LOUISIANA'S VOTE GIVEN TO GOV. LONG

choices for the national house of representatives.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 10 (AP)—Governor Huey P. Long swept into the democratic nomination for the United States senate over Senator Joseph E. Ransdell yesterday by a majority of approximately 50,000 votes.

In defeating the veteran senator, who has spent 31 years in congress, the governor apparently carried with him to victory three candidates he supported for the house of representatives. With only 218 precincts missing out of 1,423 in yesterday's primary, the vote was Long 134,852; Ransdell 103,684. Long carried 54 of the 54 parishes.

Two Congressmen Defeated.—On the basis of available returns the Long vote rendered the congress Representative Zach Spearling of the second district and James O'Connor of the first. Paul Maloney, New Orleans, with 19 precincts missing led Spearling 23,925 to 19,842. A third candidate, R. H. Rochester, got 2,450 votes.

In the first J. O. Fernandez, a state senator, topped Representative O'Connor with only one precinct missing, 24,927 to 23,425.

Representative Numa Montet was renominated in the third over Clarence J. Bourj, virtually complete returns gave Bourg 8,123, Montet 13,481.

Five other representatives were unopposed. Gov. Long's close race with Senator Ransdell in New Orleans accounted for his large majority. The senator left him in the city by only about 6,000 when his supporters had been claiming a majority of at least 20,000. Long only 37.

Governor Long, militant 37-year-old executive, won the nomination in the face of a concentrated attack from the newspapers of New Orleans and over the state and at a time when he was under sharp fire in connection with the disappearance of Samuel Irby and James Terrell. The two men who were seized in a Shreveport hotel by state police and taken into seclusion before they could carry out their announced intentions of bringing suit against the governor.

RELEASE IS DEFEATED—COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 10 (AP)—Coleman Livingston Blease, for 40 years a storm center in South Carolina politics, has apparently lost his seat in the United States senate to James F. Byrnes, Spartanburg attorney, whom he defeated six years ago.

Returns from yesterday's democratic primary gave Byrnes 119,310 votes to Blease's 114,340 when reports from 1,379 of the 1,423 precincts had been tabulated. The uncounted precincts were in isolated communities. Nomination is equivalent to election.

In the gubernatorial contest between two Spartanburg attorneys, Byrnes C. Blackwood led Olin D. Johnston by 693 votes with 42 boxes unreported. The count gave Blackwood 116,966 votes to Johnston's 116,273.

Although Blease has held practically every public office in the gift of South Carolina democrats, from county representative through the governor's chair to the senate, he has lost as many battles as he has won during his lengthy political career.

Blease, noted for his fiery speeches in the 40 county seats to a discussion of national politics and economic questions.

Blease, noted for his fiery speeches in the stump, departed from his usual speeches in this campaign and related his record in the senate.

COUZENS WINS EASILY—DETROIT, Sept. 10 (AP)—Senator James Couzens, Michigan's senior member of the upper house of congress, won an easy victory in yesterday's republican primary, taking the nomination which is equivalent to election by a majority which may be above 100,000 when all votes are counted. Couzens' opponent, former Governor Chase S. Osborn, who based his campaign on the senator's party irregularity, conceded defeat when returns from 1,394 of the state's 3,317 precincts showed Couzens leading by 243,116 to 143,539 votes.

In the various congressional districts, with two possible exceptions, incumbent representatives fared almost as well as the hands of the voters. One race remained uncertain today, while in the other, Representative Louis C. Cramton, veteran prohibition leader, was pressed by his opponent, Jesse P. Wolcott, on incomplete returns.

Wolcott, a Port Huron attorney, advocated submission of the prohibition question to a referendum. In 174 out of 191 precincts in the district—the seventh—Wolcott had 22,215 and Cramton 22,847.

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—A cracked propeller was discovered today by Deaconne Coste, Maurice Bellonte on their trans-Atlantic plane "7," boding a delay in the start of their good-will tour around the United States.

The French fliers paused at Curtiss airport, on their way to a polo match, to examine their plane and found that a propeller blade was split. A new blade was ordered immediately from France, but the necessity of waiting for it will delay the start of their good will tour for more than a week.

ARREST FORMER PREMIER—WARSAW, Poland, Sept. 10 (AP)—Arrest of former Premier Witos, noted peasant leader and seventeen former deputies in parliament today initiated Poland's election campaign. The elections are scheduled for Nov. 16.

After dissolution of parliament, the government resumed investigation, and the arrests apparently were the result.

SEATTLE, Sept. 10 (AP)—Thomas P. Revell, U. S. attorney from 1921 to 1926, urged Roy Olmsted, king of Pacific northwest bootleggers, to reveal the names of "gold bricks" to whom he had been paying huge sums of protection money. Revell testified in the Lyle-Whitney trial in federal court here today.

Revell is a defense witness for Roy C. Lyle, former prohibition administrator, William M. Whitney, his assistant, and Earl Corwin and R. L. Fryant, former agents, who are charged with having collected more than $100,000 bribe money from organized liquor runners here in 1925, 1926 and 1927. Revell said Olmsted had come to him in April, 1925, after his conviction in the so-called first Olmsted case and the rum king, who was facing a four year penitentiary term, asked him if Alfred M. Hubbard, who had been Olmsted's protegee, was a dry agent. Revell said he declined to answer but called Whitney to his house and after learning that Olmsted intended to drop his appeal and plead guilty to the expected indictment in the second Olmsted case, Revell said he advised Whitney to tell Olmsted about Hubbard.

DEATH TAKES M'BRIDE AT SALEM HOME

He was 83 years old. Death was attributed to cerebral embolism. Yesterday Justice McBride's last opinion was handed down by the supreme court. It was a lengthy document, written in the aged judge's characteristic lucid and entertaining style.

Justice McBride had been longer in the legal profession than any man in Oregon. With him at the end were Mrs. McBride, his son, George A. McBride, Portland, his daughter, Mrs. Mae Newton, of Deer Island, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Laura Baxter, of Berkeley.

Pioneer of Frontier Days—Justice McBride, who served more than two decades as a member of the Oregon supreme court, was himself a pioneer of frontier days. He came of a family that was one of the earliest that pioneered the state. The McBride family became established in Oregon more than three-quarters of a century ago. Its members have done conspicuous service to the state. Justice McBride had the distinction of being the oldest lawyer in the state in point of years of continuous service. Justice McBride was born in Yamhill county, Nov. 15, 1847. His parents were James and Mahala (Miller) McBride, the former a native of Tennessee and the latter of Missouri. On his father's side Justice McBride's ancestors came from the north of Ireland to America about 1760. James McBride, great-grandfather of the justice, served in the Revolutionary war as lieutenant in the Virginia regulars. His wife was an aunt of President Andrew Jackson. Their son, a native of Tennessee, was a minister and assisted Alexander Campbell and Arton W. Stone in organization of the Christian or Campolite church. James McBride, father of the justice, crossed the plains to Oregon in 1845 and took up a donation land claim in Yamhill county. He was a farmer, physician, preacher and teacher. Until late in life he farmed in Yamhill county and then moved to St. Helens, Columbia county where he lived until his death in 1875. He was the third physician to locate in Oregon and the first in Yamhill county. He was not uncommon for him to ride 100 miles on horseback to see a patient. Later President Lincoln appointed him minister to the Hawaiian islands, but after a short service in the islands he resigned and returned to St. Helens.

Head Law in Vancouver—Tom McBride, the future member of the Oregon supreme court, attended school and read law at Vancouver, Wash., and later entered McMinnville college, now known as Kinross, but attending college he taught school. He was admitted to the bar at Salem Oct. 5, 1870, and practiced at Lafayette, E. Helens and Oregon City. In 1878 he went to Salt Lake City where he practiced for two years. Returning to Oregon City he joined a law partnership with Edward L. Eastman and they were associated for six years. McBride then formed a partnership with A. S. Dreser that continued until 1892.

In 1892 Governor Moody appointed McBride district attorney for the fifth judicial district. He served until 1892 when he became circuit judge of the district. He served on this bench 17 years, and in 1909 Governor Benson appointed him a member of the supreme court. As a member of the supreme court, he had served five terms as chief justice up to 1930.

Married in 1875. Justice McBride in 1875 married Miss Mary E. Merrill of a prominent pioneer family of Columbia county. Mrs. McBride died in 1925. They had two children, George M. McBride, Portland, and Mrs. E. A. Newton of St. Helens. Justice McBride married a second time, in 1927—to Mrs. Lotie May Chappell of Portland.

Justice McBride was a republican. He was a member of the Christian church, of various Masonic branches including the Shrine, and of the Elks. He was a member of the Oregon Bar association and the American Bar association.

Nationalists On Great Offensive Movement Now

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10 (AP)—Four hundred thousand nationalist government troops began a great offensive today to drive northern alliance rebels out of Honan province. Nationalist military dispatches stated 40 divisions were advancing toward Chengchow over railroads east and south of the insurgent base city.

Independent sources reported thousands of nationalist soldiers moving westward over the Hanchow-Tungkuang railroad from Suichow, Kiangsu province, having been withdrawn from Shantung battlefields. They were hampered in their advance westward of Kweitch in Honan by floods which crippled the railroad.

Large bodies of nationalist troops also moved northward along the Peiping-Hankow railway, but were at least 100 miles south of Chengchow.

SAFETY TEST PLANNED—SA' EM, Ore., Sept. 10 (AP)—Marion county is to be used as the testing ground for a safety program, primarily for the benefit of school children, and if it works successfully here it will be carried to all counties in the state.

This was decided upon at a safety conference called here yesterday by Secretary of State Hoss. The program will be concerned mainly with protection from traffic hazards.

North Carolina has 193 public water systems serving 900,000 persons, or 30 per cent of the state's population.
