Chats With Parents

CLASHES
By Alice Judson Peale

Bill came dashing upstairs bursting with grief. Just because he hadn't come to lunch the very minute nurse called him she wouldn't let him have any at all. She told him that who comes late must go hungry.

This morning she had made him eat his breakfast when he didn't want to, and now she wouldn't let him have anything to eat when he was hungry as a bear.

Mother listened. "The very idea of denying you food when we are trying our best to build you up! Nurse ought to know better than that."

She went downstairs with him and herself served his meal, telling nurse in the boy's presence that deprivation of food was, under the circumstances, the one form of punishment that could not be allowed.

Then she went on her way leaving Bill smug and triumphant to consume his lunch, and nurse to cope as best she could with the problem of dealing with a child who had just discovered that what she said did not count for much.

A mother who has delegated her authority to someone else can make no mistake more serious than overruling it in the child's presence. Better that he should miss a meal than acquire an attitude of disrespect toward the person to whom he must look for daily guidance and care.

Allowing someone else to do a part of your own task as mother may not be as satisfactory as doing the whole job yourself. Yet if, for one reason or another, it seems worthwhile or necessary to let a nurse or relative take partial charge of your child, you must work out your differences when the child is not present.

Maryland will play 12 football games this fall.

Health Talks

HARD OF HEARING
At a recent national conference of the League for the Hard of Hearing, one of the speakers introduced a resolution calling for the condemnation of vaudevilleans and other theatrical persons who, as the resolution read, "make fun of those hard of hearing."

The resolution was almost unanimously voted down, all of the discussers maintaining that they would much prefer to have the world laugh with them.

This was an interesting reaction on the part of 500 persons, the largest percentage of them deaf, who had convened to consider the improvement of the conditions of the deafened.

In this connection it is interesting to note the public attitude toward the deafened. While usually completely sympathetic to those otherwise afflicted with infirmities of physical disabilities, we show but little sympathy to the deafened.

One writer humorously confesses this feeling as follows:
"If a blind man jostles me, my resentment is gone the instant that I look at him—but when a stranger whom I meet at table is impervious to the tones of my mellifluous voice, or fails to respond to my sparkling wit, he mortifies my self-esteem in a manner for which I do not at once, if ever, see the possible excuse."

The importance of the public attitude toward deafness lies not only in the effect it has upon the deafened but also in the relative indifference which it witnesses towards the entire problem of deafness—about a disability affecting 3,000,000 of our school children, and several millions more of our adult population, is allowed to prevail with but a small portion of public interest enlisted in the war against it.

Deafness is, in a large measure, preventable, but full prevention de-

40-Foot Bridge Is Burned Near Maxville, Ore.

By Mrs. M. F. Raymond (Observer Correspondent)
MAXVILLE, Ore. (Special)—Fire, believed to have been started by sparks from a brake shoe, Monday burned a 40-foot bridge on the Bowman-Hicks railroad, seven miles this side of Wallowa. The main line train had gone into Wallowa and may have set the fire, which was reported to E. F. Whitson, superintendent, Monday evening about 5 o'clock. He quickly organized a crew of men and they went to the scene, arriving there about the time the train came down from the Wallowa end of the line. The fire was put out and the train was sent back to Wallowa for timbers so the work of rebuilding the bridge could commence. The train got into Maxville at 6 a. m. Tuesday but ran on schedule that day.

On their way to the South Fork on a fishing trip, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Chandler, of La Grande, spent Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Huffman. The women are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Murphy accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Sprague of Wallowa, drove to La Grande and returned Sunday.

Fred Jennison and son, Frederick, drove in from Winchester, Idaho, Saturday evening for a visit with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Harlan Huffman and family. Frederick will make his home here this winter and attend school, while his father will return to Winchester in a few days.

V. F. Yeske returned to his work Monday after being laid up for nearly a week with tonsillitis.

Little Donnell McKenzie, son of Mrs. Glen Sprague, of Wallowa, spent several days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Murphy.

Mary Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Huffman, returned to her home Monday after several days spent in Wallowa with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. David Scott.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet Hesse drove over to Eden and return Sunday. Eden is located across the Grande Ronde river from Prineas.

People driving into Maxville find the last mile and a half very rough and dusty, it being necessary to use the new grade for that distance.

LATIN-AMERICAN OLYMPIAD CONSIDERED FOR TIJUANA

TIJUANA, Mex. (AP)—A Latin-American Olympic games is being considered by Lambert Alvarez-Gayou, director general of athletics for Baja California.

As the part of a major plan to elevate athletics in this Mexican province on a higher plane, Alvarez-Gayou proposes to invite competitors from Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Ecuador, Cuba, San Salvador and Venezuela to compete with Mexican stars in a meet here following the tenth Olympiad at Los Angeles.

The director general of athletics is sponsoring the construction of a large gymnasium and athletic field here in anticipation of the proposed contests in 1932.
