Weather Condition Good For Livestock

PORTLAND (AP)—Range and weather conditions in Oregon are favorable for this time of year, and little feeding is being done, as snow is generally off the ground and stock back on the feeding ranges. This is the report of the federal-state crop reporting service of the department of agriculture.

Condition of stock is from fair to very good, the report said, and there is plenty of feed to carry through the winter. Sheep are staying out on ranges exceptionally late and are in good condition.

Range conditions in the state show a slight improvement over December, and little feeding has been required. Lack of snow is causing a government report said, while other districts say feeding will have to begin again if frost and fog continues.

While the condition of Oregon cattle shows very little change from last month, a great number are being held because of low price. Sheep are wintering well.

Even Mice Have Musical Moments

SALEM (AP)—Even mice have their musical moments. Witness, for example, the tawny-gray creature captured here in a grocery store.

For the past two months Mr. and Mrs. George A. Fisher heard noises emanating from their store room. Nothing could be found. The noises continued, sometimes with the rasping chirp of a cricket, but oftener with a quaint musical lilt. Most frequently it was heard at night. Occupants of the living quarters in the rear of the structure were awakened, puzzled by strange melodies.

Finally Mrs. Fisher discovered the mouse when she was sweeping out the corners near some carrot sacks. The mouse escaped. All devices to capture it failed until it was again seen singing merrily away in a carrot sack.

Then strategy was called into play—the open end of the bag was placed in the mouth of a large candy jar and the tiny creature moved its quarters.

Since its capture it has made a cozy nest in one corner of a match box in the jar. It lives on carrots, bits of cabbage, lettuce, bread, potatoes and cheese.

It will be housed in the jar while experts at Oregon State college study its vocal powers and test and record them scientifically.
