Tweeds, Crepes Important In Daytime Garb

By Adelaide Kerr
NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Feminine daytime garb this season will range from gay loose-woven tweeds for fall to dainty crepes on winter days.

Tweeds galore will probably be seen during football days. But the American woman who lives in steam-heated houses, has less fondness for the winter woolen frock than her European sister and winter will find her slipping her coat over a silk dress.

"Tweeds this fall are bright in tone, soft and non-irritating," says Andrew Goodman of Bergdorf-Goodman. "The three-piece tweed suit with a long or hip-length coat for collar and tuck-in blouse promises to be one of the favorites. Many of the skirts are yoked with slight fullness falling to the front."

Among the models displayed are a loose-woven tangerine tweed, flecked with black and white beige, designed with a semi-fitted coat which is several inches shorter than the skirt; a black tweed flecked with red and white, fashioned with a hip-length coat and a red crepe blouse; and a green tweed shot with threads of black and beige.

Three-piece jersey sports suits promise to be popular. The woman who goes into suit and snow flies.

Frock Based on Coat
The winter silk frock will be based on milady's coat. With a black coat she may choose at least one black dress, fashion designers will also brighten many a dark frock. Dresses generally are marked by the natural waistline, flat hips and even hemlines, with skirts "giving less at the sides than in the past."

Fill the gap
The Sunday night dress is going to be popular again this year," says Mr. Goodman. "It fills the gap between afternoon frocks and formal evening gowns and American women like it. It will often be designed of black chiffon or marquisette and its sleeves may be quite ornamental. One of the models with a rather tight upper and a flaring lower sleeve, is banded just above the elbow with a three-inch strip of straw."

The shoes which milady wears by day will be generally simple and quiet in design and treatment, and may be of suede or dull calf. Generally they match the color of her coat or the fur which trims it. Her stockings will be of a deep sunburn tint, fashionable this year.

Her bag may be of suede or faulle, matching her outfit, while her gloves will be of the same color as her coat if her wrap is black or brown or will match its fur trimming if the coat is in a brighter color.

PEDALS BIKE 500 MILES
IN LESS THAN FOUR DAYS
CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP)—Six-day bicycle races are pikers compared to Leroy Sharpneck, 38, of Chicago. The six-day racers have a smooth track and they really rest half of the six days.

Leroy climbed on his wheel in Chicago on a Thursday afternoon and pedaled into Carmichaels Sunday afternoon with the thermometer hovering around 100 degrees on each of the three days he was on the road.

The distance is approximately 500 miles. The last 100 miles was over mountain roads.

The youth says he "just decided one afternoon" to test his arm and uncle here, and climbed on his bicycle and started.
