HUSKIES DEFEAT STATERS 39 TO 30

Washington Has Strange Hold on Northern Division Title Race

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 7 (AP)—The University of Washington Huskies gained a strange hold on first place in the Northern division Pacific coast conference basketball race here last night when they defeated Oregon State college 39 to 30.

With only seven games remaining on the Washington schedule, the Huskies have a big advantage over the other schools in the conference and stand a good chance of winning their fourth straight Northern title.

The Beavers proved Washington all the way leading four times during the game. The first half was up and down with the teams deadlocked at 14 all at the half. The Huskies never led during the first stanza but tied up the count four times.

Huskies Move Ahead.

Washington grabbed the lead at the start of the second half on a sensational one-handed shot by Swanson, but it did not last long as O. S. C. forged out in front again at 19-18 two minutes later on baskets by Grayson and Lyman.

Five converted free throws and one field goal by Swanson and Corney gave the Huskies a big advantage immediately afterward and Washington breezed away to victory.

The two tall ends of the conference race, Oregon and Idaho, played a dealing game at Moscow last night with the Websters leading out the Idahoans, 23 to 20. It was Oregon's first victory of the season.

Games Tonight.

Washington meets Oregon State and Idaho tonight with Oregon again tonight. A victory for the Beavers here will put them in the running again.

Loughran Trims Max Baer With Ease In Gotham

By Herbert W. Barker
NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Thanks to the same deadly left hand that made him king of all the light heavyweights, Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia dancing master, had stepped back into the heavyweight picture today.

The biggest crowd of the indoor fight season—12,000 persons—saw the Philadelphia jab his way to a ridiculously easy ten-round decision over Max Baer, willing but clumsy California youngster, in Madison Square Garden last night.

The match was more than faintly reminiscent of Loughran's masterful performance against Jimmy Braddock in defense of his light heavyweight crown here 18 months ago.

All of Old-Time Speed.

Stepping around with his old-time speed, Loughran stabbed Baer off balance with a stinging left jab all evening, evaded almost all of the youngster's wild rushes, whipped over him, uppercut, and opportunity presented itself and won the unanimous decision of the two judges and Referee Jack Dempsey.

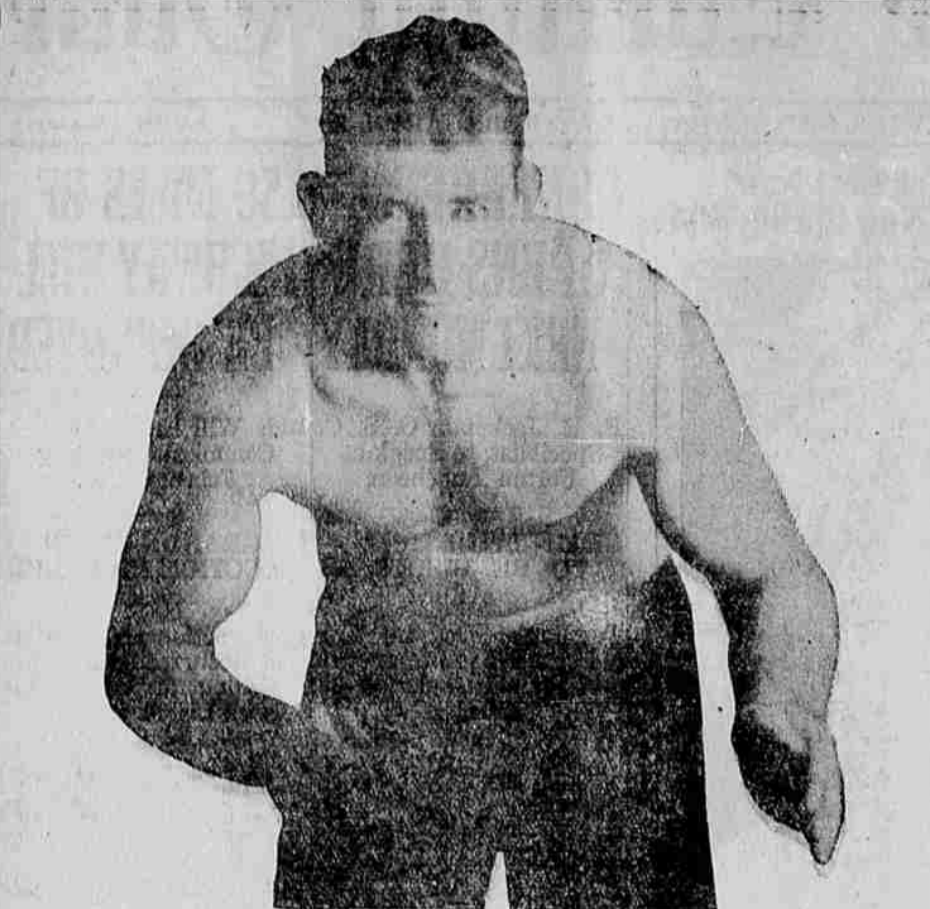

Professional Press score card gave Loughran all ten of the rounds, so beautiful a boxing masterpiece did the Philadelphia turn in that Baer himself was forced to laugh at his own futile efforts to catch Tommy long enough to rip home a solid blow.

Faded Dempsey's Jinx.

The bout not only re-established Loughran among the heavyweight contenders with a possible return bout with Jack Sharkey, looming ahead, but it jinxed that has spoiled Dempsey's work as a referee here. Previously the old Manassa Mauler had officiated at the Scott-Forest local, which ended when Scott took a tip on the thigh and went down crying "foul" and at the recent match between Baer and Tom Heeney, which ended when Heeney was pushed through the ropes and the timekeeper scratched his count.

Baer, weighing 230½ pounds, had a 1½ point edge on Loughran.

DUCKS' OUTLOOK VERY UNCERTAIN

Portland Team Going Somewhere, But Will it be Up or Down?

By Russell J. Newland
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Ducks are going somewhere this season in the Coast League but at the present writing, observers are uncertain whether the direction will be up or down.

In this connection, read what L. R. Gregory, the baseball patriarch of Portland, has to say: "The club needs at least two, and it could use three good pitchers. One of them must be a left-hander. If Larry Woodall stays, we are okay behind the bat. The infield looks like the best in the league. If the old boys can hold up, the outfield won't be bad."

Portland will possess a new manager in Spencer Abbott, late of Omaha, this season, which makes it somewhat tough on Woodall, as the latter held down the berth last year. Timmerford Woodall wants to hook up with another club.

John Fitzpatrick, 6 feet 2 inch young giant, was purchased from California and Western League on the recommendation of Manager Abbott. He will replace Joe Palmisano, catcher sold to the Philadelphia Athletics. Louch, an 18-year old six-footer, from Battle Ground, Wash., will be given a tryout in the catching department.

Pitchers are Needed.

Pitchers are wanted. Among the holdovers are Walter Mills, only left hander on the squad; Ray Kingston, spitting veteran; Curtis Fullerton and John "Chuk" Walters, the handy man of the club, who when not pitching, does such chores as cleaning the bats, mending the equipment, and playing all positions in the outfield and infield. Another experienced moundman is Andy House, received from Seattle in a trade for Joe Casarella.

The younger fingers include: Bill Fossell, farmed out last year; Herbert Lahr, who joined the team late last season and is in the property of the Athletics for 1931 delivery; Joe Bowman, farmed out to Omaha last year; Wilbur Martin, "Babe" Alexander, an Ontario, Ore. youth and Ray Smith, ex-University of Arizona player.

Jack Fenton, first baseman acquired from Oakland in a trade for Fred Ortman, scut-paw hurler, is the only newcomer to the infield. Bill Ibbel will handle second base. He is arguing for more money at present but is expected to come to terms. George Westling is coming back to shortstop after a trial with Detroit and the New York Yankees, while Sammy Hale will occupy third base. Gene Robertson will fill in the utility role.

Veterans will hold down the outfield with Ken Williams, Walter Frazier and Charles Bates as holdovers. Howard Summa, recalled by the Athletics last season, is now Portland property. He is the best man they have had in right field since the days of Billy Spear.

ENGAGEMENT BROKEN.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7 (AP)—The engagement of Al Simmons, hard hitting outfielder of the world champion Philadelphia Athletics, to Miss Dorothy Kuhn, of Jenkintown, Pa., has been broken by mutual consent.

In making this announcement, John F. Kuhn, the young woman's father, said he expected to come to terms with the Athletics for the return of the girl, but that he and Mrs. Kuhn received Al "highly" and that he would always be welcome at their home.

AC PORTABLE DEVELOPED.

NEW YORK (AP)—A portable receiver designed for use with AC current has been designed by New York engineers. It uses only two tubes, one a detector and the other the power supply. It weighs ten pounds.

It is intended for broadcast reception, the only occasion necessary being a plug-in put into a light circuit.

ENGLISH LONERS VIA AMERICA.

NEW YORK (AP)—Malcolm F. Peck, English shortstop, was his usual, great London programs by way of America. In a letter to NBC he reports that he is in the States on a tour with WEXAL, the short wave station of WJZ, and gave a speaker or two which had proved the Atlantic crossing was not so difficult as it was when he was in the States.

BAKER, Ore., Feb. 7.—The sub-district basketball tournament will be held in Ontario this year February 26, 27 and 28. Principal Troy Walker of the Baker school is in charge.

Practically all of the schools in the two counties voted in favor of holding the tourney in Ontario, where better gymnasium facilities are available. Some of the schools refused to come to Baker to play because of the gymnasium.

Characterizing the local gym as a "tiger box" certain school officials stated that "when you get a gymnasium that we can shoot baskets in we will come to Baker."

It was pointed out that by reason of the change in the place of holding the tournament that Baker hotel and restaurant operators will lose between $750 and $100 this year. During past years about 100 players and coaches have been in Baker during the first two days of the three-day tournament.

This Game Of Golf

By O. B. Keeler

While apologizing to the business man golfer, George Von Elm, following his fine showing in the Agua Caliente tournament, it is in which he tied with John Golden for the lead and lost the play-off in a sale of wind in which he three-putted for four greens, a word of commendation and apology also may be extended Golden. He won the tournament that was by far the richest of the year, and improved his position in the betting list from near the tail-end to about midway. Just behind Johnny Dawson and just ahead of Willie Macfarlane.

Golden, however, still was far behind the real leaders of the betting list—Leo Diegel, averaging 72 3-5 in 18 rounds; Gene Sarazen, averaging 1-3 stroke more in the same number of rounds; and Horton Smith, averaging 72 1-9 in 18 rounds. Henry Cretz was ahead of all of these, with 72 4-7 in seven rounds, and Clarence Chamber, the long walkover from Detroit, with 72 1-9 in three rounds.

Golden's average was a level 73, which is not bad, yet not so good as one would expect to pick off the first money in the Agua Caliente. Von Elm, averaging 74 7-15, also is not showing the class to warrant so capable a feat.

However, that is the way it is, and both Golden and George have a fancy, won more money thus far this season than Horton Smith, whose average is far better—78 1-6 in 18 rounds. Both youngsters have not won a single money tournament thus far this season, where in past years the Jeptha Pine has been tearing around the far western courses, winning or finishing second in nearly every bout in which he starts.

I think it is fair to suggest that Jeptha Pine is in the vernacular of the critics, a bit disappointing, so far this season. I think, too, that I know the reason, which probably will sound funny to a lot of golfing fans.

Norton likes the game too much and plays too much of it, both competitively and just generally. Only one competitor, Clark of Tulsa, has played more rounds of competitive golf this winter than Horton, and he was far down the list while Horton stood in sixth place after the Agua Caliente affair.

There is no doubt in my mind that an occasional lay-off is good for a man's competitive game. I think that one reason for Bobby Jones' amazing ability to go through the season of 1930 winning all of his major competitions, including the Walker Cup, and several less important engagements, like the Southwestern open at Augusta and the Longwood Club Invitational, was in a great measure due to a complete lay-off during the preceding months.

Bobby went to the season fresh and keen and eager; several others I could mention, among the best of the American contingent, unquestionably were stale from winter play. I think Horton Smith is suffering from too much exhibition golf last summer and fall. In those winter tournaments, and it will not be strange if he suffers next summer from too much exhibition golf.

Ex-Cashier Charged With Embezzlement

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Feb. 6 (AP)—Charges of embezzlement were filed yesterday against J. G. Nichols, former cashier of the Clifton State bank, and D. B. Stout, former manager of a woolen mills store here, charged with looting the bank of $2,200.

Nichols spread the alarm last week that the bank had been robbed and that the robbers had locked him in the vault. Investigation revealed that Nichols had stolen the money. He was charged with the theft of $2,200.

Both young men were arraigned on the charge yesterday and counsel for Nichols waived preliminary hearing for his client who will go directly into circuit court and plead guilty, the attorney said next week. The sentence ranges from one to 15 years or a $5,000 fine, or both.

Stout asked for 24 hours in which to plead.

Both youths were nervous and upset as the charges were read. They appeared haggard.

Delay Reading Of Portland Port Bill

PORTLAND, Feb. 7 (AP)—The heaviest penalty on a reckless driving case in months was handed yesterday to George Beatty of Myrtle Point. He was fined $250 and ordered not to drive in Oregon for six months.

Witnesses said he was driving between 30 and 35 miles an hour when he failed to stop at a stop sign, struck a truck, skidded, and crashed into a service station, demolishing a 1200 gasoline pump and his own car.

No Hollywood Glamor In Germany; Movie Fans Don't Idolize Players

By Wade Werner

BERLIN (AP)—Germany has no Hollywood—at least not in the American sense.

There is no city consecrated to the screen, no movie Mecca luring throngs, no Hollywood boulevard paved with shattered dreams of film fortune forgotten amid towering evidences of film dreams fantastically come true.

Germans do not travel from all parts of their country to crowd the sacred ground on which their film stars walk. Nor do German youngsters flock to the studios dreaming of an overnight lift to film fame.

Nevertheless, pictures are made in Germany, and thousands of experienced stage players are glad to act in them. These players naturally are most numerous in Berlin, and the studios, with few exceptions, cluster in and around Berlin.

Some pictures are made in Tempelhof, near the famous airport; some are filmed in Grunewald, a few in Spandau (also an airport), but probably most of them in Neubabelsberg.

So for those who insist on seeing a "German Hollywood" the place to go is Neubabelsberg.

Pictures were produced there as early as 1911, and Neubabelsberg, by the way, got its name long before the talkie era made the "babel" part look intentional. The Neubabelsberg, and when the players finish their work they walk right to the natural summer residence of Emperor William I. Schloss Babelsberg, is natural name for the town.

Here the Ufa company, owned by the nationalist leader Herr Hugenberg, has its principal studios, and the town, near the Potsdam and Hohenzollern, might be made into a striking likeness of Hollywood.

There are beautiful trees there, and a big shady beer-garden just across from the studios where more than 2000 tourists could cling steins with the stars—if the tourists came, and the stars stayed.

But tourists do not flock to Neubabelsberg and go by
