Domestic Grain Markets Weaker During The Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Domestic grain markets weakened slightly during the week ending August 16, and prices of most grains declined from recent higher levels, according to the weekly grain market review of the United States bureau of agricultural economics. Increased offerings of spring wheat and prospects that supplies of wheat in the northern hemisphere for the current season may equal or possibly slightly exceed those of last year, were weakening factors in the wheat market. Scattered rains in the central west which partially relieved the drought in some areas, checked the advance in the corn market. Oats and barley continued in moderate demand, but some of the recent advance in prices was lost. Rye was lower with wheat, while flax declined under the influence of heavier offerings and only a moderate inquiry for new seed.

The August 1 official estimate placed the United States spring wheat crop at approximately 175,000,000 bushels, and the durum crop in the four principal producing states at 48,000,000 bushels, making a total of 223,000,000 bushels of spring wheat, compared with 225,000,000 bushels produced last season. The estimate of winter wheat was raised to 897,000,000 bushels, about 40,000,000 bushels over the July estimate, and about 20,000,000 bushels over last season's harvest. This would give a total output of all wheat of about 1,120,000,000 bushels, or 15,000,000 bushels more than in 1929. The August 1 estimate placed the spring wheat acreage in Canada at 24,085,000 acres, and the condition of the crop at 85 per cent of the 10 year average yield of 15.2 bushels per acre. This suggests a crop of 65,000,000 to 75,000,000 bushels over last year's harvest. Stocks of old wheat in Canada were estimated at 112,000,000 bushels, or about 10,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago. Combining production and carry-over of wheat in North America for the current season, estimates of the United States and Canada, supplies apparently will be around 125,000,000 bushels above those of last season.

Little information is yet available as to supplies of wheat in Europe, but conditions there are probably around 50,000,000 bushels smaller than a year ago. The 1930 European production, not including Russia, may be around 75,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels below that of last year, largely because of smaller crops in France and Italy. The reductions in Europe and North Africa, however, are probably more than offset by the increase in North America and the larger crop in India. Reports from Russia indicate that the harvest in that country is above that of 1929, and that the quality of the grain is good, although of higher maturity than in 1929. Conditions in the southern hemisphere indicate a larger harvest than in 1929, but the crop has four to five months to go before harvest, and conditions during that period will largely determine the output. A record acreage is reported seeded in Australia and weather conditions continue favorable for the growth of the crop both in that country and in Argentina. Supplies of old wheat in the southern hemisphere are considerably below a year ago.

Marketings of hard winter wheat fell off materially during the week, but demand continued fairly active at most markets, with mills and shippers absorbing the current offerings. Cash prices, however, mostly followed the decline in futures.

Pacific coast markets were rather unsettled. The demand at Portland was dull with export demand lacking. Rates on ocean freight space have been advanced and this has checked export business. No sales were reported for the week and charters for September and October shipment are unusually small. Country offerings increased with new crop yields averaging higher than expected in important producing areas. Mills were fairly active buyers but export flour rates were small. No. 1 soft and No. 1 hard winter wheats were quoted at the close of the market August 15 at Portland at 98c. No. 1 hard winter and western red at 90c. No. 1 Big Bend bluestem hard white at $1.05 per bushel. 18 per cent protein No. 1 dark northern spring from Montana was quoted at $1.01 per bushel. No. 1 western white was quoted at $1.01 at 98c. No. 1 hard winter and western red at 91c. and No. 1 Big Bend bluestem hard white at $1.09 per bushel. No. 1 dark hard winter from Montana was quoted at 97c. and 18 per cent protein No. 1 dark northern at $1.02 per bushel.
