

Several other places were broken into last night, including Van Petten Lumber company, L. W. Weeks' garage, Bloomfield and bed. Weeks' In the last two places strong boxes were broken open but a check this morning revealed nothing missing. At Van Petten's nothing was taken, according to reports.

Police officers said this morning they believed a third person was implicated with Mitchell and Gregg, basing this belief on the fact that they saw a strange car traveling through the east business district this morning. The prowler car was not available at that time and the stranger could not be pursued. The car did not appear to be passing through La Grande, but rather circling around.
